Vol. 6, No. 35 (The Sheppard Publishing Co., (Ltd.) Proprietors.

TORONTO, JULY 22, 1893.

TERMS: | Single Copies, 5c. | Whole No. 295

Around Town.

Riding up town the other evening I sat be ide a couple of men who when the ticket sade a couple of them by the conductor murmured, "Transfer." He asked them from what line. "King street east," they replied. what line. "King street east," they replied.
"You paid no fare on the King street east car," he retorted. "The transfer agent saw us get off the King street east car and we are not going to pay again." The conductor insisted that they had not paid at all and told them either to get off or settle. One said to the other, "Let us get off and go back," to which reply was made, "Oh, it would waste too much time," and they paid ten cents. After they left the car I asked the conductor how he could be so positive that they had not paid a fare. He told me the transfer agent had pointed them out to him, that they had jumped on a King street east car a little way from the corner of King and Yonge and had got off with the crowd and asked for a transfer, but had not paid any fare. The conductor told me It was outrageous the amount of lying that was done to him, but he was not at liberty to insist on the payment of a fare unless he had accurate information. The men in question took his number and threatened him with all sorts of dire vengeance, and it is easily under-stood that men are not willing to risk their positions in order to make untruthful pas sengers pay up. "Do you know," said he, "that a half, or at least a third of the transfers are fraudulent, and the people who are willing to lie and steal for from three to five cents constitute fully a quarter of our passengers. It is the same on every line; all of the conductors are beginning to know them. When a conductor rides with me going to his dinner he can look over the car and probably spot three or four who make a business of stealing rides and lying the conductor out of countenance. I imagine the company will make an example of one of them before very long. I was a conductor on a car line in an American city, and this same thing went on until some arrests were made."

Is it not startling that so-called respectable and even prominent citizens are willing to become liars and thieves for the paltry amount of a street car fare? It seems inconceivable that men and women would suffer self-con-tempt as well as dread the disgust of a street car conductor for such a paltry amount. have long enjoyed the reputation of being the best city morally in America. Is this the product of our blue laws and rigid discipline ? have always contended that when we interfere by law in matters which are not our concern we create a generation of hypocrites, llars and formalists. We are all of us forced to be "formally" good, but in our actions and in our business transactions, and in many concerns where the public conscience should manifest itself we seem to be wofully lacking in that uprightness and unostentatious integrity which should mark the conduct of good citizens. I am not alone in stating that such a large percentage of transfer frauds are perpetrated.

A daily newspaper has gone so far as to say that it would pay the company to give a general three cent fare and abolish transfers; that is to say, a section of the city has in-dividually reduced fraud to such a fine art that it would pay the railway company to deduct twenty-five per cent. from their fares in order to escape the possibility of being swindled so generally. Is it not despicable? Think of a man or a woman going home to his or her family and for a paltry three cents recognizing himself or herself as a liar and thief! A man who says he is a transfer and is not, is cer-tainly a liar; a man who steals a ride is certainly a thief. Two or three conductors have told me that women do this more than men. What must we think of a woman who would commit a double sin for three or four cents? Can we believe that in the presence of a tempwhich is held to be a social disgrace she could be morally strong? I think it is the most appalling phase of public degradation that I have ever met with; it is a feature en so generally recognized by the press of this city that it can no longer be denied or concealed. I imagine that but few who are guilty of it can have entered into self-examination or the awfulness of their untruthfulness and petty larceny would have presented itself. Many people who have a right to a transfer will not claim it lest they may be thought to be

The fact that the Street Railway Company does not trust its employees to the extent of receiving the fare and indicating it by a or register, has probably been the lesson leading down to the low grade of con scientiousness now discovered in the pas-senger. Those who have ridden have been notified by having that little ticket-caddy shoved under their noses that the company believes its servants to be dishonest. This ha been recognized by the public, and in view that the company considers all men and women thieves a certain percentage of them have beme such. Is not this the natural result of all measures showing distrust of the people? loes not suspicion breed crookedness and rime! Is it not better to believe that manfind is naturally prone to be square than to oceed from a knowledge of dishonesty in a w instances to teach the public generally that is just as well to be a thief as to be thought of Of course such a suspicion is no excuse r wrong-doing, but it is the cause of much of e petty larceny and petty falsehood distinguishable in people from whom we should expect much better things.

During this recognized period of hard times. when dull trade and high taxes make the majority of Torontonians feel poor, how many of the victims of misfortune once surrounded by greater or less affluence have the strength of mind and courage to go "on the cheap? A couple of weeks ago I was on a journey of some length, and walking on the platform of a way station met a friend of mine who at one time thought himself quite comfortably fixed. I asked him whence he came and he said New York. "Why," I said, "I did not see you in the Pullman car." He said, "I am pass should be as thoroughly ashamed of them-selves, should in fact be liable to the same punishment as the officers and directors of a bank which has swindled depositors and in-jured public credit. Surely at least no honest man would like to have his mind or his dreams burdened with the pictures of disaster, disap-pointment and heartbreak consequent upon a busted boom " and a period of civic extrava gance and mismanagement. Have we any reason to hope that the public conscience will awaken to a sense of its duty, and that able and honest men will consent to become administrators of our civic affairs?

It appears that the easy familiarity and encircling the necks of persons of doubtful temper. One does not like to discourage these trifling exhibitions of friendship or fondness for people or office, but it is no doubt excusable to remark upon the inadaptability of such a habit when the temperature is high and the taxes seventeen and a quarter mills on the dollar.

The sort of people who most frequently get into trouble—and into court—are those who make baby bargains. I reckon every man understands what a "baby bargain" is; it is when one makes a sale or a pur-chase, repents of the bargain and endeavors to change it. Children do business this one example out of half a hundred that might be quoted. Why do we attempt to transact pub-lic business on any such baby principle? What seems to me to be needed in the City Hall is a body of aldermen who are accustomed to doing a large business. If you examine the business of the majority of aldermen you will discover many of them to be either men without any visible means of support or the managers of such small concerns that we can hope for nothing better from them. A tailor or baker is just as good a member of the community as any other man, but making clothes and baking bread do not adapt a man to the management of large concerns. In fact, the doing of a small or peddling business if long persisted in is apt to unfit a man for larger affairs This is the sort of men we select, or rather it is the sort of men who select themselves, and the city of Toronto permits them to indulge themselves in playing at governing the town.

I would not in the slightest degree be thought guilty of disparaging petty tradesmen; I am only asking whether those who do not commercially rise above such small occupations are likely to get their experience in managing a city the business of which rises into the millions. Our law suits, the management of public property and the rate of taxation all demand examination into both our system and the class of people who are pretending to work

The other day one of its daily contemporaries told the World that it was making itself the Burchard of the Sunday street car campaign. It will be remembered that Rev. Dr. Burchard killed Blaine's chances of the presidency of the United States by his foolish words in advocating his cause. I should like to see Sunday street cars, but the chances of measure being carried are being very much injured by the World's overheated and ofttimes ill judged clamor. It cannot be denied that the commercial prosperity of Toronto has been injured by the over-anxiety of many zealous people who would rather see the quiet of the graveyard in our streets than have our citizens rendered liable to the temptations of easy transportation and reasonable liberty. While this, I conceive, is capable of proof, and it is in fact understood by those who have studied the causes which have led tourists to forsake Toronto as a pleasant place to rest, that there is no use impugning the motives of the thousands who honestly believe Sunday street cars to be an evil. Many of us may believe that some of their leaders are self-seeking and impractical, yet if the cause is to be won the sentiment of the many must be met by the fair and reasonably worded case of their

In the first place, the religious sentiments which favor Sunday as a day of rest have been of incalculable benefit to the world. Before life became so busy and our affairs demanded such haste and worry, Sunday as a religious institution saved the week from being an uninterrupted period of labor. Before trades unions forced employers and capitalists to reduce the hours of labor on week days, the religious sen-timent, the idea of the sabbatarianism provided them with a day of rest. Even the most ardent opponents of Sunday street cars have been dis-lodged from defending the Jewish sabbath, but in the abandonment of that idea nobody asks any portion of the world to forsake the idea of a day of rest. It is rather a question of how to make Sunday the most restful day that should engage those who are arguing for and against Sunday street cars. There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that we will have a more restful Sunday with the cars than without them, that fewer people will have to toil, that Sunday night will find fewer weary ones, that sundown of the day dedicated to the memory of our Saviour will find more rested ones with the cars than without them.

More horses will have rested than would have dragged the cars had we not electric locomo tion; more coachmen will have had a day of rest; more servants will have been able to take their brief respite from household duty to visit their friends and relatives; there will be a greater intermingling of those who care for out them. If we confine ourselves to these most essential points there should be no ill-feeling, no name-calling, and a calm and satisfactory verdict will be reached.

MISS KATE JAMES AS KINNA LOOFA IN THE NAUTCH GIRL

not riding in the Pullman just now. I can make two dollars and a half easier by sitting Mayor is becoming unpopular. At least a in the first-class coach. For the last six couple of times this week an alderman and months I have not gone to bed on the train. and another thing is, I am not ashamed of going 'on the cheap.' I am too near 'broke' to put on any style or to even enjoy the comforts with which a little more money would provide me." I admired his courage and asked myself, shoulder-slapping habit of His Worship the ex-alderman have threatened to pound his face because of his too great fluency in conversation and facetiousness in slapping them on the back. In order to uphold the dignity of his office of course the Mayor refused to do any-thing more violent than walk away. It would how many of us have the strength of mind to recognize the changed conditions and endeavor by small economies to prevent, or at least postpone, the evil day when real estate in doubt that thousands of families in Toronto have secretly curtailed their expenses while endeavoring to appear before their neighbors as prosperously as of yore. Those who are guilty of bringing so many people to such as the finding and the performance takes place as prosperously as of yore. Those who are guilty of bringing so many people to such as the finding and the performance takes place as prosperously as of yore. Those who are guilty of bringing so many people to such as the finding and the performance takes place as prosperously as of yore. Those who are guilty of bringing so many people to such as the finding and the performance takes place as prosperously as of yore. Those who are guilty of bringing so many people to such as the finding and the performance takes place to change the terms or postpone the date, and as law suit has been the result. The latest decourse, repented of their bargin, endeavored to change the terms or postpone the date, and as law suit has been the result. The latest decourse repented of their bargin, endeavored to change the terms or postpone the date, and as way that after the close of this summer season proparations will begun to make our work for ment as a sum that to change the terms or postpone the date, and as law suit has been the result. The latest development is in the Guelich tenders. A man was brought from Detroit to undertake the work, and after much temporizing and delay—and it is alleged after long seeking for an opportunity to take the work and the profit away from him—he finds his contract divided up. A law suit is threatened. This is only idea and shall be glad to have effine the course, and paying their railway, the object to change the terms or postpone the date, and to change the terms or postpone the date, and to have suit in the Guelich tenders. A man was brought from Detroit to und way, but men are usually not permitted to bring their childish habits into commercial transactions. The city of Toronto has made too many baby bargains and they have been the cause of innumerable law suits, suits for damages, and all sorts of disturbing and progress-destroying conditions. No matter what large contract is examined you will find that the aldermen have either wabbled in their course, repented of their bargain, endeavored

Fresh Air Fund :

Previously	a	O	k	10	10	Į.ų	v	le	10	ħ	K	ę	d						'n				ŝ	6	0
F. C				k			,			,														1	0
Machinist .														,	,	×	,		ĸ					1	0
J. O. G																			į			,		9	0
A Friend																								5	0
H. D. A				8					×			,	٠					À				×	1	9	C
Total	١,											,			,							-	84	7	00

My DEAR DCN,—Referring to Hank Clerk's letter in last issue of SAYGRDAY NIGHT, I would say that this summer we have issue able to send a number of children to the country from our shelter for the summer. This we have been able to do without any cost as to thair maintenance wille in the country iscense of the kinduws of triends of the unfortunate little ones. These children are all worse than homeless having degraded parents, and we hope that in some. less, having degraded parents, and we hope that in some, if not all, the more the visits may result in the adoption of the children. The cost of getting these children ready, days' rest and fresh air.

Secretary Children's Aid Society.

The Cruise of the Scow Jane.

We had an enthusiastic fly fisherman with us. His experience in this particular department of the piscatorial art had made him in every respect. He was a professional man by trade and the most appalling liar with regard to his accomplishments as a fisherman that any of us had ever heard. I went out in a boat with him a couple of days and he cast a fly very gracefully, but unfortunately caught nothing. The longer he fished and the less visible product of his zeal that could be seen, the more unparalleled became his stories of previous catches. The joyous gaiety of his previous catches. The joyous gatery of members and when at last he devoted himself to a whole day's fishing he realized his prophecies and got a very handsome string. He was known to us as "the Phonograph," and it is reported that he rained himself paying a royalty of ten cents a million words on what he talked to us while he was fishing. One day the Phonograph shot a porcupine. I think it was the only disastrous thing that hap-pened the crew of the Scow Jane, for the Talking Machine wouldn't let up on the extraordin-ary adventures he had in killing the beast and digging him out of his hole. History is not exact as to the whereabouts of the porcupine at the beginning of the war. According to the Machine he climbed fifteen trees in pursuit of the beast; he dug him out of twenty five or thirty different variety of holes; he blasted him out of rock; fought him singlehanded in an open space; struggled with him in the water; killed him with a gast hook; shot him in the eye; stunned him with an oar; in fact, the poor porcupine died seventy-five or eighty different deaths, and the fact that the corpse was brought into camp was suppos be evidence of the truth of each tale. We had three doctors with us who dissected the corpse, and the Machine was able to point out evi dences of each different death. The "crowner's 'quest'' held over the porcupine failed to arrive at any verdict except that the Machine was a phenomenal liar. Oldly enough, four days after the body was thrown in the water I met the remains at least two miles away from camp, evidently trying to get out of reach of the Machine's voice. Poor old porcupine, I think you got out of it easier than any of the rest of us.

The blonde doctor caught two maskinonge and there were only three caught amongst the eleven of us. It can be well understood that a circumstance of this sort destroyed the equilibrium of the outfit. He was not boastful-any such aggressiveness would have been punished for we were organized as a court— but the large and blistered superi-ority of the man with the extra record was difficult to endure. He blistered his wrists, and the skin peeled off his neck and face, but nature could not obliterate from his superior smile as he looked upon the rest of us those proud words, "Two maskinonge." Is there anything more exasperating than the man of modest speech who car-ries two volumes of self-satisfaction in a superior smile? The blonde dcctor is no doubt a pleasant gentleman, but I met him two weeks after he got home and when he looked upon me there was "Two maskinonge" in his smile just the same. New skin had grown over him, and it matched the old very well, but if he lives to be eighty that same exultant look in his eyes and the commiserating smile on his lips will tell posterity that he caught two maskinonge while the other ten of us only caught one.

The history of the catching of the other one however, may be worth writing. The last day but one before we left, we went up to Minor's Lake in full force. It is the longe ground, or the 'longe water, whatever you see fit to call it, and from early in the morning till afternoon we trolled through the "good places" without success. The Talking Machine caught a couple of pickerel, one of them a beauty; the rest of us booked a few pike and threw them back in the water. I had a longe take a double spoon tackle off my line. He swallowed the whole business, bit off the line as neatly as it could have been done with a pair of sciss and I hardly knew anything had touched it We gathered on an island and held a council of war. It was evident that longe were not bit-ing. Prince Arthur and I decided to start for camp and a good place to sleep. I am never without trolling. If I haven't the water two lines out I have at least one. Arthur wanted to go to sleep, and lay down in the bottom of the boat. I reminded him that we were out for 'longe. He offered to fix me up an extra line, and the exertion of getting it ready inclined him to try his luck. Then five minutes after while going around a point I had a strike, and he hooked a fish and landed a thirteen-and-a-half pound 'longe. Our boatman got so excited he could not strike it with the gaff, and it was lugged in over the side in a most unscientific manner. The rest of the boys were sleeping about half a mile distant, so we embraced each other and then yelled. We took a drink of cold tea and yelled some more. Then we started back to make bets with them that we would catch a 'longe before we got home, and so hopeful had we become that we fished and fished, all through that blistering afternoon, and never caught a thing. We rowed to every boat, bantered the occupants on their lack of luck, said that ed the occupants on their lack of lack, said that we felt confident we would arrive at the house-boat with a longe—our longe in the nean-time being carefully concessed—but we could make no bets. At night we got in, the proprietors of the only longe that had been caught, but the joy had all gone out of it; we had bluffed and offered to bet so much that we were looked upon with suspicion. It is thus that joy evaporates and leaves nothing but an echo behind. Nine men arrived at the houseboat in the course of an hour, thoroughly disgusted with their luck; when they found that Prince Arthur and I had caught a longe they were still more disgusted with us.

The Talking Machine told a story one night and we court-martialed him. You can imagine what it was like when such a course had to be pursued. The philosophical physician, whom we will call Dr. English, was judge. He is reputed to have a very large practice and a still larger heart. It is wonderful what an office of this sort can do for a man. For fifteen min-utes at a time and with interludes of about fifteen seconds he would pause and give decisions. No matter what we touched, we were sure to tap a decision either on original sin, on the formation of the earth's surface, on fish, astronomy, theology or parasites. shows what an amateur judge is apt to do, when this unobtrusive and gentle-mannered man became so autocratic. He was so full of judicial opinions that it was nearly daylight before he had time to pass sentence on the prisoner.

The trial was uproariously funny. The aliases of the witnesses complicated matters. The same witness was called under a half a dozen different names and seemed to make it a point to contradict himself each time. After they had given evidence as experts, common and court liars, and had shown every variety of testimony that may be rendered entertaining and untrue, the whole outfit were impanneled as a jury with Dr. English as the judge, 5 The prisoner was the only man who was not there in a dual capacity, but in spite of all efforts to restrain him he had more to say than even the judge himself. Towards dawn, however, the stinging comments of "My Lord," the awful revelations of the witnesses and the grave asides of the officers of the court made him feel uneasy lest he should become the victim of some mad prank. Then he began to make genuin protests and appeared to find those who were willing to take his part. Free fights were feigned and most uncomplimentary terms were ordinary epithets in the argument. At five-thirty in the morning we arrived at a verdict of "Guilty." The prisoner looked exceedingly grave as he listened to the learned and lengthy address of His Lordship who finally reserved judgment. This was a sample of the way the evenings were spent by nearly a dozen grown men who at home are more or less grave and reverend seigniors. And it did us good; it was a glimpse of quickly fading youth and renewed our daily decreasing capacity

Social and Personal.

Mr. I. Suckling, who is soon to assume a responsible position in a musical con-nection in this city, has undertaken the business management of the grand production of Antigone to be given by the undergraduates of Toronto University next February. Mr. Suckling has also accepted the post of acting secretary of the musical festival to be held next May at the opening of the Massey Music

A very enjoyable entertainment was given one evening last week at the residence of Mrs. R. T. Coady, in aid of the Fresh Air Fund, by the following children: Ida Smith, Florrie Allison, Mary Miles, Eva Miles, Nonie Crozler, Amy Buckner, Isabel Dickson, Amy Lee, Edith Coady, Lena Coady and Harold Mara.

The following have registered at the Hotel Chautauqua, Niagara-on-the-Lake, during the week : Mrs. Spragge, Miss Beatrice Spragge, Mr. Godfrey Spragge, Mrs. Betley, Mrs. Gordon Brown, Mr. C. C. Bains, Mr. George Harman, Mr. Harry Filzsimons, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Warren and family, Misses Mary and Annie Hagarty, Mrs. A. H. Wright, Misses Ethel and Edith Wright, Messrs. T. R. and Arthur Wright of Toronto, Mr. Victor Heron, Miss Maude Heron of Ottawa, Mrs. John Lake of New York, Mrs. P. Foster, Mr. J. Foster of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Fraser and family, of Niagara Falls,

The death of Mrs. James Catheart, an old resident of Toronto, and sister of Mrs. E. W. Evans, Parkdale, is announced at Cannstaff. Wurtemburg, Germany, after a short illness.

Mrs. Charles J. Wilbur of New York is in the city visiting her mother, Mrs. J. D. King. Mrs. Wilbur intends, after taking a trip to Chicago, to join her sisters, who have a cottage at the Thousand Islands for the summer

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moore, Jarvis street, returned on Tuesday from the World's Fair.

Mr. Robert Davies was one of a party of thirteen who went this week, via the C. P. R., for a week's vacation at the World's Fair.

Rev. Dr. Dawart, editor of the Guardi on Saturday morning for Chicago. He will spend a week or ten days there.

Mrs. R B. Hamilton and daughter are spending the holidays in Orillia.

Miss Louise Sanders of Port Hope, who has been the guest of Mrs. Fred Rose, St. Mary's street, returned last week.

Messrs. E. A. Degeer, C. Corrington, W. Moore and W. Whittick have taken up their quarters at Rosseau, Muskoka, for the summer.

Mrs. Fred Rose and little daughter, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Tinning, left for Oakland and Washington on Tuesday.

Miss Bella Gillespie of Hamilton was visiting Miss Lilli Healy of Huron street last week.

Capt. and Mrs. Murray and family are at Victoria Park.

Mrs. W. S. Taylor of St. Louis, Mo., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Webber of 5 Rose avenue.

Mrs. J. L. and Miss Wherry of Quebec have just returned from visiting Detroit and Hamilton and are now the guests of Mrs. T. J. Coolican of 193 St. Clarence avenue.

Capt. and Mrs. Bennett are at Long Branch.

for a fortnight to Muskoka. Mrs. Carruthers has had quite a serious illness recently, but is regaining strength and will soon be her bright

Capt. and Mrs. Mason and family are en illegiature north of Toronto.

Mr. Norman Macrae has returned from delightful visit at Orillia, where he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pellatt.

Mrs. Craigie is taking holidays at Huntsville,

Miss McEnvey of Dundas street has returned om a fortnight's visit in the State

Mrs. Charles and Master Brefley O'Reilly are t the Hotel Chautauqua, Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge of Spadina avenue are spending the summer at Cape Elizabeth, Miss Brown of 666 Spadina avenue has re turned to the city after a seven weeks' visit with her brothers, Hon. John G. and Mr. E. D. Brown of Duluth, Minn.

Mrs. and Miss Douglas are at the World's air. Capt. Douglas is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Cotton of Lambton Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason, the Misses Mason and Master Douglas Mason are at Mr. Mason's island in Muskoka.

Mrs. Charles Nelson and family have gonfor the summer to Humberstone Park, Lake

Mr. Tom Hill leaves for Nantucket to day.

Mrs. Willis of Jarvis street will spend some weeks at Murray Bay.

Miss Minnie Darby is summering in Orillia. Mr. Drynan and family have taken Mr. W.

T. Murray's house at Victoria Park for the Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith, Miss Smith and Master Elmer Smith have returned from a visit to the World's Fair. Miss Gertie Morphy is visiting Mrs. H. E. Morphy of Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gooderham and the Misses Gooderham are at the seaside.

Mrs. V. E. Gordon of Boston, Mass., is visitng friends on Church street.

Mr. A. F. Rutter and Master Fred Rutter have returned to the city after a ten days' visit to the World's Fair at Chicago. They report the Fair as far beyond description, the weather delightful and the visit altogether most enjoy

Miss Lizzie Hull and Miss Lillie May left for Chicago on Friday morning.

Miss Bassie Thomson of North street is at present visiting friends in Hamilton, after which she will leave for a three weeks' visit to Belle-

Mr. A. G. Gordon, formerly of Toronto, now of Chicago, was on a visit to this city and other parts of the province last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Malone and family are nering at Oakville.

Mrs. H M. and Miss Nellie Blackburn of Charles street are spending the summer at Port Sandfield, Muskoka.

Mr. John Clegg, of the Grensdiers' band, and family have gone to Europe for the vacation On his return Mr. Clegg goes to Chicago to play at the concerts held under the auspices of the visiting bands.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cauldwell and family have taken up their summer residence at Oak

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winnifrith and family, of Ontario street, have taken up their summer quarters by the lake shore at Oakville.

Dr. Thomas O'Hagan, the well known Canalian litterateur and lecturer, is in the city engaged in the examinations at the Normal chool. Dr. O'Hagan's new volume of poems In Dreamland, will appear in a few days, the publisher being the Williamson Book Com-

Mrs. Hamilton Merritt of St. George street area, hamitor merritt of St. George street gave a very delightful garden party last week which was attended by a large number of society people. The pretty grounds were lighted with Chinese lanterns and numbers of sylvan cosy corners echoed sweet nothings of gossip and compliment, as the balmy breath of laughter to and fro.

Among the passengers on the Sardinian. which sailed July 15, were: The Governor General and party; and Mrs. D'Alton Mc Carthy and maid, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mc-Kay, Miss Lelil McKay, Mr. and Mrs. Begg, Mr. J. McDonald, Miss Rackham, Rev. Mr. Williams, Miss Ellerby, Rev. J. Clelland, Mr. R. C. Vesconte and wife, Mr. Reid, Rev. Mr. Dawson and Mrs. Dawson, Rev. Mr. Smythe

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hodgson have returned from their wedding trip and will be At Home to their friends at 32 Bellevue avenue on Thursday and Friday of next week, July 27th and 28th.

Captain R. Harding Stewart and Mrs Stewart of Parry Sound, who have been spend-ing three weeks in the city as the guests of Mrs. John O Grady, have returned home.

Miss Maggie Baigent of 497 Sherbourne street has gone to spend her vacation at her sister's, Mrs. Harry Davis, beautiful summ residence, Maple Grove, near Chester, Vermont.

Dr. J. H. Cotton, Mrs. Cotton and two daughters left for a two weeks' visit to Musko ka on Thursday.

Mrs. James Carruthers and family have gone The Viola on Tuesday afternoon took out on the lake her usual party of ladies and gen tlemen. The cool breeze and a delightful sail were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Charles Brown of Isabella street as Mrs. Murdock left on Friday week for Penyan.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Taylor left on Tuesday norning for Mount Clemens, Mich.

Mrs. Andrew and Miss Jenny Smith leave next Wednesday for Montreal. Miss Jenny Smith will go to Germany for a year at school

Mrs. Fraser Macdonald and family are at the Peninsular Park Hotel for the summer.

Miss Macbeth Milligan left for Muskoka yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodgins are camping in Muscoka. On their return they will visit Mrs. Hodgins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hamilton.

Mrs. R. S. Neville and family are at the Sand Banks, as are also Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Peirson

Mr. Brock has returned from a visit to Eng

The Flower Show was a great attraction or Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and even ings. The Lieut. Governor and Mrs. Kirk-patrick attended for the purpose of opening the exhibition on Wednesday at four o'clock. A large party of the visiting railway men also attended and admired the graceful display of cut flowers, foliage, plants and fruits. Some choice orchids were shown. Among those who attended the show on Wednesday evening were: Mr. and Mrs. R. McMaster, Mr. and Mrs. Wyld, Mr. McLean Howard, Miss Howard, Mrs. and Miss Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hamilton Merritt, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Robert Gooderham, Mrs. Greenshields, Misses Phemie and Jennie Smith, Mrs. Christie, Mr. Brooke, Mr. Mrs., and Miss Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, the Misses Crawford, Mr. Brock, Mrs. Acheson, Rev. Charles and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. J. and Mrs. Small, Mr. James Beatty, Mr. Suckling, Mrs. J. F. Pringle and Miss Laidlaw, Mrs. Beard, and many others. The Queen's Own Band played a charming

The little bird says: That American mer never leave their wives at home when they excurt. That if all the gentlemen would risk influenza and remove their hats in the Pavilion during conversation with ladies, it would look more chivalrous. That the gardeners and small boys had a good deal of the floor on Wednesday evening. That it is no use running to catch a trolley car. That the prettiest girl at the Flower Show belongs to the East End. That Miss Hague worked hard to beat Miss Osborne and some fine play was the result. That lady cyclists are multiplying and some smart costumes are worn by the debutantes. That Mrs. Whitehead is very graceful on the tennis court as well as elsewhere. That Grossmith is making fun of us. That a foreign visitor of rank gave his verdict for Toronto in her summer dress as the prettiest place he had seen in America. That he came here from Hamilton. That a dainty little Islander and a handsome society man are flances. Hospital is a lovely place to be an invalid in.

Alexander Cameron presented the gold medal for highest standing in the vocal department at the College of Music, won by Miss Florence Brimson.

Mr. Frank Score leaves next week for Scot

Mr. and Mrs. B. Jackes are in Muskoka.

Ald. and Mrs. Orr left last Saturday for Sandy Beach, Muskoka, where they will spend a few days with Judge Mahaffy.

Mr. Walter Besant is at the Hotel Imperial,

Signor D'Auria will spend his vacation at the Mr. Edward Fisher left last Saturday for

Rev. Mr. Wallace of the Bloor street Baptist church left on July 10 to spend his vacation with parents and friends in Nova Scotia.

The trim steam yacht Viola carried a select party to Lorne Park on Saturday evening to attend the social hop.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. H. Massey were visited by many friends on Tuesday, July 11, showered congratulations upon them on their having reached their fifth (wooden) wedding Continued on Page Twelve

PARIS KID GLOVE STORE

FOR SUMMER WEAR

Silk and Linen Gloves our specialty.

Chamois Gloves in 4 button and Mosquetaire. button Dressed and Undressed Kid Gloves. with fancy stitchings and welts to

We are selling the balance of our Summer Stock of

Dress Goods

Dress Trimmings Ends of Silk

At a Great Reduction.

Pattern Hats and Bonnets Below Cost

WM STITT & CO.

11 and 13 King Street East.

Crown Derby

Royal Worcester

Doulton

PANTECHNETHECA

116 Yonge Street

Cor. Adelaide

Toronto

L. A. STACKHOUSE

Dealer in the finest grades of

AMERICAN BOOTS AND SHOES

For Ladles and Children. New shoes for summer in special shades of Russia leather.

AMERICAN SHOE STORES

Dust Is the enemy of Watches

Where do you get your's cleaned and repaired? It is essential to have your watch placed in competent hands and we employ only such) otherwise your watch becomes a source of

Damaged Jewelry, Trinkets, Etc.

Get into trouble the same a you desire to have all your re-pairing well attended to at moderate prices BRING YOUR JOBBING TO

The J. E. Ellis Co. LIMITED

Cor. King & Yonge Sts.

Nothing in our line is too telf ng to receive

Picks Shaves Tongs

Ice Cream Freezers LEMON SQUEEZERS

Filters

RICE LEWIS & SON

King Street East

TORONTO

Great Sale

Silks WITH OTHER

Printed Surah Silks

30 cents per yard

Printed Foulard Silks

50 cents per yard

Special Lines-Printed Challies, Delaines, Sateens, Cambrics, Ginghams and Dress Fabrics | laines, Sateens, Cambrics, Lawns at Reduced Prices.

Orders by mail receive prompt attention.

JOHN CATTO & SON King Street, opposite the Post Office was indul guests by I Miss Tillie Lyons Big Mrs. Clute Eskins, Ju Corby, Mr. Thomas, M ham, Miss Misses McI Denver, M Walker, M Robert Elli f Brockvil f Toronto, Batler, Die Belvidere Mrs. W. L. day evening give a deli guesta in ho Montreal. flaest in Be cious piazz house dispe tab'es looke artistically o white roses. Oa Wedne large dancin Dinald of I hicago's m: Elliott man sweet peas, i and there th m my youth delightful

July

on their

Monday o

Kenzie of bay as far supper wa

boarded

hestra supported which was h Miss Ellott. and Mrs. L. McDonald o Miss Lena Blanche La: Aunie Wa McKenzle of son, Miss a Mary Clarke Davy, Miss F son, Miss Eva ephen and son, Clute, T Clarke, Huln McCammon, Elliott wore trimmings; I son and gree black lace as of ruby velve dainty and sw silk; the M guests in crea trimmed with M ss Helen C Walker, Empi B anche Lazier ever in a the Misses frocks of cres bridge, cream M ss May Ling pretty gown er passem McKenzie, or wore a cream mings; Miss

Irene Brignal nk ribbons; Miss Lulu Da auty was en silk gown trim B ssie Stinson Oate, white Tromson was d Mrs. Keegan the talented at Mr. and Mrs

John Bell and me on Satu in England and from a pleasant Mr. T. P. J. I nial p oprieto New York on Miss Brown Mrs. Sullivan o

The marriage Kertland of To curch on Satu to recent bereas diag was very dives of the con Tae pretty bri m itch, and was la v. Mr. John m'aion Bank. my Da and A m my Dr. and M Provinces, when Dr. and Mr Terrill, spont turn from their On Friday af Corby, M.P., a large number a seam yacht, th day afternoon his charming

893

ORE

R

Gloves,

elts to ummer

Silk

v Cost

0.

ito

SE es 🖁

ned ave nds vise of 0 yard

yard

Des and

)N

East.

S

Out of Town.

Belleville Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Carman gave a most delightful outing to a large number of friends on their heautiful steam yacht, Carmona, on Monday of last week in honor of Miss Mc-Monday of last week in honor of Miss Mc-Kenzie of Toronto. The party sailed down the bay as far as Glenora, where a most elaborate supper was served, after which the guests boarded the staunch little yacht and made for Massassaga park, where dancing was indulged in until a late hour. Mr. and Mrs. Carman were assisted in receiving their capacts by their charming and practy daughter. guests by their charming and pretty daughter, Miss Tillie. Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Biggar, Mr. and Mrs. Lyons Biggar, Mr. and Mrs. Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Clute, Mr. and Mrs. Pole, Dr. and Mrs. Eskins, Judge and Mrs. Lazier, Miss Emma Corby, Mr. and Mrs. Pope, Mr. Henry and Miss Thomas, Miss Maud Hamilton, Miss May Lingham, Miss Helen Corby, Miss Elliott, the Misses McDonald of Kingston, Miss Niblock of Denver, Mr. Arthur and Miss Clute, Miss Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lingham, and Messrs. McCannon, Stephen and Robert Lazler, R bert Elliott of Chicago, Harry Biggar, Cloyes of Brockville, Balleau of New York, Hughes of Toronto, Moss of Toronto, Hulme of Toronto, Bitler, Dickson, Walker, Morden, Laidlaw, and D: McColl.

Belvidere, the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hamilton, looked its best on Tuesday evening of last week, when Mrs. Hamilton give a delightful tea to a large number of guests in honor of Mrs. J. Irvine Ashcroft of Montreal. The Belvidere grounds are the finest in Belleville, and here, under the ma-jestic maples, in the rookery, or on the spaclose plazza, the charming daughter of the house dispenses five o'clock tea to her large caterie of friends. On Tuesday evening the tab'es looked particularly nice, being most artistically decorated with eau de Nile silk, and

On Wednesday evening Mrs. Elliott gave large dancing party in honor of the Misses Mc-Dinald of Kingston and Mr. Elliott, one of Chicago's most promising young lawyers. The Elliott mansion was prettily decorated with sweet peas, roses and carnations, while prettily shaded lamps and candelabra dispersed here and there through the rooms cast a delightful radiance over the pretty, smiling faces of the many youthful guests. The Oldfellows' orchestra supplied the music for the dancing, which was kept up with zest and vigor until the wee ama' flours. Mrs. Elliott was ably assisted by Mrs. (Col.) Lazier, Mrs. Leitch and Miss Ellott. Among the guests were: Col. and Mrs. Lazler, Mrs. Leitch, the Misses McDonald of Kingston, Miss Helen Corby, Miss Lona Walker, Miss Hamilton, Miss Banche Lazier, the Misses Dickson, Miss Annie Wallbridge, Miss Carman, Miss McKenzie of Toronto, Miss Belle Mathieson, Miss and Miss Irene Brignall, Miss Mary Clarke, Miss May Lingham, Miss Lulu Davy, Miss Fanny Newberry, Miss Bessie Stinson, Miss Eva Clute, Miss Ida Thomson; Messrs. ephen and Robert Lazier, Dickson, Mathie son, Clute, Thomson, Elliott of Chicago, Chas. Clarke, Hulme of Toronto, Halliwell, Morden, McCammon, Robert Walker and Fralick. Mrs. Elliott wore a handsome black satin with jet trimmings; Mrs. (Col.) Lazier, an elegant crimson and green shot silk gown; Mrs. Leitch, black lace and roses: Miss Ediott, a pretty of ruby velvet; the little Misses Elliott were dainty and sweet in Empire gowns of pale blue sik; the Misses McDonald were gracious guests in cream and pink silk; Miss Hamilton was her own pretty self in eau de Nile silk trinmed with old Irish lace and white roses; Mss Helen Corby was dainty in cream surah sik with white lace trimmings; Miss Lena Walker, Empire gown of pale blue silk; Miss Banche Luzier's sweet face looked daintier than ever in a pretty gown of cream silk; the Misses Dickson wore pretty quaint frocks of cream crepon; Miss Annie Wall-bridge, cream silk with mauve trimmings; Miss May Lingham wore a chic gown of pale pink surah; Miss Carman was dainty in a pretty gown of eau de Nile silk trimmed with sliver passementerie and creem lace; Miss sliver passementerie and creem lace; Miss McKenzie, one of Toronto's prettiest girls, wore acream bengaline gown with lace trimmings; Miss Mathieson, white mull; Miss mings; Miss Mathieson, white mull; Miss Clarke, white bengaline; Miss Clarke, white bengaline; Miss Lulu Davy, pale blue silk with white chiffon trimmings; Miss Newberry's brunette heauty was enhanced by a handsome many of the second state beauty was enhanced by a handsome mauve slik gown trimmed with mauve chiffon; Miss B ssie Stinson, pale blue brussels net; Miss Otte, white Empire gown, while Miss Ida Tromson was dainty and sweet in canary silk.

Mrs. Keegan, mother of Miss Mary Keegan, the guest of Mrs. Terrill of Gallaudet cottage. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Rathbun, Mr. and Mrs. John Bell and Miss Ethel Robertson returned nome on Saturday after a three months' visit in England and the continent.

Mr. Stephen Boughton has also returned from a pleasant visit in England and Wales. Mr. T. P. J. Power, one of the popular and g nial p oprietors of th : Q seen's, returned from

New York on Friday.
Miss Brown of Victor, N.Y., is the guest of Mrs. Sullivan of Dandas street. The marriage of Miss Blanche Wilson, eldest daughter of the late Dr. Wilson, to Dr. Rowan

Kertland of Toronto, took place at St. Thomas's courch on Saturday morning at 10 30. Owing to recent bereavement in the family the weddiag was very quiet, only the immediate rela-tives of the contracting parties being present. The pretty bride wore a handsome traveling gova of pearl gray tweed with pretty hat to itch, and was given away by her brother-inla v. Mr. John Murray, manager of the Do-m ion Bank. Immediately after the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Kertland left for the Lower Provinces, where the honeymoon will be spent. Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Forster, nee Edith Terrill, spant Sunday in the city on their return from their wedding trip.

Oa Friday af ernoon of last week Mr. Harry Corby, M.P., gave a delightful outing to a large number of his friends on his staunch e:eam yacht, the Ometa, and again on Satur-day afternoon cur handsome Harry and his charming and courteous wife stood on the Ometa's deck and welcomed some forty guests to the delights of a water party. Both parties sailed down the bay as far as Descronto and returned to Massassaga park, where recherche suppers awaited them. The guests at Friday's outing were: Messrs. Parks, McCrudden, Falkiner, Black, Ketcheson, Diamond, Moore, Green Mykel, Dench, Dalmadge, Porter, Walmsley Thompson, Reeves, Mills, Loudon, Thompson Fairfield, McGuire, Harold, Andrews, Thomas. Cooper, Symons, Weese, Hayes, Finkle, Lat timer, Brown, Large, Wilson, Sinclair, Pope. Cornelius, Walton, Clarke, Palen and Hall. Those at Saturday's party were: Mr. and Mrs W. L. Hamilton, Mr. Northrup, M.P., and Mrs. Northrup, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lingham, Mr. and Mrs. Strong of Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. Watt Thomson, the Misses Chandler, Miss Rose Benjamin, the Misses McDonald, Miss Proctor of Brighton, Miss Hamilton, Mr. Star-ling, Mrs. and Miss Niblock of Denver, Miss Bogart, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neilson of Kansas, Miss Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Brignall, and Mr. William Cummins of Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Corby were assisted in receiving the guests by the Misses Corby.

Mrs. and Miss Starling are spending the hot nonths at Old Orchard Beach.

Miss Tillie Corby, the flower of the Corby family, graduated in the Teachers' course at the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

Mr. R. J. McCaulay spent Monday in the city. Miss Nellie Goodeve of Brooklyn, N.Y., Mr. Fred Hepburn and Messrs. McCuaig of Picton are in the city, the guests of Mrs. Jas. McCuaig of Dundas street.

BETSEY.

Brockville. Miss Mary A. Smart of Moulton College, To Miss Mary A. Smart of Moulton College, 10-ronto, is visiting her old home and will also visit Albany, N.Y., during her vacation. Miss Jane Smart, secretary of the Y.W.C. T.U., Toronto, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Evans of Hamilton were in town for a short visit last week.

Mrs. Boyson of Montreal has taken posses sion of her cottage at Fernbank for the sum

Mrs. Frizzel of Napance is a guest of Mrs Moorehouse of James street.

Mr. W. H. Dingle of Winnipeg, formerly the popular organist of the Wall street church, officiated at the organ on Sunday last. It is rumored he will officiate at the altar this week in a very interesting ceremony in which a popular young lady is also implicated, of which I hope to give you a full account in my next.

Mr. A. B. Broderick, manager Moison's Bank, Ottawa, spent Sunday and Monday in town fraternizing with oid friends.

Mr. Harry Gates has returned from a trip to

Mr. Harry Gates has returned from a trip to Central and South America.

About fifteen miles north of here lies Charleston Lake, noted o'er the continent for its pretty islands, picturesque shores and matchless fishing. Though visited by an army matchiess name. Inough visited by an army of local nimrods, as well as a host of outsiders, the "catch" keeps up. The following are among the late arrivals: Rev. Warren Styles, wife and maid, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Christopher of Jacksonville, Fia., Mr. Paul S. Tumison and Mr. W. S. Banta of New York, also Mr. Cottrell of New York, who is an adept at deep-water fishing; his catch for five days was, sixteen, thirty, fourteen, seventeen and twenty, some of them weighing fifteen

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ross have gone to Peteroro' on a visit.

Mrs. C. W. and Miss Muriel Taylor leave for the seashore in a few days. Mr. and Mcs. Thomas Storey have gone for a rip to the seashore.

Miss May Fitzsimmons has returned from Toronto, where she has been attending school. Miss Fitzsimmons was the proud winner of a solid gold bracelet given as a priz 3.

Mrs. C. B. Hayes of Ballarat, Australia, and Mrs. W. J. Spottiswood of San Francisco, are guests of Mrs. D. F. Haves of James street. Mr. Henry Starnes and daughter, of Mont real, are guests of Mrs. W. A. Reid.

The exigencies of party warfare are about to remove from our midst Mr. J. T. Eilis, U. S. Consul at this place. Mr. Ellis does not, more than the rest of us, regret his departure; the position has never been filled by a more affable or genial gentleman. Mrs. and Miss Eilis have made a host of friends during their stay here and they also will be greatly missed.

Miss Ella McLellan of Belleville is visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Wm. Sutherland and children left by teamer Ocean for Ingersoll to visit friends. Mr. A. W. Fairbairn of Montreal spent Saturday and Sunday with friends here.

Our young townsman, Mr. C. W. F. Gorrell, passed his medical "exam." at McGill College with first-class honors. Mr. Gorrell expects to graduate in April next. Our hustling sce aic artist, Mr. A. L. Murray has been successful in securing for the use of the R. & O. Nav. Co. at the World's Fair a splendid lot of island views, also steamers loaded with Christian Endeavorers passing through the islands.

Mr. George Taylor, M.P., of Gananoque was in town on Friday of last week.

Miss Leah Alguire of Syracuse is visiting friends here. Miss M. Heynan of Pembroke is a guest of Mrs. (Hon.) C. F. Fraser at Union Park. Mrs. Alex. Fraser has for a guest Miss Mills of Ottawa.

Prof. Mattoon of Columbus, Ohio, has arrived to take charge of the organ in the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. Daniel Fleming of Gault Bros., Montreal is in town.

The lawn social on the St. Vincent de Paul grounds on Thursday of last week was a great success. Prof. Bach, of the Island City Band, pleased the gathering with two beautifully rendered cornet solos.

Mr. James A. Demarest, an old New Jersey newspaper man, has been appointed U. S. Consul here, and will assume office July 29.

Hon, C. F. Fraser is now paying his respects to the maskinonge, having tired of black bass. Rockford, the fine old residence of the Jones family, at one time the social hub of Brock ville, has been opened for the summer and Mr. Heben Jones and family, of Boston, with a brother and sister's children, are in occupation.
Mr. G. J. Mallory and family are enjoying themselves at Union Park.
Bev. John and Mrs. Alexander of Toronto

S. W. Cor. Yonge and Queen

Building Sale

MORE sorts, more loveliness than you ever saw in the Summer Goods of this housetwice over, may be, what you'll find in any other store.

nd in any other store.

Pongor Silks, over 50 shades, light and dark, best quality, 25.

22-inch Black Chinas, 25c.

23-inch Black Chinas, 25c.

23-inch Black Chinas, 25c.

24-inch Brama and Sild Cords, 50c., were $5c.

Silk Mixtures, abot effects, 30c., were $1.

Dress Robes, ellk mixtures, abot effects, $14, were $19;

310. were $15; $2c.

Dress Robes, ellk mixtures, abot effects, $14, were $19;

310. were $15; $2c.

Vere $15; $2c.

Lawa Flouncing; $1 inch hem and tucks, $2c.; regular price $2c.

Lawa Flouncing; $1 inch hem and tucks, $2c.; regular price $2c.

Lawa Flouncing; $1 inch hem and tucks, $2c.; regular price, $3c.

One-lach Tack Flouncing, $20c., worth 30c.

Ladies Silk and Lace Mitte, $15c.

Ceylon Flauncie, for summer costumes, $2c.

Ampeter Carpet, extra value, $3c.;

Camping Bed, woven wire mixtress, $145.

A strong feature of the Mail

A strong feature of the Mail Order system is the promptness in filling orders.

R. SIMPSON

W. cor. Yonge and Queen | Entrance Yonge Street Streets, Toronto. | Entrance Queen Street Stores Nos. 174, 176, 178 Yonge Street, and I and 3 Que treet West.

Niagara Falls Line Steamers GARDEN CITY EMPRESS OF INDIA LAKESIDE

Daily from Milloy's Wharf at 7.50 a.m. and 3 15 p.m. for Port Dailhousis, connecting with G. T. R. for ST. CATHA. RINES, points on the Welland division NIAGARA FALLS, BUFFALO, NEW YORK, and all points East and South; also at 7 pm. for St. Catharines only.

Tickets at all G. T. R. and principal ticket offiles and on wharf. For extursion rates and general information, apply at Head Offile on Milloy's Wharf or Telephone 260.

Niagara River Line 4 TRIPS DAILY

CHICORA and CIBOLA COMMENCING THURSDAY, JUNE 1

Will leave Goddes' Wharf daily (except Sunday) at 7 a.m., 11 a.m., 2 p.m. and 4 45 p.m. for Niagara, Q teenston and Lewiston, connecting with New York Central, Michigan Central Railways and Niagara Falls Park and River Electric Bad—the short route is Falis, Buffalo, New York and all points east.

Tickets at all principal office and on wharf.

JOHN FOY, Manager.

HAMILTON STEAMBOAT CO.

MACASSA and MODJESKA FROM GEDDES' WHARF

FOUR TRIPS EACH WAY DAILY

Lave TORONTO 7.30 and "11 a.m., 2 and "5.15 p.m. Leave HAMILTON "7.46 and 10.45 s.m., 2 15 and "5.30 p.m. "Calls at Oakville, weather permitting. J. B. GRIFFITH, F. ARMSTRONG, Manager, Agent. J. B. GRIFFITH, Manager.

Steamer GREYHOUND

THREE TRIPS DAILY

Leaves Milloy's Wharf, 10 a.m., 2 and 5.15 p.m. Leaves Park at 11 30 a.m., 4 and 7 p.m. Extra trip on Wednes-days and Saturdays. City 8 15 p.m., and Park 9 30 p.m. Very Cheap Rates for Excursions During August Apply— PETER McINTYRE, 87 York Street, FRED ROPER, 2 Tgronto Street.

Special Excursion

S. S. MARIPOSA OF THE BEAVER LINE For particulars apply to-

Barlow Cumberland Agency

UNARD

Agent also for Alian, State, Dominion, Beaver, Hamburg, Netherlands, Wison and French Lines.

A. F. WEBSTER King and Yonge Sta.

RED STAR LINE Belgian Royal and

New York to Antwerp and Paris We'tneedays and Satur-days. Highest-class Measurers with polatial equipment Examino lichate valid to return by Reil Sizer Line frees Antwerp, or American Line from London, Southampton or Harre. Ask for "Facile for Travelers."

BARLOW CUMBERLAND, Agent 12 Yonge Street, Toronto

are guests of Mrs. Heman Shepherd, Market

For Choice Patterns...

... Sterling Silver After Dinner Coffee Spoons Souvenir Spoons and Novelties

In fact for everything in Silverware visit the Salesrooms of

The TORONTO SILVER PLATE CO.

570 King Street West

E. C. GOODERHAM, Manager

MILLINERY AND DRESSMAKING 66

MISS MILLS, Dressmaking Parlors,

Having leased the premises recently occupied by the late MISS MORRISON, I have opened the same with an entirely new etock, comprising all the latest designs in

Parisian and American Pattern Hats and Bonnets

The Dressmaking Department under my own supervision. MISS M. A. ARMSTRONG

41 King St. West, Toronto ARTISTIC: DRESSMAKING Mrs. J. P. KELLOGG, 15 Grenville St.

Ladies' Evening Gowns and Empire Effects
a Specialty
High class costuming after French and American measurements.

SUMMER FOOTWEAR

L IFE IS TOO SHORT TO punish your feet by wearing shoes that do not fit. Our Shoes are famout. Our Styles are capturing. Our Qualities are enduring. Our Fit is perfection. Our prices are reasonable. Examine our English Oxfords, Bluoher Oxfords, Russia Tan Goat, Tan Goat, White Canvas, Brown Canvas and Red Goat Cxfords. 20 p. o. discount off all Red Shoes in Ladles' sizes. H. & C. BLACHFORD 83 to 89 Toronto

WALLACE'S BOOT AND SHOE HOUSE

LAWN TENNIS AND BICYCLE SHOES

110 YONGE STREET Between Star and News Offices

CHAS. E. BURNS ORNE PARK Steamship Tickets LOWEST RATES

CHAS. E. BURNS, 77 Yonge Street

NEXT TO MAIL BUILDING

TORONTO durniture SUPPLY CO.

56 King Street West - - TORONTO ******************

Do not hay reprint or harden are guests of Mrs. Relation of the IR. is in to wn.

Mr. Alex Powell of New York are guests of Mr. John Waters.
Mr. J. W. Tims of the Bunk of Moutreal, Chatham, wife and family are guests of Mrs. Robert Fitz-timmons.
Mrs. F. E. and Miss Edyth Fairbairn are visiting friends in Toronto.
The Hon. C. F. Feaser worse a radiant smile the other day while showing a 281b maskinonge he was successful in landing with a light silk line.

BROCK.

BROCK.

STANDARD DRESS BONES

The steel is extra quality, non-corrosive, metal tipped, securely stitched and fastened in a covering of superior sateen. Can be relied on not to stain, cut through at the ends, or become detached.

Ask for Them

They are the Best SOLD BY

All the Leading Retail Dry Goods Merchant Throughout the Dominion

Armand's Hair and Perfumery Store

ARMAND'S HAIR AND PERFUMERY STORE
Cor. Youge and Carlton Sts., Toronto, Ont.

PEMBER'S HAIR STORE

127 Yonge St (a Doors scan of Arcade) Ladies, we have just innorted a large stack of first untilly Cut Hair, and an inrecepared to sell at lawwest rices. Switches from $1;
pwards: Bangs from $1;
pwards: Bangs from $1;
pwards all of finest quality atural curly hair and any hair Ladier Hair breaked hair rices or other liness, and the sell of the sell of the hoto, etc. for Weddings, hoto, etc. Byeing and Bleaching A full line of ornaments in latest designs.

W. T. PEMBER 137 Young Street

DORENWEND'S

Bangs 75e up. Switches $1 Wigs $3 Toupees $10 Waves $2 Plain Fronts $2

Telephone 1551

R All fonds at Bot-tom Prices

Fans, Jewelry Hair Ornaments Fancy Goods Perfumes Brushes Combs, &c AT COST Ladies' Hair-dressing Parlors—the best in the city. 103 & 105 Youge St.

TORONTO

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR THE MONSOON" TEAS

Indian and Ceylons The most delictous Teas on the market STEEL, HAYTER & CO.

Machines Rented. Operators Supplied

GEO. BENGOTOR 45 Adelaids Street East, Toronto.

July

The stu

form a gif this the deat wildly to consciou "Oh, Her pi conscious hurled signal fell with "I—I eracked her! A robbed r See, wh Ah, sign ing more "I pour nothing for I loved!" "Husl somewh dauger, "Go qui" "No, blanchec police, a murdere "Man sudden feeling! haudker pocket. she whi the wou Conte as she bad where it is from t baide the bof the bof of the bean erring to death were at with ski and secu She was he had o scious of watching watching looked ap metrate ling visithis clothe examining but finding the many watched the keenly we the action to the fall by the in piece of here.

the wear Then on he listen hearing I He glast ask, hid

her posit Hesita drew a d t he bag l jewels at of pearls These went qu'rings, buy ruby, dis
s tisfacti
s steinis
"Is—is lips were ed round pulse her "No," the woun fear inte
At tha followed dark eye momente

as they r

as they r ing over
"Ah," Cornel's, Good for her lips whispere
A curic
Conte, w and Val where he

from out "You once mor satisfied satisfied killed my I was sol heaven true, lovi "Oh, V groaned "Pahl and she

THE TIGER LILY

THE STORY OF A WOMAN.

By G. MANVILLE FENN

Author of "Black Blood," "The Parson o' Dumford," "The Master of the Ceremonies,"
"A Mint of Money," &c., &c.

"It is a fact, sir. I have heard that Della-toria is deadly with sword or pistol, and he has been out before. Good heavens! Miss Thorpe; are you there?"

CHAPTER XXVII.

What to do? Leronde a prisoner; Pacey threatening legal steps. He must go somehow. The only way open appeared to be this: he must leave London at once, telegraphing to the Conte that he had gone on and would meet nim and his friends at the principal hotel in Oatend.

Ostend.

Armstrong, after much mental struggling, had come to this decision, when there was a knock at the door.

"Too late," he muttered. Then aloud, "Come in!" and Keren-Happuch entered.

"If you please, sir, there's—"

"I know," he said shortly. "Show them up."

"Please, sir, fit ain't them; it's her."

"What!" he cried, starting. "Whom do you mean!"

again."

He paused and then went on as if she had just spoken something which coincided with

It is a dream."
He shook his head and passed his hand across to the end, but you are pushing me to the very brink. Will you go?"

"Yes." said Pacey, buttoning up his coat.
"I'm off now, boy."
"Where?"
"Straight to the police. I'll swear a breach of the peace against you both, and have you selzed or bound over or something. This meeting shan't take place. For Cornel's sake—do you hear? For her eake, so there!"
He strode to the door, unlocked it, and opened and banged it behind him, while Armstrong stood 'hinking what course he ought to pursue, while Pacey went straight away, not to the police, but to Thorpe's hotel, where he told the doctor how matters stood.
"I don't know what you are to do, sir," cried Thorpe. "I wash my hands of the whole business. He has behaved horribly to my poor sister, and turned her brain. Let him go and be shot."
"Likely," growled Pacey. "Nice Christian advice to give. Why, it would kill her."
"Not it. She has too much womanly determination in her, poor girl. But I can do nothing. She has been to him again and again in opposition to my wishes; forgotten all her woman's dignity."
"To try and save your old schoolfellow, her lover."
"Bal! She has cast him off, sir, as the CHAPTER XXVI. THE NEWS SPREADS.

"If I have sined," muttered Armstrong, as he leaned back in his chair, for, when from time to time he tried to walk about, a painful sensation of giddiness seized upon him, "I am having a foretaste of my punishment. How long he is—how long he is!"

But still Leronde did not come, and to occupy his mind the sufferer sat and thought out a plan for their journey, which he concluded would mean a cab to Liverpool street, then the express to Harwich, the boat to Ostend; next where the seconds willed, and afterwards—"What?" said the wretched man with a strange smile. "Ah, who knows? If It could only be oblivious—rest from all misery and despair!"

strange smile. "Ah, who knows! It it could only be oblivious—rest from all misery and despair!"
He rose to try and write a letter or two, notably one to Cornel, but the effort was painful, and he cragt back to his chair.

"She will know—she will divine—that I preferred to die," he muttered. "Ah, at last! Why, he has been hours."
For there was a step outside, and then the door was thrown open as he lay back with his aching eyes shaded by his hand.
"Come at last then," he sighed; and the next moment he started, for the studio door was banged to, and locked. "You, Joe!"
"Yes, I've come at last," cried Pacey, thrusting his hands into his pockets and striding up to stand before him with his legs far apart.
"Well, then, shake hands and go," said Armstrong quietly. "I am not well. I've had an accident."
"Accident i" roared Pacey. "Yes, you have had an accident, the same as a man has who goes and knocks his head against a wall."
"What do you mean!" cried Armstrong, starting.
"Mean! I mean that you're the biggest fool

"To try and save your old schoolfellow, ner lover."

"Bah! She has cast him off, sir, as the scoundrel deserved."

"Not she," said Pacey. "She loves him still in spite of all, and in time she would forgive him. if he behaved like a man."

"Not if I can prevent it," retorted Thorpe, "She shall not forgive him."

"Well, sir, "said Pacey, "I have not come to dispute with you about that. He is almost your brother, and he is in deadly peril of his life. That Italian has challenged 'nim; they will fight, as sure as we stand here, and the malignant, spiteful scoundrel will shoot Armstrong like a dog."

"Nonsense! What can he care for such a wife!"

"What do you mean?" cried Armstrong, starting.
"Mean? I mean that you're the biggest fool that fortune ever pampered and spoiled."
"Joe Pacey!"
"Hold your tongue, idiot, and listen to me. Here you are gifted by nature with tea times the brains of an ordinary man; you can paint like Raphael or Murillo; fame and fortune are at your feet; and you have the love waiting for you of one of the sweetest, most angelic women who ever stepped this earth."
"Pacey!"

"Nonsense! What can he care for such a wife!"
"Nothing; but his honor is at stake."
"His honor!" cried Thorpe contemptuously.
"Exactly so. What such men call their honor. Armstrong will evade me somehow, and go off to Belgium I am sure; and if he does, he is so careless of his own life now in his despair, misery and degradation that he will never come back alive."
"Plah!"
"It is a fact, sir. I have heard that Dellayou of one of the sweetest, most angent women who ever stepped this earth."
"Pacey!"
"Hold your tongue, boy! Haven't I been like a father to you ever since you came into this cursed village? Haven't I devoted myself to you as soon as I saw you were a good fellow, full of genius? I'm a fool to say so, but in my wretched, wrecked life, I felt that I'd found something to live for at last, and that I could be proud and happy in seeing you, who are as much an Englishman as I am in blood, rise to the highest pitch of success; while, if you got proud then and forgot me, it wouldn't matter; I could afford it, for you had achieved success."
"You've been a good, true adviser to me, Joe, ever since I have known you."
"And you have turned out the most ungrateful dog that ever breathed. Morals? You've no more morals than a mahlstick. You had everything man could wish for, and then you must kick it all over and break the heart of an angel." are you there?"
"Yes," said Cornel slowly, as she came for ward from the door leading into an inner room. "I have heard every word."

must kick it all over and break the heart of an angel.

"Let her rest. Say what you like to bully me, Joe. It's all true. I don't fight against it. But you can't understand it all. Say what you like, only go and leave me. I want to be alone.

"Do you i' cried Pacey excitedly. "Then I don't want you to be. So the Coate gave you that crack on the head, did he?"

"What!" cried Armstrong, springing up. "How came you to think that?"

"How came I to think that? Why, I was told by a chattering French ape."

"Leronde? Told you?"

"Of course he did. Came to me to be your other second."

"The idiot! Where is he?"

other second."
"The idiot! Where is he?"
"Locked up where he'll stay till I let him

"What?" he cried, starting. "Whom do you mean?"
"Her in the thick veil, sir, as come before."
"Great heavens!" panted Armstrong; and his brain seemed to reel. "No. I cannot—I will not see her."
"M I to tell her so, sir?" cried the girl joyfully, "and send her away?"
"Yes, I'll gu no farther," he muttered.
"Send her away at once."
The girl turned to the door, but, as she twisted the handle, it moved in her hand, the door was pushed against her, and as she gave way, the closely veiled and cloaked figure walked slowly into the room.
Armstrong turned savagely upon Keren-Happuch. loose," Armstrong used a strong expression.
"And so we must have a duel, must we?
Go out to Belgium to fight this Italian organgrinder. Curse him and his Jezebel of a wife!"
"Silence, man!" cried Armstrong excitedly.
"Pacey, no more of this. Where is Leronde?
He must be set free at once, My honor is at walka."

walked slowly into the room.

Armstrong turned savagely upon KerenHappuch.

"Gol" he said sharply.

"I knowed it," muttered the girl as she went out. "Men can't keep to their words, and it's very hard on us poor girls."

Armstrong stood facing his visitor as the door closed, and then the giddiness came over him again, and he staggered to a chair, dropped into it, and his head fell upon his hand.

"How could you be so mad?" he groaned.

"Go back to vour husband; we shall never meet again. Woman, you have been a curse to me and ruined my poor life. But there, I will not reproach you.

He closed his eyes, for his senses nearly left him, and his visitor stood gazing sadly down at him not a yard awav.

"I suppose you will despise me," he groaned,
"but I cannot help that. You will think that I ought to hold to you now and save you from your husband's anger. But I can do nothing.
Broken, conscience-stricken, if ever poor wretch was in despair it is I. There, for God's sake go back to him. He will forgive you as I ask you to forgive me. We must never meet saain." He must be set free at once. My honor is at stake."

"His what?" cried Pacey, bursting into a roar of ironical laughter. "My God! His honor! Why, you adulterous dog, you talk to me of honor and dueling, and all that cursed, sickly, contemptible code that ought to have been dead and buried, and wondered at by us as a relic of the dark ages—you talk to me of that? Why, do you know what it means? First and foremost, murdering Cornel Thorpe, for, as sure as heaven's above us, that organ man will shoot you like the dog you are, and in killing you he'll kill that poor girl. I swear it. She can't help it. She gave her love to you, poor lassie, and she's the kind of woman who loves once and for all. There's the first of it. As for you, well, the best end of you is that you should be buried at once, out of the way, as you would be if I let you go to meet this man."

"If you let me?" raged Armstrong.

way, as you would be if I let you go to meet this man."

"If you let me?" raged Armstrong.

"Yes: if I let you; for I won't. Why, you're mad. That Jezebel has turned your brain, and I'll have you in a strait waistcoat, and then in a padded room, before I'll let you go to save your honor and his. Ha! ha! His honor! The Italian greyhound. He never took any notice of his wife till he found that she had a lover, but was after as many light-famed creatures as there are cards in the devil's books. Then—his honor! Ha! ha!—his honor! Why, the whole gang of French and Italian monkeys never knew what honor is, and never will. Now then, I said I'd thrash you, and I have. I only wish Deliatoria had nearly fractured your skull so as to make you an invalid for six months. Look here, I've locked up Leronde, and if the Conte comes here I'll kick him downstairs."

and if the Conte comes never it as a stairs."

"You are mad. I must meet him," said Armstrong sternly.

"I'm not mad, and you sha'n't meet him."

"You mean well, Pacey, but it is folly to go on like this. Run back and set Leronde at liberty."

"I'm going to do what I like, not what you like," cried Pacey flercely, pulling out a knife; "and first of all, I'll finish that cursed picture."

He swung the great easel round, and in a few minutes had slashed the canvas to ribbons and torn it from the frame.

minutes had slashed the canvas to ribbons and torn it from the frame.

"There's an end of that," he roared.
"So much the better," said Armstrong, who had looked on unmoved.
"Oh, you like that then," cried Pacey.
"You're coming round."
"Now go," said Armstrong, "and end this folly."

folly."
"You'll swear first of all that you will not meet this man."

"Fil swear I will," said Armstrong coldly.
"Fil swear I will," said Armstrong coldly.
"He'll shoot you dead."
"I hope so."
"Armstrong, lad, listen to me," said Pacey.
"You'll be sensible."
"Yee."
"And give it up? For poor Corpal's sake."

Xes."
And give it up? For poor Cornel's sake."
Slience, or you'll drive me really mad."
Now then, get your hat and come with

"Now then, got your nat and white with me."
"Will you got"
"Will you come with me?"
"Look here," said Armstrong, "I can bear no more. I want to be cool and act like a man

He shook his head and passed his hand across his eyes to try and sweep away the mist that was gathering in his brain.

"No, no," he muttered again in a low tone; "a dream—a dream."

"No," came softly to his ears, "it is not a dream, Armstrong. It is I—Cornel."

"Why have you come?" he cried, roused by her words, and staggering up to grasp the maniel-piece and save himself from falling.

"To try and save you," she said sadly.
"Armstrong, you are going to fight this man?" He was silent. The dreamy feeling was coming back.

"You do not say it. Armstrong—brother—companion of my childhood—you must not, ovou shall not do this wicked thing. Think of it. Your life against his. The shame—the horror of the deed."

He laughed softly.
"I have sinned enough," he said. "He will not fell"

He laughed softly.

"I have sinned enough," he said. "He will not fall."

"Will the sin be less if you let bim in your despair take his enemy's life. This is madness. Armstrong, you cannot—you shall not go."

He was silent.

"What am I to say to you again?" she pleaded. "You are like stone. Must I humble myself to you once more, and cast off all a woman's modesty and dignity? Armstrong, weak, doting as its, I tell you I forgive you, dear, only promise me that you will not go."

He passed his hand across his eyes as he clung to the shelf to keep himself from falling, and said in a low dreamy voice:

"An insult to you—a degradation to me to take your pardon. No! and once more, no! Now, if you have any feeling for me, leave me to myself, for I have much to do."

"You will prepare to go?"

He remained stubbornly silent with his eyes half closed.

"Then," she cried passionately, as she saw him sway gently to and fro as if prior to falling helpless upon the floor, "I will saw your life like this. You are weak, half-delirlous and cannot command even your thoughts. You shall not go."

He opened his eyes widely, and it was as if took some moments for him to grasp her words. Then, with a little laugh, he said softly:

"How will you stop me, Cornel?"

"How will you stop me, Cornel?"

"I would sooner see you dead."

"Well then—dead—dead—at rest. Why not? You are mistress of all his secrets—all his drugs—why not? I have injured you; kill me now—at once."

"Are you really mad, Armstrong?" she said, looking at him wonderingly.

drugs—why not? I have injured you; kill me now—at once."

"Are you really mad, Armstrong?" she said, looking as him wonderingly.

"Yes—I suppose so—my head swims. But it is time to go."

"Go?—go where?" she cried excitedly.

He uttered a low laugh and shook his head as if to clear it again, but the vertigo increased.

She started and looked wildly round with her eyes flashing, and a strangely set look of determination came over her face as she took a step to a table upon which stood a carafe of water and a glass, which she rapidly filled. Then, going toward him again she hesitated once more and her whole manner changed.

"Armstrong!" she cried, but he did not hear her, "Armstrong!"

her, "Armstrong!"
She shook him, and he sprang up, fully roused now.
"Ah!" he muttered. "Giddy from the blow."

He took a step or two to the side, and caught the back of the chair.
"You are going!" she said mockingly.
He looked at her sharply.
"You will not go," she said. "It is all a braggart's boast, to hide the cowardice in your heart."

"What!" he cried wildly.
"A man who is going to fight does not tell his friends for fear they should stop him."
"No," he groaned. "I'm not myself. What have I said?"

have I said?"
"Coward's words," she cried, "to frighten a weak girl. You bade me poison you to end your mi-erable life."

L-I said that?" he cried. "Well, why not?"

"Why not?" she said, gazing at him fixedly.
"Why not! Look, then."
He bent forward, wondering as he struggled with the fit that was coming on again, while she took a bottle from the little satchel hanging from her wrist, snatched out the stopper, and poured a portion of its contests into the glass.

and poured a portion of its contests into the glass.

"There!' she cried triumphantly. "The test. Poison—one of our strongest drugs. Are you brave enough to drink!"

He took a step forward, seized the glass, tottered for a moment, and let a little splash over the side on to the floor. Then, drawing himself up, he placed the vessel to his lips and drained it—the last drop seeming to scald his throat, and making him drop the tumbler and clash his hands to his lips.

Then, half turning round, he thrust out his hands again, as if feeling, like one suddenly struck blind, for something to save himself from failing. A moment later he lurched suddenly, his legs gave way beneath him, and he sank heavily upon the floor.

CHAPTER XXVIII. TWO WOMEN'S LOVE.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

TWO WOMEN'S LOVE.

A woman with the flerce lurid look of a tigress in her dark eyes, and in her action as lithe and elastic, paced up and down her bed-room hour after hour. Now she threw herself upon a couch in utter exhaustion, but anon sprang up again to resume the hurried walk to and fro.

At times she went to the door to open it and listen, for it was secured only by the locks and bolts of the Grundy patent, Dellatoria, in spite of his newly awakened jealous rage, feeling that his wife would join him in keeping the servants in ignorance of their terrible rupture. But all was still downstairs; and at last, enforcing an outward appearance of composure, Valentina changed her dress, bathing her burning eyes with spirit-secuted water, and went down to her boudoir, where she turned down the lamp beneath its rose-colored shade, and rang the bell before scating herself in a lounge with her back half-turned from the door.

"Pretty well time," said the butler, who had been heading the discussion below stairs regarding the meaning of what had taken place.

"The footman presented himself at the door.

"Your ladyship rang."

"Yes. Where is your master?"

"In the lib'ry, my lady."

"Alone?"

"No, my lady. Colonel Varesti and Baron

"Alone!"
"Alone!"
"No, my lady. Colonel Varesti and Baron Gratz are with him again."
"That will do."
"Yes, my lady."
The man hesitated at the door.
"Well!"
"Does your ladyship, wish the dinner to be

He paused and then went on as if she had just spoken something which coincided with his thoughts.

"You will despise me and think me weak, but I am near the end, and I do not shrink from speaking and telling you that I go to meet your husband with the knowledge that I have broken the heart of as pure and true a woman as ever breathed."

A low pitiful sigh came from behind the vell.
"Don't, for heaven's sake, don't now. It is all over; the mad comedy is played out—all but the last seene. Try and forget it all, and go, with the knowledge that his life is safe for me, for I will not raise my hand against him, that I swear."

He uttered a low moan, for the place seemed strange to him, and his words far distant and as if spoken by someone else. Incipient delirium was creeping to assaut his brain, and in another minute he would have been quite insensible; but a hand was laid upon his shoulder and the touch electrified him, making him spring wildly from his sest with a cry.

"No, no," he cried passionately, and with his eyes flashing; "slave to you no more. I tell you, woman, all is over between us. For the few hours left me, let ms be in peace."

The veil was slowly drawn aside, and he clapped his hands to his temples and bent forward, gazing at her.

"Cornel!" he muttered—"Cornel!—No, no! It is a dream." The man hesitated at the door.

"Well!"
"Does your ladyship wish the dinner to be served!"
"No; wait till your master orders it. I am unwell. Give me that facon of salts."
The man handed the large cut glass bottle, and went down.
The aspect of languor passed away in an instant, and Valentina sprang to her feet.
"I might have known it." she panted. "He is no coward when he is roused, despicable as he is at other times. Those men. It means a meeting. They will fight, and—"
She clapped her hands to her forehead as in imagination she saw Armstrong lying bleeding at her husband's feet. Strong and maniy as he was, she doubted the artist's ability to stand before a man like the Conte, who had often boasted to her of his skill with the small sword, and ability as a marksman.
"And I have wasted all this time," she muttered.
Then after a few moments' thought, divining.

Then after a few moments' thought, divining

tered.

Then after a few moments' thought, divining that the inevitable meeting would take place abroad, she went up at once to her bed-room and locked herself in.

Her brain was still misty and confused by the intense excitement through which she had passed, for upon reaching home and savagely dismissing Lady Grayson, the Conte had turned upon her furiously. The passion of his southern nature had been aroused, and a mad jealousy developed itself respecting the woman whom of late he had utterly neglected.

In a few moments, though, her mind was made up, and taking a small dressing-bag she rapidly emptied into it the whole of the costly contents of her fewel cases, unlocked a small cabinet and took from it what money she had left, and then hastily dressed for going out.

A very few minutes sufficed for this, and, after pausing for a few moments to collect herself, she took up the beg, and unlocking the door passed out sliently on to the thickly carpeted landing, descended to the hall, where she paused again as she heard a low buzz of voices in the library, and then walked quickly to the door, passed out, and hurried up the wide street, breathing freely as she felt that she had been unobserved.

Not quite. Ladies in large establishments live bereath the observation of many eyes, and Valentina had no sconer begun to descend the stairs than a white cap was thrust out from the door of a neighboring room, and the eyes beneath it were immediately after looking down the great staircase, while a pair of sars twitched as they listened till the front door was heard to close.

The next minute the wearer of the cap was in the bed and dreasing rooms, gazing at the empty jewel-cases, noting the absence of the bag, cloak and bonnet, even to the veil; and then came the low elaculation of the one word, "Well!"

The Abigail ran down the back stairs and made her way into the hall just in time to meet the butler returning from ushering out the Conte's two friends, who had been closeted with him, consulting as to what proceedings should be taken, as there had been no appearance put in by the other side.

The butler heard the lady's-maid's hurried communication, nodded sagely, and said ora-cularly that he wasn't a bit surprised. Then coughed to clear his voice, waved the maid away, closed the baize door after her, and entered the library and whispered what he had heard.

The Conte did not even change countenance, "Stop all tattling amongst the servants." he tered the library and whispered what he had heard.

The Conte did not even change countenance.

"Stop all tattling amongst the servants," he said. "Her ladyship is not well—a strange seizure to-day. It must be past the dinner hour."

The butler bowed.

"Let it be served at once."

The butler bowed again and went out solemply.

The butler bowed again and went out solemnly.

The moment he was alone, a sharp grating sound was heard, and a strange look came over the Conte's face as he hastily opened a cabinet, took something from a drawer and placed it in his breast pocket. Then, hurrying upstairs, he satisfied himself of the truth he had heard and descended, took his hat from the stand and went out quietly, unheard even by the servants.

went out quiety, sand wants, Meanwhile, Valentina had disappeared, and walked straight to the studio.

The street door was ajar, for Keren-Happuch had just gone into the next street to post a letter at the pillar, so the closely veiled woman passed in unseen and went upstairs, stood for a few moments listening and then softly entared.

had just gone into the next street to post a letter at the pillar, so the closely veiled woman passed in unseen and went upstairs, stood for a few moments listening and then softly entered.

She uttered a low sigh of relief, glad to have entered the place which, for a moment, felt to her like a refuge.

It was many hours since she had been surprised there by her husband and Lady Grayson, but to her then it seemed only a few minutes before, and she looked round the great dim rusen quickly, with a smile upon her lips.

But the smile froze there and a horrible sensation of fear came over her. She had waited too long. There must have been a challenge from her husband, and Armstrong had gone. Yes, the street door open; the studio unfastened; and this dim light! Then she was too late; he had gone. But where!—Belgium!—France? The thought was horrible—almost more than she could bear.

"No, no," she murmured. "It cannot be."

She advanced into the great dim place excitedly, with the great grim-looking plaster figures and busts seeming to watch her furtively out of the gloom, and as she looked quickly from side to side she fancied that the faces were menacing and full of reproach, as if telling her that she had sent her lover to his death.

She had nearly crossed the room when she started and shrank back in horror, for one of the rugs had been kicked slightly aside, and there was a wet, dark mark upon the boards, which she knew at a glance to be blood—his blood, for it was here he had fallen when her husband struck him down.

With the faintest of hopes, amid her despair, that she might still be in time, she went on to the inner door, seized the handle and was pressing it open, but it was twisted from her ringers; the door opened and she was about to fling herself into Armstrong's arms, but only shrank back with a cry of jealous rage and despair, she might have been dead of the close of the contessa could command herself sufficiently to speak aloud. She wished to get from Cornel's eyes were confirming her worst dread and had lashed herself into a state of fury that she could force herself to speak.

"Mr. Dale—where is he?" she said at last imperiously.

"How dare you come and ask?" replied Cornel fiercely, her whole manner changed.

"Because I have a right," cried Valentina, who stung now by Cornel's words began to recover herself. Her eves too dilated as she went on, and something of her old hauteur and contempt fished out.

"You?—a right?"

"Yes; the right of the woman he loves—who has given up everything for his sake."

"Loves! The woman he loves!" cried Cornel contemptuously.

"Yes, and who isves him as such a wuman as I can love. Do you think that you, in your girlish coldness, could ever have won him as I have? Tell me where he is."

"That you may join him?" cried Cornel.

"You would give him over to your husband—to that horror—and his death."

"Ah!" cried Valentina excitedly; "then he has not gone yet. He is safe." And in spite of herself her eyes were flooded by a hysterical burst of tears.

"What is it to you?" cried Cornel coldly.

"He has escaped fsom your hands. You have muright here, woman. Go."

"I am right then," cried the Contessa, mastering her weakness once more. "You are trying to keep us apart. He is mine, I tell you, mine for ever. He is there then; I am not too late—there in that room. Armstrong!" she cried loudly, "come to me. I am here.

She made for the door again, but Cornel seized her and strove with all her might to keep the furious woman back, but she was like a child in her hands and was flung aside, and Valentina thrust open the door, entered the study, and passed through it to the chamber beyond to utter a wild cry and fall upon her knees beside the bed on which Armstrong lay cold and still.

Then, starting up, she bent over him, laid her hand upon his brow, her cheek against his back into your power," said Cornel, bitterly,

TEABERRY.

"Ah! You own it then? Oh! it is too horrible. You own it then? Oh! it is too horrible. You own it then? Oh! it is too horrible. You own it then? Oh! it is too horrible. You own it then? Oh! it is too horrible. He had not a select Cornel by the arm, threw down the bag, which flew open so that the jewels scattered on the floor, and tried to drag her toward the studio door, calling hoarsely for help, but her voice rose to the lofty ceiling and not a sound was heard in the house.

But Cornel resisted now with all her might,
and in the struggle which ensued wrested herself away, ran across the studio, darted through the door of the little study, dashed it to, and had time to slip the bolt before her rival flung herself against it, and then beat heavily against the panel with her hand.
Pale as ashes and panting with excitement.
Cornel stood with her left shoulder pressed against the panel, feeling the blows struck upon it through the wood as, with her eyes fixed and strained, she felt about for the key, her hand trembling so when she touched it that she could hardly turn it in the lock.
"No, no," she muttered. "I'll die sooner than she shall touch him again."
Then she held her breath, listening, for she fancied she heard a sound in the studio above the beating on the panel, which suddenly culminated in one strangely given blow, accompanied by a wild shriek of agony and followed by a heavy fall and a piteous groan.

CHAPTER XXIX.

CHAPTER XXIX.

HER HUSBAND.

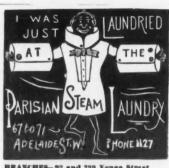

Startled beyond bearing by the sounds of mortal suffering, Cornel unfastened the door, drew it toward her and then stopped, utterly paralyzed by the scene in the studio.

There, not a yard away from the door, lay the beautiful woman, her face drawn in agony and horror, with the blood welling from a wound in her throat; her bonnet was back on her shoulders and her hair torn down as if a hand had suddenly been savagely laid upon her brow, her head dragged back and a blow struck at her from behind, while standing upon the other side, with his compressed lips drawn away from his set teeth, eyes nearly closed and brow contracted, was the Conte looking down at his work.

at his work.
For a few moments Cornel could not stir.

BRANCHES-93 and 729 Youge Street 'PHONES-1496 and 4087

FREDK. LYONDE High-Class Photographer

HAMILTON, ONT.

THE MERCHANTS' RESTAURANT
This well-known restaurant, having been recently sularged and refitted, offer great inducements to the public. The Dining-room is commodious and the Billi of Fare carefully arranged and obtoin, while has WINES and LEQUORS and ALES Cancel to surpress the surpress of the State of the Commodities of the State of the St

J. YOUNG THE LEADING UNDERTAKER 847 Yonge Street, Toronto TELEPHONE 679.

H. STONE & SON (B. STEND), UNDERTAKERS, 237 Yonge Street and she away, an them to have alw "No, n "To s merit." s "No, 1 again. I from all "Too have said "For 1 Cornel. "Why softly. "dear I softly. dear. I lead I had been to him a tell me y "With and she had with pit

is apt to for the l e bandaged cut v look, seen as amp upon the d have fallen

, the Contessa down the bag, ls scattered on r toward the help, but her d not a sound all her might, wrested herudio, darted ady, dashed it before her nd then beat r hand.

h excitement.
ulder pressed blows struck with her eyes for the key,
e touched it

ening, for she studio above ich suddenly en blow, ac-ony and fol-is groan.

ne sounds of ed the door, pped, utterly flo.
the door, lay wwn in agony ling from a was back on down as if a aid upon her blow struck as upon the lips drawn y closed and oking down ald not stir.

ALS

RIED

E

NDR)

127

tet

DE

apher

RANT

recently em-the public. of Fare care-d LIQUORS e surpassed. roprietor.

RESSES

SSED BY

) · RCA

ER

The studio with its many casts seemed to perform a ghastly dance round her, and she felt as it his were some horrible nightmare. Then the deathly sickness passed off, and she cried wildly to the Conte, who did not even seem conscious of her presence.

"Oh, heaven! What have you done?"
Her piteous appeal made him start back into consciousness, and with a hasty motion he hurled something across the studio, where it fell with a tinkling metallic sound.

"I—I struck her," he gasped in a harsh, cracked voice. "I loved her—ah, how I loved her! And she was false. Look; she had even robbed me and fled with all her jewels to him. See, where they lie scattered upon his floor. Ah, signora," he cried passionately, and growing more and more I talian in his excitement, "I poured out wealth at her feet. There was nothing I would not have done to gratify her; for I loved her—I loved her. Dio mio, how I loved!"

"Hush!" cried Cornel, recovering herself somewhat in the presence of suffering and danger, her medical education asserting itself. "Go quickly'and call help. Send for a surgeon." "No, no," he cried excitedly, as his face blanched with dread. "If I call, it means the police, and—oh horror! They will say I have murdered her."

"Man!" cried Cornel in disgust at his sudden display of selfishness, "have you no feeling! Is this your love? Quick! your handkerchief. Mine too; take it from my pocket. God help me and give me strength," she whispered as her busy flogers staunched the wound by closing the cut. Then, as the Conte stood looking on, trembling like a leaf, she bade him fetch a large wide lotah from where it stood upon a bracket, pour water into it from the carafe, and place it upon the floor beside the wounded woman's head.

And as she knelt there all hatred and horror of the beautiful woman bassed away. It was an erring sister and sufferer for sin, bleeding to death, and knowing how precious minutes were at such a time she tore up the handkerchiefs and portions of the Contesa's attire, as with skilled hands she checke examining his paims for traces of the deed, but finding none.

Then a fresh thought struck him, and after keenly watching Cornel to see if she noticed the action, he crept on tip-toe—a miserably bont, decrepti-looking figure—to where the tinkling sound had been heard, picked up a little ivory-handled stiletto, examined its blade in the faint light, with his back to the group by the inner room door, and, catching up a piece of Moorish scarf, wiped it quickly and hid the weapon in his breast pocket.

Then creeping on tip-toe to the studio door, he listened, his face full of abject fear, and hearing nothing, he turned the key.

He glaned toward Cornel, whose back was toward him, as she busily went on with her task, hiding, too, his wife's face from him by her position.

He glanced toward Cornel, whose back was toward him, as she busily went on with her cask, hiding, too, his wife's face from him by her position.

Hesitating for a moment or two, he then drew a deep breath and crossed softly to where the bag lay open with some of the glittering jewels still hangling to its edge; great strings of pearls and a necklet of diamonds.

These he hurriedly thrust back, and then went quickly and silently about, picking uprings, bracelets, brooches and tiaras of emerald, ruby, diamond and sapphire, till, with a sigh of stateming giving forth a loud snap.

"Is—is she dead?" he whispered; and his lips were so close to Cornel's ear that she started round and let fall the wrist upon whose pulse her fingers were pressed.

"No," she whispered. "I have staunched the wound till you can get proper help, but I fear internal bleeding."

At that moment there was a piteous sigh, followed by a low moan, and the beautiful dark eyes opened to gaz: vacantly for a few moments. Then intelligence came into them as they rested upon Cornel, who was now bending over her.

"Ah," she said softly, as her hand felt for Crnel's, which was laid upon her brow, "you? Good for evil;" and she drew Cornel's hand to her lips and kissed it. "Forgive me," she whispered, "before I die. I loved him so,"

A curiously harah, low cry escaped from the Conte, who literally writhed in jaslous agony, and Valentina turned her eyes upon him where he stood dimily seen as if looking at her from out of a mist.

"You there!" she said bitterly, as Cornel once more grasped her wrist. "Well, are you killed my love, when, as a young linocent girl I was sold to you fory our wealth and title, and heaven knows I would have tried to be your true, loving wife."

"On, Valentina! my beautiful—my own!" he groaned; and he stooped to take her hand.

"Pah! don't touch me," she cried hoarsely; and she raised the hand she had snatched away, and pointed to the bag he held. Take them to your mistresses whose smiles you have always bought. Let me die in peace

"For pity's sake don't speak," whispered Cornel.

"Why not, little doctor?" said Valentina softly. "Batter so. Ah. I was not all bad, dear. I loved him before I knew of you. How could I help looking on you with jealous hate? Let me kiss you once—before I go. Be loving to him and forgive him—it was all my fault—tell me you will torgive him—when I am gone?"

"With all my heart." said Cornel softly; and she bent down to press her lips to those of the suffering woman, while the tears over-ran her brimming eyelids and her heart swelled with pity for one so deeply punished for her sin.

But as if the Contessa recollected the scene of a short time before she thrust the gentle face away before lips touched lips, and with a loud cry.

"No, no; I had forgotten. I remember now. How could you be so base? No; don't touch me, I will see him once again. Armstrong! my love—my own."

She dragged herself over and began to crawl to the door, when the Conte's face became convulsed with passion ence more, his hand sought his breast, the bag fell to the ground, and with an oath he cried:

"Then he is in there—in hiding."

Springing over the crawling figure, he dashed into the room, and as Valentina uttered a piteous moan the Conteifung open the bed-room door.

"Dog!—Coward!" he yelled, and then stopped petrified at the sight of the motionless figure upon the bed, till the door swung to between them, and he thrust back the little blade, and came stealthly out muttering softly to him self and bent over his wife, insensible to all that passed.

He was trembling violently now.

"I did not know," he muttered to Cornel.

"I struck him when I found them together, but I did not know. I—I must go—away. Your laws are bad. An affair of honor. Will—will she die too!"

"I cannot say," replied Cornel coldly. "She must have better surgical help. I am only a nurse."

"Yes," he said hastily. "Better help. A great surgeon. She must not die. I will get a carriage and take her away."

"It would be dangerous to move her."

"Yes," he said hastily. "Better help. A great surgeon. She must not die. I will get a carriage and take her away."

"It would be dangerous to move her."

"Yes," he said hastily. "Better help. A great surgeon. She must not die. I will get a carriage and take her away."

"The enabled with the clasp of the beg he had pleted up, opened it, and as dard-der ran through her.

"Hah! Then the law need not meddle with what was a private quarrel—a mistake. My wife here shall live, and you who are so good and beautiful and pure, you shall be silent and one moment."

He fumbled with the clasp of the bag he had pleked up, op

Doth our sakes, and be stient, and bind to the past."

"I will be silent and blind for the sake of the man I loved," she said to herself as she thrust back the jewel and shook her head.

"But you will not tell?" he said.

"No, sir; your secret is said."

The Conte uttered a sigh of satisfaction, threw back the bracelet and closed the bag with a snap, while Cornel eyed him with discret.

with a snap, while Cornel eyed him with disgust.
"Do you intend to risk removing this lady?"
"Certainly," he said firmly: 'it must be done. Lock the door af.er me, "he whispered as he crossed the studio.

Cornel followed and obeyed, listening to his descending steps. Then, returning to where Valentina lay insensible, she satisfied herself of the security of the bandages and once more felt her pulse.
"If there is no internal bleeding she will live.
Yes, I will forgive you. Some day you may know the truth. And then? Ah, who can tell?"

Yes, I will forgive you. Some day you may know the truth. And then? Ab, who can tell?"

She bent down and kissed the broad forehead, and knelt there for a few moments before rising and going quickly into Armstrong's bedroom to gaz? at him for a minute, and then return, carefully closing after her both the doors. She kept her vigil there for a few minutes before there were steps again, and a soft tap at the door.

She kept her vigil there for a few minutes before there were steps again, and a soft tap at the door.

She admitted the Conte.

'I have a carriage waiting, and a man here to help," he said.

'I am not clever and experienced," said Cornel anxiously. 'Lit a doctor see her first."

For answer the Conte gave her a quick nod.

'It is secreay, is t not?"

'Oh yes, but—"

'The best London can give," he whispered.

When I have her back at home. And you understand that was nonsense which I said about striking him.

Tae bag was on his arm with his hand pushed far through as he went back to the door and signaled to a man to come in. Then seeing that this removal was inevitable, Cornel rapidly replaced the cloak well round the insensible figure and re-arranged the head.

"Din't—don't waste time," said the Conte impatiently, and signing to the man the latter bant down and lifted the motionless figure as easily as if it had been a child.

"Be careful, my friend," whispered the Conte.

"A sad accident. Be careful. Mind."

He opened the door for the man to pass through, and Cornel followed them to listen to the heavy descending steps till all was silent. Then came the rattle of wheels, and she knew that they were gone.

Closing the door of the studio she walked across it, dropped upon her knees and clasped her hands.

"Have I done rightly?" she murmured. 'I don't know. It seems like madness now."
Then a weary sigh as she laid her head against the door leading to the chamber, "What I have suffered for your sake!"

CHAPTER XXX CHAPTER THE LAST.

"And you gave him enough to keep him in that insensible state!" said Dr. Thorpe next night, after seeing and treating Armstrong, who lay in a weak, half-delirious state.

Cornel nodded and gazed wildly at her brother, who continued:

"To keep him from going abroad to fight this duel?"

"Yes; I felt sure that the Conte would kill him."

him. But there, perhaps it was right; and anyhow, you have saved him."
"You think he will recover now?" she cried eagerly.

"Think so? Oh, yes; of course. Nothing to prevent him. Only wants time. But it's "Think so I Oh, yes; it could be prevent him. Only wants time. But it's nothing to you."

"How is the Contessa?"
"Getting better I hear. Fact is I met the surgeon who is attending her at the society. But never mind them. I shall have done all I want here in less than a fortnight. That is when the Spartania sails; so be ready and let's get back." get back."
"Yes, dear," said Cornel quietly, "I shall have fluished my task, too."

A year later Armstrong Dale went back home, but only for a visit, for his fame was in-creasing rapidly and he had more commissions than he could undertake. He wanted help and counsel, and he brought them back with him, for he did not return to London alone.

Five more years had elapsed, and that season there was a great deal of talk about Armstrong Dale's big picture at the Academy. The press had praised it unanimously; society had endorsed the critics' words; and it was sold for a heavy price. But though he was importuned to take portraits, Armstrong sternly refused.

The picture that year was a fanciful subject of a beautiful woman reclining upon a tiger skin, with a huge cluster of orange maculated fillies thrust as if by careless hands into a magnificent repousse copper wase. And, as he painted it, he had turned to his wife one day and said, "I can't help it, Little Heart; it will come so like her. I shall paint it out and give up."

up." Then he seized a cloth to pass across the fresh paint, but Cornel caught his wrist.
"Absurd!" she cried. "That magnificent piece of work—and because of a fancled resemblance!"

piecs of work—and because of a fancled resemblance?"

"Then you do not mind?" he said sadly. Palette, brushes, and mahistick were slowly and softly taken from his hands, which were drawn round Cornel's neck, and she nestled closely in his breast.

"Mind? No," she said gently, "let the dead past bury its dead."

The picture went to the Academy then, and was the most discussed work of the year.

One sunny morning early, so as to be before the crush, Armstrong and his wife walked through the principal room, joined together by a little fairy-like, golden-haired link, whose bright eyes flashed with delight as she clung to the hand on either side, for she was at her urgent request being taken "to see papa's picture—The Tiger-Lily."

The trio had been standing in front of it for some minutes when, after playfully responding to the happy child's many questions, Cornel and Armstrong turned to take her round the room, but both stopped short as if petrified.

For, within a couple of yards stood Valentina, pale as death, her eyes abnormally large, and her whole countenance telling of bodily suffering and mental pain.

Beside her was an invalid chair occupied by a

For, within a couple of yards stood Valentina, pale as death, her eyes shormally large, and her whole countenance telling of bodily suffering and mental pain.

Beside her was an invalid chair occupied by a wasted, prematurely old man, wrapped in furs—in May—and attended by a servant who stood motionless behind.

The meeting was a surprise, and all present save one remained fascinated by some spell.

The silence was broken by Valentina, who took a step forward and held out her hand, while Armstrong saw at a glance that the Conte was gazing vacantly at the pictures, his eyes dull and glazed, the light of recognition being absent.

"It is six years since we met, Mrs. Dale," said the Contessa sofely, but the tones of her voice were changed, and she turned her head slightly to let her eyes rest upon Armstrong.

"As in all human probability we shall never meet again, I cannot resist referring once to the past—to thank your sweet wife for the life she saved."

"Oh. pray," whispered Cornel in a tremulous voice. "no more."

"No," said Valentina, holding Cornel's hand tightly, and gazing wildly in her eyes, though her voice was very calm. "We go back to Italy at once. My husband, who is a great invalid, seems better there."

She paused for a moment as it to gain strength to go on; and then in a low, passionate whisper full of the maternal longing of an unsatisfied heart:

"Your child. May I kiss her once?"

Cornel bowed her head—she could not speak, but held the child a little forward, and Valentina bent down.

"Will you kiss me?" she said.

The little candid eyes looked smillingly up and the silvery voice said as the soft little arms clasped her neck:

"Yes, Til gleve you two." Then, as she was held tightly for a few moments, "Do you like dear papa's picture? I saw him paint it. Is it you?"

The little wondering question sent a pang through three breasts, but not another word was uttered till the invalid chair and its attendants had passed through the door close by. It was the child who broke the silence just as clornel grasp.

"Why did that lady cry when she kissed me,
mammaf I know," the child added quickly,
"It was because that poor gentleman is so ill."

"It was because that poor gentleman is so ill."

It was the winter of the same year when Armstrong was seated by his studio fire with his child upon his knee, and Cornel upon the rug with the warm light of the fire upon her cheek—not the old studio, but the noble, artistically furnished sation in Kensington. The door opened and a gruff voice exclaimed: "May I come in?"

The child uttered a cry of delight, sprang from her father's knee and dashed across the studio, to begin dragging forward the rough gray-beard in a shabby velvet coat and soft black hat.

He raised her in his arms and bore her forward, to sit chatting for same time. Then Cornel ross and took the child's hand.

"Come dear," she said. "Your tea-time."

"No, no. I want to stop with Uncle Joe."

"Uncle Joe wants to talk to papa about business," said Cornel with a nod and a smile, as, she drew the child dway. "You shall come in to dessert if you are good."

She nodded, amiling at the rough-looking old friend, and then tripped out playfully with the child.

"Light your pips, old man," said Armstrong.

child.

"Light your pipe, old man," said Armstrong.
"What is it—business?"
"Yes. Your wife reads my face like a book.
Have you seen to-day's Times?"
"No. Been growling all day at the bad light and playing with Tiny."
"Read that then."
Pacey passed the grownload property.

Pacey passed the crumpled paper folded small, and under the Paris news Armstrong read:
"M. Leronde has been appointed French con-sul at Constantinople, and leaves Marsellies by the Messageries Maritimes steamer Corne d'Or on Friday."

"Well, I am glad. Hang it. Joe, I could find
"Well, I am glad. Hang it. Joe, I could find dinner with him and say good bye."
"No time," said Pacey gruffly. "Now read that."

He took back the paper and doubled it again, so that the front page was outward, and pointed to the column of deaths. Armstrong started and for some moments held the paper with his syss fixed upon his friend, in whose countenance he seemed to divine what was to come.

divine what was to come.

He was in no wise surprised when he looked down to find the name Deliatoria, and he began to read the announcement with the remembrance that he Conte's face when they last met bore the stamp of impending death; but he was not prepared for what he did read, and the type blurred, and the paper quivered a little as he saw as through a mist the name Valentina, the age thirty, Rome, and then the last words stood out clearly: "Only surviving the Conte Dellatoria four days."

"Chapter the last, boy," said Pacey, taking back the paper and folding it tightly before replacing it in his breast pocket.
"Yes," said Armstrong slowly, as he mentally looked backward through the happy golden mists of six years, "chapter the last."

[THE END.]

The Earth is Shrinking.

Sir Edwin Arnold in one of his recent letters says: "The world we live in is becoming sadly monotonous as it shrinks year by year to smaller and smaller dimensions under the rapid movement provided by limited passenger trains and swift ocean steamships."

The New York Central, by the introduction of its Empire State express, has perhaps to a greater degree than any other force on this continent, aided this shrinking process. It is now possible, by taking this fastest train in the world, to breakfast leisurely at your home or hotel in New York, and dine in Buffalo or Niagara Falls, almost 450 miles away, at your usual hour. Toronto people can leave Union Station at 7.50 am, and connect with this train at Buffalo, reaching New York the same evening at 10.30. Apply by mall to Edson J. Weeks, general agent New York Central, Buffalo, N. Y., for copy of one of the Four Track Series.

Caution.

Mrs. Younglove—Shall you expect me to bake my own bread?
Mr. Younglove—Just as you prefer, dearest; but you needn't bother about baking mine!

To Columbian Exposition

To Columbian Exposition
Via the Wabash veatibuled trains running to Chicago every day in the year, are the finest known to the railway service. They are complete and solid vestibuled from end to end, the entire train being a moving palace of connected apartments. All Wabash trains stop at Englewood, near 60th street entrance to the World's Fair; electric cars direct to grounds every five minutes. Get your tickets via Detroit and the banner route. J. A. Richardson, Canadian Passenger Agent, north-east corner of King and Yonge streets, Toronto.

Tired of It.

Lord Stonebrake—Let me see, we were talk-ing about those two American heiresses. Lord Overdraft—I know we were; but, for heaven's sake, don't let us talk shop any more!

New Facts About the Dakotas is the title of the latest illustrated pamphlet issued by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway regarding those growing states, whose wonderful crops the past season have attracted the attention of the whole country. It is full of facts of special interest for all not satisfied with their present location. Send to A. J. Taylor, Canadian Passenger Agent, 4 Palmer House Block, Toronto, Ont., for a copy free of

Of No Interest to Him.

Cubbage (flercely)—It is very discouraging to a man to have to carry a shricking baby around the room all night and then to reflect that of such is the kingdom of heaven. Mrs. Cubbage (meekly)—How can that pos-sibly affect you, dear i

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

MAKES DELICIOUS LEMONADE.

A teaspoonful added to a glass of hot or cold water, and sweetened to the taste, will be found refreshing and invigorating.

Cowardice.

Bobbie—The lobster bites hard, but he must be very timid, mamma.

Mamma—Why so, Bobbie ?

Bobbie—Why, because he always wears his tail between his legs.

In Reply to Oft Repeated Questions.

It may be well to state that Scott's Emulsion acts as a food as well as a medicine, building up the wasted tissues and restoring perfect health after wasting fever.

Not True in His Case.

Rev. Rechab Goodly—Don't you know, my friend, that every drink of that you take short-ens your life five hours? Colonel Oldcrow—You don't say? Well, sah, judgin' by what I've drunk of it, the Lord must have meant me to live about five thousand

A Traveler's Tale.

A Traveler's Tale.

Ottawa, July 17.—W. F. Sparham of 95 Nepean street, a traveler for the well known house of Russel, Gardiner & Russel, tells an interesting story about the cure of a kidney trouble that has affilicted him for the past nine months. Ever since attacked Mr. Sparham tried physicians' prescriptions and other medicines, but none had any effect. He constantly suffered pain, which finally became so intense that he could not sleep. Death seemed the only possible deliverance from his suffering. He got a box of Dodd's kidney pills from Henry Watters, a druggist here, and that one box effected a perfect cure. Mr. Sparham is to-day (he happiest man in the Ottawa valley, and he has many friends who rejoice with him.

Taking Chances.

It was late at night and my horse was clean played out, when I came upon a mountaineer's cabin, and I hailed the house. Two or three dogs set up a furious barking, and presently the door was opened and a voice called through the darkness "Who's that out tharand what ar' yo' fussin' about?"

"I'm a traveler in search of lodgings," I re-"How many of yo'?"

"Only one."

"On a hoss or a mewl?"

"A horse."
"Wall, yo' stay right on that hoss till I git that candle and hev a look at yo'!"

He left the house by a back door and came around to me, holding a candle in his left hand and a shotgun in his right. After taking a long look he asked :

"Whar'd yo' come from ?"

'What fur ?"

"To see the country."
"Got any shootin' irons?"

"No. But what's the matter that you are so ispicious?"
"Wall, I want to know who is who befo' I take him in. Yo' kin git down and I'll gin yo a bed, if yo' want to run the chances."

"What chances?"
"Why, my boy Jake is out coon huntin', and will be home bimeby. When he comes he'll take a look at yo'. If Jake says yo'r a traveler and thar's nuthin' to fear, then it'll be all right, but if Jake says yo'r one o' them revenue fellers a-smellin' 'round fur stills we'll gin yo' jest three minutes to git ready to meet yo'r Maker!

Will yo' take the chances ?"
I said I would and was soon in bed. An hour or two later a light shone in my face, and I woke up sufficiently to hear Jake saying :

"He's all right, pap, but if he ain't we kin shoot him befo' he gits away in the mornin'!

For Stomach

Liver Complaints, and Headache, use

AYER'S

CATHARTIC PILLS They are purely vegetable, sugar-coated, speedily dissolved, and easy to take.

Every dose Effective

POOR MAN

indeed is he whose blood is poor who has lost his appetite and his flesh and seems to be in a rapid de-

SCOTT'S

Of Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and

Hypophosphites

can make it rich again by restoring appetite, flesh and rich blood, and so giving him energy and perfect physical life, cares Coupts, Colds, Consumption, Scrofula and Bronchitis. IT IS ALMOST AS PALATABLE AS MILK.

ALMOST AS PALATABLE AS MILK.

DUNN'S FRUIT SALINE

GODES - BERGER

The only natural mineral water now supplied to He dejecty, the Queen of England, under Royal Warrant.

Professor WANKLYN, of London, Eng., makes: "Ithave analyzed the Godes-Berger water, and find that it is me-quisitely pure. Its saline ingredients are normal, just those required to form an excellent table water." TRY IT

Acting agent at Toronto

AUGUSTE BOLTE 47 Colborne Street

Girls...

Who love chocolate drops and would like to have the very best, finest in the land '

SEE that

G. B. mark.

That mark is stamped on every G. B. Chocolate. None genuine without it.

THE ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO, MONTREAL.

is apt to result in a difference of opintion, but all nurses agree that the only safe soap to use for the babies' delicate skin is BABY'S OWN. See that you are not imposed upon by any of the imitations extant which your grocer may be dishonest enough to say "are just as good."

Jul

economi

live in,

and I, w be only have sai

the girls

Won't

little mo

Same

and tha world is waiting good ma

of feedin

Sometim

mouthed

There as proportio

might ga

and subm

value an

The conc

surd. If money as train goe

I heard

vomen to headlong subject w

it, you k

young ma mistress t

unless sh

why shou

when we

the left or asked ag

exasperat

thought o

wondered ignorance of or his he'll never hat any

Getting a

the royal

what a ric millinery

to the Bri

our busine

our comme

each othe

the only th

king!" Bu

over the v lovely in actual forn

biscuit dis

A peacock' natural fee splendor o pose it ha

the young

needs it, gets down usual. A me, when things that from our ever, if it e

as a certain of my yout

Maysies ma

to their you in July, as you, my g

ously, ther

you go the bash to Des of cars. Ha

in crossing the upper d

of fussing

short route.

white and p

mirrors bet

Fashional how is baby Nurse — I ma'am. Fashional That was oughtn't to

" How di oman i ubject

to do:

ment.

THE TORONTO SATURDAY NIGHT

EDMUND R. SHEPPARD - - Editor. SATURDAY NIGHT is a twelve-page, handsomely illus Office, 9 Adelaide Street West, Toronto. TELEPHONE 1709. Subscriptions will be received on the following terms: One Year..... Three Months ...

Advertising rates made known on application at the busi THE SHEPPARD PUBLISHING CO. (Ltd.), Propr's

VOL. VI] TORONTO, JULY 22, 1893. [No. 35

"Saturday Night" Out of Town.

Are you going to the mountains, the seashore or to Muskoka this summer? Where ever you go you can have your favorite paper. SATURDAY NIGHT is mailed to any address in Canada or United States for 20c. a month; to foreign addresses 25c. a

Our New Story.

In our next issue will commence that splendid new story by Adeline Sergeant, for which the publishers of this paper have secured the Canadian right, Marjory's Mistake. Miss Sergeant is not unknown to our readers, for twice before we have published serials from her pen, and so widely were they read and so many were the expressions of pleasure drawn forth by the two stories reviously published that we eagerly closed with the offer of publishing rights of Marjory's Mistake. The story will be given in large instalments and illustrated. The reprehensible practice of pinching a good story so that the interest attaching to it will cover as many issues as possible has never been followed in SATURDAY NIGHT and will not be introduced The story commences next week -don't miss it.

An Australian Miner's Narrative.

(A True Story.)

WAS Christmas at the old Bendigo Gold Fields, and in the year 1847 a carousing, lawless time the miners made of it. Men with costumes of all nations were crowded together, and ticket-of-leavers and other scum of the earth paraded and swaggered at ease. For months I had been working hard at these diggings, and was at last rewarded by the possession of a pile too big to safely conceal much longer. Be-coming somewhat tired of the racket and general surroundings, I concluded to take a holi-day and foot it down to Melbourne, so the next day found me up at the first streak of dawn busy securing a well filled belt purse and other dust about my person, and after taking a cautious look around I noiselessly quitted the lonesome little tent that stood out white and ghostlike in the dim light of early morn. To avoid the possibility of being fol-lowed by some of the villainous fraternity that infested the place, I started on the run, not feeling safe until many miles lay between myself and the diggings. After tramping all day through dense forests, I stopped at length to consult my pocket-compass and also fill a gourd from a small water fall that I fortunately discovered at the foot of a steep hill, where I rested a while to refresh the inner man and watch the red, blue and green parrots that peeped curiously down from the great tall trees; rare black cockatoos with brilliant scarlet uttered wild, discordant screams and frightened kangaroos sprang in every direction, proving to me that noble animal lord of the creation were a species entirely unknown to the inhabitants of this primeval and sequestered spot. Taking another draught from the cool spring, I again marched forward and finally reached the summit of one of the Blue mounains which was partly covered with thick Ti-Ti scrub; into this I crept and gladly laid me down to rest. The moon was just rising and shone faintly into the dark woods and gulches beyond. I was dead beat, and placing a coat under my head slept as only a weary, worn-out man can sleep. How long this lasted I cannot say, but I awoke with a start and distinctly heard voices mingling with the soft night breeze. Moving silently to an opening I saw the full moon shining resplendent into the valley below, making it as light as day and plainly revealing the forms of three men. instantly recognized as ticket-ofleavers. There is no mistaking these hangmaking a fire, while a third prepared a damper to cook in the sames. Standing slightly in the shade was a fourth man, and from his appearance I judged him to be one of the numerous German peddlers who carry jewelry, etc., for sale to the different "stations" scattered around. Apparently they were inviting him to draw near, which he seemed to hesitate about doing; then gradually stepping forward mmenced to loosen his pack and finally joined them in their meal. Soon after this the smell of tobacco came slowly up the hill, and sounds of talking and laughter drifted by. From my hiding-place I continued to watch them, the flickering light from the fire giving the stooping forms of men a strange, uncanny appearance. All this time I had been vainly endeavoring to devise some means of warning the unfortunate ped dier, for I felt quite confident that they meant to kill and rob him. Was I a coward that I made no effort to save this poor helpless man ! Could I not creep down and somehow get nearer to him? No, it was impossible. The moon's clear rays would surely betray me, and my own existence was too sweet to risk falling into he hands of those miscreants who show no mercy and who value a human life less In this extremity of horror and my face with both hands, for well I knew the end could not be far off. Mercinined now-or-never look in his face I saw that full God, should I be compelled to he meant business and I remained quiet. I and in his delirium placed them to his lips, see that they are all marked up on the tags.

**Mercining**

wait until this terrible and cruel murder was done? With closed eyes I continued to kneel, almost counting the minutes as they passed rapidly away. Once more I glanced down into the quiet valley and observed that the three wretches were motionless as if asleep, while the doomed German had also moved a short distance from the others and ant thinking and smoking alone. Presently he placed his load carefully by his side, then, lying down was soon dreaming his last brief dream on earth. As if glued to the spot, I yet looked on, then I saw one of the convicts glide softly up and lift the axe that cleft the slumbering peddler's skull. With a long, terrible cry he partly arose, then all was still and a soul passed on into the mysterious hereafter. Unheard by the murderers a second scream of human anguish rang through the air, for in my terror I too cried aloud and reeling backwards knew no more! On recovering con-sciousness some time afterwards I found that the sun was high in the heavens, and looking eagerly about I could perceive no sign of a living presence, only a thin smoke curled lazily upwards from a dying fire and by this I knew that all was too true and no delusion of a troubled brain. Hastily leaving the gloomy thicket and haunted by the fear of again beholding these three flends, I wandered on until I reached the house of a well known squatter, to whom I related the dark scene I had so lately witnessed. Information was immediately sent by him to the Mounted Police, who searched the country for miles but failed to capture the crafty convicts. Only a few charred bones and metal buttons could be found to verify my statement and tell the tale of one of the numerous tragedles that occurred during the early days of the o'd Bendigo Gold Fever. PERCY MARTIN.

An Unwilling Witness

The Thrilling Story of How I Watched a Wooing and

T is said that the truest sympathy can only be given by those who have also suffered. When I used to read of that painful habit that some semi-savage races have of tying their prisoners, divested of everything, to a tree and leaving them to be tortured to death by the nosquitoes and flies of the neighborhood, I would think that it was highly reprehensible conduct, in fact, to say the least, it was ungentlemanly, and I would go on to the next chapter. I know what it must be now, and a great strain of sympathy wells up in my heart for those tortured beings, for I myself have suffered. I hadn't to go far from home to get the suffering, only to Rideau Lake. There are no Indians there now, but there were lovers at the summer hotel last week and they did it. Lovers at summer hotels are not unusual I believe, but these were unusual summer lovers; their affection, although dormant during the cold of last winter, had awakened into life in the springtime and was ready to blossom forth into "until death us do part," in July. They meant business. He would rise up at daybreak and hunt water lilies for two hours before breakfast. He moved around with the love light in both his eyes all day and would drink Apollinaris straight in the smoking-room at When a man drinks undiluted Apollin night. aris water in a summer hotel at midnight there is something radically wrong with him. He should be taken care of. She—but she has cut me dead for a week so I will only say that she read Browning.

It was apparent to everyone that the malady was rapidly approaching a crisis. There was no particular reason why the crisis shouldn't come at any time. Their respective families were seemingly agreeable. Everybody gave them every opportunity that a self-respecting summer crowd could give, and they left them severely alone about half the time. But the evil genius that presides over my destiny or-dained that I should be made the victim of untold suffering while they passed through the said crisis. I had been reading James Whit-comb Riley's In Swimmin' Time in the afternoon, and a yearning came into my heart to have one of the old-fashioned swims of boyish days. Away from laughing, screaming bathers, away from sloping beach and bathing ma-chines, away from clinging clothes and children, free and untrammeled, I would swim and dive as of yore. I remembered that about three-quarters of a mile away there was a rocky point which partly encircled a delightful cove, which was far from the gaze of manand woman-and was exactly suited to my purpose. So after tea I took my canoe and paddled towards it.

"Don't you think there are a fearful lot of mosquitoes this evening, Mr. Lewis?" said a lady in a passing skiff.

"I didn't notice it particularly," I carelessly said. I changed my mind in half an hour. I them then. Yes, I noticed them. a quarter of an hour the canoe was under the overhanging branches, my clothes were behind a rock, and I had taken my first header into the cool waters of the cove.

Oh that delightful feeling of freedom from all vestment! I was a boy again. I took header after header, vainly attempted to turn three somersaults without coming to the surface, which had been my youthful pride, played steamboat and the dozen and one half-forgotten awimming tricks of never mind how years ago. I was quietly lying on my back and complacently looking at my toes, which I was endeavoring to keep above the water, when I heard voices. I let my toes sink and listened. Boats seldom came so far in the evening, but surely that was a girl's voice. In a moment I was convinced of it, and it was very close at hand, immediately on the other side point. I was concerned. Swiftly and silently I made for the shore and my clothes. I was too late for the latter and had just time to dodge behind a clump of bushes, a considerable distance from the rest of the woods. I would hide there until the approaching boat should pass, I thought. In another minute it came around the point. It was the lovers. what a lovely little bay." I heard her say. think we should land on that point," he ass perplexity I had fallen on my knees, covering swered, "and see the sunset on the lake. It is wasn't the sort of man that would dash from their lips "the sweet, sweet cup that only youth can taste," and anyway I was in rather an embarrassing position to do any interfering, so I said nothing. They seated themselves on a moss-covered rock about twenty yards from me. I was a prisoner, tied hand and foot as securely as if I had been bound to a tree. Eavesdropping under circumstances is unpleasant, and if I had known what was coming I believe I would have yelled a note of warning, but I couldn't know that he was going to choose that time of all others to make the break he did. They were silent. Not a sound disturbed the quietness of the sunset hour save the evensong of the melodious bullfrom and the buzz-buzz of the vanguard of an army of mosquitoes, which were already making their presence felt. The sun after one last long lingering look at the lovers disappeared be neath the horizon, as is its daily habit, and the blush of the western sky seemed reflected on the faces of the pair. By this time the advance guard of mosquitoes had apparently communicated with the main body the position I was in, for they began to assemble in great force. It is in no factious spirit of sectionalism that students of the Eastern Ontario mosquito con tend that he rivals, if he does not surpass, hi Muskoka brother in industry and ferocity. As an authority I say he does. If the lovers were idle, I was not. I was terribly busy, but it was nothing to what was coming. I had often admired that young lady in respectful, cousinly sort of way, but as she sat

there looking demure and happy in her cool white gown, and in an embarrassed manner tapped her little foot with her closed parasol, l hated her. As for my feelings towards that young man, they were murderous. The confounded idiot! If he was going to propose why in the name of everything that is loverlike didn't he go on with it? Did he think that a fellow could stand there all night and fight mosquitoes because he hadn't sense enough to say a few words? Before that young embodiment of procrastination knew enough to speak, those little emissaries of the evil one, those mosquitoes, had sent the flery cross around among their sisters, their cousins and their aunts (and they have large families they have) of the counties of Lanark and Leede that there was to be a picnic. I was the picnic. These counties are divided for municipal, registrational and political purposes, but that didn't seem to affect them; they cordially united as far as I was concerned. I have not learned that there has been a census taken of the mosquitoes of these two counties, but I would roughly estimate the number at 9,500,000. I would say 10,000,000 only I don't want to exaggerate. They were all there with me. I killed a few hundred thousand, but it had no appreciable effect on their numbers. My po sition was almost unendurable, when the young man managed to stammer, "Evangeline, I have for a long time sought this opportunity," etc., etc., and the old, old story was told by both. They seemed to like telling it. My watch afterwards told me it couldn't have been over twenty minutes, but I at that time thought it was about four hours and a half. It is all very well to be self-sacrificing, to give a fellow a show and to assist in the uniting of two fond hearts, but it was carrying things a little too far to expect a man to bury himself knee deep in dead mosquitoes in order not to thwart the course of true love. I was getting desperate. They would have to give up billing and cooing soon, or they would think a cyclone had struck them. I heard her say once in a startled tone, as she withdrew her head from his shoulder: "What noise is that, dear?"

I could have told her I had killed at one fell woop fourteen large-sized Rideau Lake mos quitoes that were endeavoring to carry me off by the back of the neck. I was getting frantic. The news of my whereabouts seemed to have got to the adjoining counties of Frontenac and Grenville, as large reinforcements were con tinuously pouring in. The end was fast ap-proaching. The lovers were sitting hand in

"I wonder what brings so many mosquitoes heard her once say.

I felt fiercely like telling her that it was my inning way, that I was the object of attrac tion. I didn't. At last he said, as he looked into her eyes:
"Would that life were always like this.

could stay here forever."

When I heard this, what blood was left ran cold, and in a half-frenzied manner I put my head over the bush and said : "For God's sake, young fellow, if you don't want a mangled corpse or a raving maniac on your hands, go away and let me get my clothes." And she doesn't speak to me. I call that ungrateful, after what I suffered. CHARLES LEWIS.

Far From Home.

HE sand of the desert plain, sharp and biting as broken glass, was whirled about in grotesque shapes as the hot summer breeze moaned along the arid stretch of country, and the beat of the flinty particles in his face caused the man to bend his head to the swirl, ver and anen lifting it to gaze with growing horror at the far horizon, where earth and sky seemed to blend together and melt into a trembling haze of copper and red. The blazing sun had swung towards the west, and his fiery rays were shining full in the level plain; h could see the heat blazing from the sand like thin, steel-blue smoke. Still he toiled on.

The sun sank lower and lower in the copper colored sky, and the single shadow on the vast waste lengthened out, a grotesque trembling shape, a blot upon the desert. Overhead in the broad stretch of cloudless space a huge bird swept along, revolving at will and finally swinging towards the earth, its broad pinions reflecting the rays of the sun like sails upon a distant ses.

The only object on the vast extent of heated sand staggers, catches at the invisible, and sinks. A prayer flew to his parched lips for a long, cool draught of water.

The hot wind from the south answered, and then watched them sift through his fingers Strange shapes and shadows passed before his eyes, and he saw the plain covered with heather, the blue heather of his native land.

The haze of the sky deepened and blended with the burnished hue of the sky, and the Spirit of the South breathed with hot lips upon the prostrate figure.

He staggered to his knees and scanned the far-away horizon, for in fancy he was straying among the heather and her blue eyes were upon him and a soft voice called his name; over the rolling deep and the broad prairie; over the trackless waste of sand and rocky plain, until it quivered in the still evening air and breathed a sad, plaintive song in his ear.

The orb of day had sunk below the stretch of loneliness, and darkness crept over the scene like a black fog, wrapping sky and plain, man and bird, in its sable folds.

The morning sun gleamed upon two objects, the prostrate figure of a man and a bird of repulsive appearance. The figure stirred not, and the bird stretched its featherless neck to wards it, the early light glinting upon the curved beak and cruel talons. High up in the bright blue of the morning sky two other birds were sweeping and narrowing their circles Nearer and nearer they came, until the rush of their heavy wings stirred the light sand.

And the lonely traveler found not a grave. for his bones are shining white upon the yellov gold of the desert, the sightless eyes of the skull turned towards the broad stretch of B. KELLY. eastern sky.

Through Muskoka's Woods on a Winter Morning.

HERE'S not a cloud in the sky. Thirty below zero. When you step outside the little hotel the intense cold makes the boards crack like a cannon. After a rough breakfast of porridge, pork and beans, we wrap up in all our furs. A crack of the whip, the sleigh bells ring out the merry chimes and away we are for a twenty mile drive

Everybody has written something about the beauties of Muskoka in summer time, but come with me on this cold, clear, crispy, sun shiny morning. There has been a thaw, fol lowed by a hard frost, then a light fall of snow and the winter's panorama is a sight for the gods. Light your pipe, tuck in the robes, and enjoy the morning's carnival that nature has provided.

The spruce and balsam by the wayside are loaded with snow, resembling a thou sand crystal monuments, and no two alike. The huge pine trees as a background make the scene perfect, so perfect, so grand, that it requires the genius of a poet to do it justice even the stumps of trees along the roadside which in the summer are so black and ugly are, this lovely morning, arrayed in all their fastidious wintry garb. They resemble marble statuary studded with brilliants. We fancy one resembles the late Sir John A. Macdonald then Sir Oliver Mowat, Blake, Laurier and scores of other celebrities. The sharp turns in the road make it appear as though we were lost in the forest. Another turn-look! there's a deer crossing the road. Another follows, but soon are lost in the woods. Up the hill we go, and the scene from the top is indescribable. trees overlap the road, forming a long crystal avenue. Indeed this must be fairy land. pare, slender branches are covered with frost and snow, through which we see the clear blue sky overhead, making it resemble a huge covering of fine lace studded with millions of crystal gems. To make the scene more perfect there is a small lake at the foot of the hill and the end of this pretty avenue. Across the lake and away into the woods again, mile aftermile, we glide along over hill and dale. The scenes are repeated. A drive like this makes a fellow feel that life is worth living. Summer in the woods of Muskoka is grand, but a sleigh ride on a perfect winter day is glorious.

Tom Swalwells

The Trials of a Bicyclist.

NE warm afternoon recently we were wheeling along the western outskirs of the city. Overheated and fatigued, we steered our course towards a large common in which were some shady trees which pro-mised a cool resting place. On riding up was mised a cool resting place. On riding up was were surprised to see a middle-aged and rather portly gentleman running furiously across the common in pursuit of an urchin who was mak ing the pace. The gentleman's wheel lay by sudden and complete desertion, and a few yards away was a valise. The boy escaped and was successful in hiding himself securely in an old building. The baffled pursuer re always happens in such cases, evidently in a much disturbed frame of mind, mathered him-self together generally and rode off. As soon as he was at a safe distance the boy came forth his dirty face spread into an elaborate grin, and rejoined his companions. We asked him for particulars of the affair. What had he done to the gentleman ?
"Oh, nuthin'," he said indignantly, as he caught his breath; "I jest 'soaked' him one on de ear wid a hunk of watermelon." H.V. F.

What She Believed. Instructor-Miss B., of what was Ceres the oddess i Miss B.—She was the goddess of marriage. Instructor—Ob, no! Of agriculture. Miss B. (looking perplexed)—Why, I am sure book says she was the goddess of hus-

A Useful Hint.

"Mr. Jermin," said Tommy, after a long and earnest scrutiny of the visitor at the other end of the breakfast table, "if you'd use the same white stuff on your face that mamma uses on here them big freckles you've got wouldn't show at all."

The Way to Do It.

Shopman-These goods are all marked down.

Rented

Saturday Night One day towards old Courtship road. With blushing cheek a maiden went, And to a cosy dwelling stepped, Heart beating fast, on business bent.

And asked, "Does Capid live within? I wish the vacant heart to see, And ask some questions bout the place Of which your master keeps the key.

'Twas scarcely said, when Cupid came And to the maiden bowed and smiled, In answer to her questions said: "The place is good, but somewhat wild."

Said she, "It must be pure and bright, No old-love cobwebs must be there It must be furnished with God's grace And sweetly perfumed with flow'rs of prayer

It must be large yet hold but one : You say 'tis warm, canet swear that's true?
I love the place with all my soul,
But listen, Cupid, listen, do. You'll help me, won't you, all you can,

To keep this heart, I'll be in blica-Give me a pen. I'll sign the lease : And, Dan-here, take the promised kiss." LUOLC BT NAS.

Cupid's Wiles.

Life's glad; each am'rous-tinted dawn Sheds o'er the land a brighter day, Till dreams I'd shought forever gone Glow into I'e like embers gray When breathed upon. The past, ab, well? 'Tie fied-another ecetaes And all the homage it could tell I give to thee.

Life's sad; the cares of day oppress And lend a fever to the brain, Till all about's one dark distress And little reck I loss or gain; Then from this world I steal away And eink my soul in calm Lethe When darkest night's made glorious day, In thoughte of thee

L'fe's mad; else there'd be happiness In all the biles these thoughts betray. Alas! 'tis but a single stress, And with the thoughts the joy's away. And yet, perchance, we two may meet To know a common destiny ; To know a common descrip;
Then will this heart in transport sweet Sing songs to thee. Philip A. Stephens Remembrance.

Music lingers in the trees When the music-making bre-ze Had on soft wings flown away, With the slow retreating day.

Glory lingers in the sky, Tho' the day has long gone by, And the sun has gone to sleep 'Neath the bosom of the deep.

So, my love, when thou art gone And I linger all alone, Music from thy voice remains Filling me with sweetest strains And the glory of thy smile

And the giory Cr toy sums.
Lingers yet a little while,
And when thou art gone away
Lengthens cut our blie ful day.
ALEX, W. CRAWF RD.

A Lover's Fancy.

For Saturday Night.

There is a large kaleidoscope of ever varying phases, Of changing spots of white and pink and many-tinted

Which as the huse thing reels and turns take shape to form the faces Of men and maids of every age of all the various races. Thus ever since the first of time this wondrous scop

Begining faces marss and fine by ever ceaseless churning:

Anon a beauteous form is wrought-a heaven-made mar-

It was a bright transcendent day, it was thy birthday When turned the great, the grandest turn of centuries of for then a limit of lovely forms, ten thousand flitting: graces, Resulved in symmetries of smiles an form that queen of

A Fancy.

For Saturday Night. When the red hosts of the swift-riding morn Sweep through the glorious space of the sky— With fisch of banner and with blast of horn Proclaiming that the Great White King is nigh ; The Earth-a rich, rare beauty in the thro With blush, and laugh, and gesture full of grace. wren trues, and saugh, and geneure run of grace.
Draws her ects veil of filmy gauze and lace,
And thrills him with a passion, sudden, strong,
By the devouring beauty of her face.
Jas. A. Tucker.

The Devil in Court.

The Devil came up its the sarth one day And to the court-house wended his way, Just as an abtorney, with very grave face, Was proceeding to argue the "point in the case."

Now, a lawyer hie majesty never had seen, For in his dominions mone ever had been And he felt very anxious the reason to know Why none had been sent to the regions below

Twas the fault of his agents, his majesty thought, That none of those lawyers had ever been caught, And for his own pleasure he felt a desire To come to the earth and the remain su quire.

Well, the lawyer who rose with a visage so grave Made out his opponent a consummate k And the Devil himself was greatly amused To hear how the other was loudly abused

But as soon as the speaker had come to a close, The coursel opposing him farcely arose
And heaped such abuse in the head of the first
As made him a villain—of either the worst.

Thus they quarreled, contended and argued so long That 'twas hard to determine which of them wrong,

wrong,
And concluding he'd heard quite enough of the fues, Old Nick turned away and collicqu'zed thus:

"If all they said of each other be true, The Devil has curely been robbed of his due; But I'm thinking perhaps, after all, 'tis beet so, For the lawyers would ruln our morals below

"They have puzzled the court with their villainous

And I'm free to confess they have puzzled the Devil;
My agente are right to let lawyers alone.
If I had them they'd swindle me nut of my throne."

As some of the club, (here, Sport nounced fair you better

1893

C RT NAS.

ases, nany-tinted shape to made mar-

birthday

nd flitting

queen of W. H. T.

e case."

ought, n caught,

lre.

rave

ret.

d so long

the fuee,

eo, slow.

illainous

Between You and Me.

MONG the various letters which come my way I get a goodly number from girls who want advice as to their choice of occupation; girls who want to "make a little money" who feel the tightness of the paternal purse strings or the necessary economies of a prudent mother. They have enough to eat, enough to wear, and a home to live in, but still they are not content. You and I, who have been through the mill, would be only too glad of their care-free existence; we have said our say, had our fling, and are ready for an easy time. But once we were just like the girls who fret for freedom—to do—to go—to spend money. Weren't we? When I get such a letter as lies before me while I write, saying "Won't you tell me what I can do to make a little money for my own use," I say to myself, "Same old story, I know just how she feels," and that is all I can do. For each girl must think for herself and "discover herself." The and I, who have been through the mill, would and that is all I can do. For each girl must think for herself and "discover herself." The world is full of people who are begging other people to tell them what they can do, or who are sitting with their mouths open waiting for someone to feed them a situation and a career with a silver spoon. I have fed a good many such, when I had not the necessity of feeding myself, and I occasionally dispense a spoonful even now, but it isn't a good plan. Sometimes people make a face at the mouthful, sometimes they swallow it and sit open-mouthed again just as if they'd had nothing. There are plenty of girls, and men too, who want "to make a little money," but a goodly proportion of them object to doing a little work. A sweet girl friend of mine thought she might gain some filthy lucre by writing verses, and submitted some of her work to my judg-When I told her that it had no m value and explained the reason, she sighed and said, "Well, then, I must just give up." The conclusion was so girl-like, but yet so absurd. If one wants to work first, and make money as an after accident, one can find plenty to do; everyone has a chance, man and voman, but some folks sit in the station till the train goes out and then grumble because they don't get anywhere. I heard a novel reason against encouraging women to go to work, from a very bright and headlong young man who was discussing the subject with us a few evenings since. "Hang it, you know well enough," said the bright young man, "that when a woman makes her six or seven hundred a year, and is her own mistress till she is twenty five, she won't marry unless she gets a very good offer." "And why should she?" I enquired. "Well, but when we fellows want a wife we've got to when we fellows want a wife we've got to take one of those girls who have no go— the left overs." "And why not, if you're not good enough for the working woman?" I asked again. He looked at me in mild exasperation, and I have several times thought over his reason, and each time I have wondered whether it displayed most, his utter ignorance of the stuff women's hearts are made of or his unconscious selfithness, I hope he'll never see this, but I really must add that any woman might be lucky to get him. Getting and giving in marriage should give place to some other prevailing topic, now that the royal marriage is safely over. By the way, what a rich field of speculation, gossip, scandal, millinery and general excitement it opened up to the British and American public. And, so far as we're concerned, it really was none of our business, only we're so loyal that we mixed our comments with the rest. It is agreed that the lady and the lord are well pleased with each other, and that when the king is dead the only thing to do is to cry, "Long live the king!" But it is no harm to cry, Ah! and Oh! over the wedding presents, is it? They look lovely in the pictures. What were they in actual form? Sir Frederick Leighton's quaint tortoise shell box and Sir John Millais' silver biscuit dish look just like their own donors. A peacock's plume from the Empress Eugenie. with gems of all the radiant tints of the natural feather, and reminding one of the brief spiendor of the sad widow's Empress days. Our Canadian sleigh isn't in the list, so I suppose it hasn't materialized, but it will reach the young Princess Duchess long before she needs it, unless winter weather in England gets down a good many degrees lower than usual. A sleigh seemed such a peculiar gift to me, when I thought of some of the beautiful things that might have been made for all time from our metals and precious stones. However, if it ever makes such a lovely playhouse as a certain old family sleigh made in the days of my youth, perhaps future wee Geordics and Maysies may be glad we were moved to send it to their young pa and ma!

'How did you go to Chicago, Lady Gay?" asks a woman in a nice chatty letter. "I am going in July, as soon as my holidays begin." Bless you, my girl, did you think I walked? Seriously, there isn't much choice about it, you go the way I went, you are liable to be satisfied. By C. P. R. to Detroit, then by Wabash to Dearborn street station, and no change of cars. Have your trunk searched here, then in crossing the Detroit river you can climb to the upper deck of the ferryboat and watch the lights of the city with an easy mind, instead of fuseing round the baggage car. And you may have such a pretty car you may have such a pretty car on the Wabash to come back in by the new short route. We were quite lost in admiration of ours, with its mother-of-pearl inlay and its white and pink head-rests and its quaint little mirrors between the windows. It was a beauty of a car, I can tell you. LADY GAY.

Ignorance is Bliss.

Fashionable mother (languidly)—Well, Sarah, how is baby to-day?
Nurse—He cut two teeth this morning, maam.
Fashionable mother (still more languidly)—That was very careless of you, Sarah, You oughtn't to let a young baby play with a knife.

Seasonable

An Irish Funeral

HE winter was fast drawing to a close. When another month had passed there would be signs of approaching spring, but at the time of which I write it was unusually cold, the ther-mometer registering some few degrees of frost, which combined with the ex-treme dampness of the atmosphere made outdoor work disagreeable.

Off and on during the day there had been lurries of snow, which melted as it fell, but as evening came on it had grown colder, and as we gathered in the kitchen after tea all showed marked appreciation for the fine coal fire which blazed in the open grate of the range. We had placed our chairs in such positions that we could with comfort watch the fleeting ex pressions of each other's faces as we told stories of the adventures of Irishmen in the old world and the new, and had sat thus for an hour or more when a story was told which had brought thoughts of other things to all our minds, and we sat gazing at the glowing coals.

What happened next I will never forget to the end of my days. A cry pierced the night air in the narrow street with-out, and with what astounding force it impressed itself upon our minds! Even as I write I can feel the discordant notes ringing in my ears. How soft, low and plaintive it began, as though the wail of someone in trouble, but how ghastly and inhuman were the higher notes as they swelled into that fiendish shrick, so innately brutish as to curdle the blood in our veins and make our faces pale with fear.

Then, when it had died away as softly as it ad arisen, how several pairs of lips murmured the same words, the Banshee, and how we sat for an instant gazing with solemn enquiry into each other's eyes. "Someone in the street has zone to their last resting place," one of our number said, and then we all rose and I led the way into the street.

As I did so I saw a large black dog slink away from before a doorway some twenty yards up the street from where we stood, and t was undoubtedly this beast which had so upset our little party by its unearthly howl. After this discovery I assure you I felt easier in my mind, for it eliminated the Banshee theory and left only the natural se-quence—the mournful cry of a beast which in-stinct had told that it had been deprived of Both up and down the street other doors vere opening, and the little street which had out a moment before been dark and deserted was full of people and lit by streams of yellow light from the open doorways. Everyone began to ask those they met what was the matter, but the words died on their lips, for from the house in front of which the dog had howled, proceeded the loud sobs of a womanthe loud sobbing of a wife and mother for her husband and the father of her children.

In the midst of manhood and without any warning he had been stricken down—yes, and in the midst of his sins against God and man -yet such is the charity felt for the dead in this strange country that for the moment all his misdeeds were forgotten, and as we inter-mingled to talk the matter over a universal opinion was expressed, in most cases by this sentence, "Arrah, but he was a nice, poor fellow." Then we wended our ways back to our firesides-all but some of our women who went to shed a few sympathetic tears with the

All the next morning in the chapel at the end of the street, bells were tolled and twelve priests said high mass for a soul which all knew was in purgatory, if in no worse place. At the house where lay the corpse no blinds had been raised, and all day long women with shawls over their heads came and went, then in the evening was the wake.

Being a stranger to this custom I was invited to attend, and was taken in tow by an old lady who was to show me all that was to be seen. I was first taken to have a look at the corpse, which lay swollen and bloated in its coffin of oak. The face of the man was one of brutish beauty, although his debauches had left their marks, and he was not as handsome, perhaps, as the day he persuaded the young woman almost a girl-who sat alone in the dim candle light, sobbing and looking wistfully at his dead face, to share with him the life which he was to waste in revelry and debauchery. It was a bitter sight to look upon, and he who looking did not sympathize would have been hardened indeed, yet as I glanced back from her face to that of her dead husband's, I could not but think that she was better off without him.
In the parior when we reached it the intiate friends and relations of the deces grouped, but as they were all very solemn and gave themselves up to drinking the whicky which ran as freely as water, I did not remain with them long but sought the kitchen, where were grouped about the fire all the old gossips and busybodies of the neighborhood, to whom free whisky was a godsend. These worthies were engaged in stelling bawdy and black guard stories, not with the artistic polish of Boccassio, yet with native wit. Here, too, I made my stay as short as possible, for the whisky was not as good as that set out for the relatives and friends, so I made my way back to the parlor, where I found them all as I had left them, still busy discussing the quality of the whisky and the arrangements for the funeral to take place on the morrow, which was Sunday. How long the wake lasted I don't know

I retired early.

The eleven o'clocal mass at the chapel next morning was very crowded. Before the chapel all classes of vehicles, from side cars to comm carts, drove up and deposited friends of deceased, who, without invitation, had driven in from the surrounding country to attend mass, and then they would have just time to see the corpse and have a drink at the nearest "pub" before the funeral started.

Down the narrow little street, which was not large enough to allow the hearse to enter it, the coffin would have to be carried by the As some of our Anglomaniacs walked into the club, Genial George remarked: "Look here, Sporty, the meteorological report announces fair weather in London. Wouldn't the little groups at the doorway. The door had you better un Craven those trowsers?"

a white apron and cap, came out bearing aloft two candelabra containing lighted candles, and when the coffin had been placed upon the shoulders of the pall-bearers preceded them to the hearse, where after she had seen the coffin safely stowed away she snuffed out her candles and returned to the house.

The funeral then began to get under way the priests, the mourners and the pall-bearers in their crapes and wide white linen bands about their hats, ahead, and the hearse and tream of cars following after. The road lay along the river, and now and then we caught a glimpse of its fair expanse across the ever-green fields. The distance to the cemetery was about four miles, perhaps somewhat less. Three miles out from town we came to a little tavern known as the halfway house, and here most of the cars drew up and the occupants went inside and had something stronger than water to quench their thirst. Only part of the cars joined the funeral again; ours among the number caught up to the hearse before it reached the cemetery.

The hearse stopped in the road before the gate and the coffin was taken out and again placed upon the shoulders of the pall-bearers; then the priests (there were eight of them) with uncovered and bowed heads proceeded to the grave, praying as they went, while the pall-bearers, as is the custom, bore the coffin around the edge of the cemetery. This is no easy feat to perform where no path has been left, as in this case. Up and down, over grave mounds they went, several times narrowly escaping a fall, but they toiled on contentedly, and only once did I note any manifestation of temper. This was when a wreath was jolted off the coffin and fell temptingly near one of the bearer's feet, and he kicked it about a rod away. It was ricked up by a mourner, who called to the bearers to stop until he replaced it, but this they were not inclined to do, and they only glared back at him and told him to take himself off to a warmer country than Ireland.

At the head of the grave the priests had clustered, and myself and friends took our stand behind them. The grave was hardly four feet deep, but as the grave-digger, who had imbibed more stout than was good for him, remarked, "Phat's a corpse care for a few inches of dirt, whether it's under him or over him?" He might perhaps have become more lequacious and have given us more valu-able information about "corpses" had the bearers not reached the grave at that moment and none too lightly dropped their burden beside it.

The priests were about to give the order to place the coffin in the grave, when someone said the grave was too short, and an altercation ensued between this individual and the grave-digger which was only settled by a car driver measuring both grave and coffin. The grave-digger proved to be right, and in a moment of righteous indignation he was heard to xpress the hope that he might in the near future be commissioned to dig a grave to engulf the man who had doubted his ability

The grave-digger was, however, rebuked by a priest and the coffin was lowered into the grave. Then with uncovered heads and bent knees we listened to those beautiful Latin prayers which from their very mysticism awa us to reverence. The prayers ceased rather suddenly I thought, and the crowd began to disperse, only a few remaining to watch the grave filled in. While this was being done a near relative of the deceased was busy distributing a pound note to each of the priests, and then those gentlemen also sought their cars and soon the graveyard was deserted and all that was left to attest that anything had been disturbed was the mound of earth which looked so dry and comfortable even under the flerce rays of the sun.

On the return journey we found most of the funeral congregated at the halfway house. The relatives with Celtic stoicism sat complacently drinking their stout while they con gratulated each other upon how well the affair had gone off. And why should they not? For had they not spent more money on his corpse than he would have been able to borrow from all of his relations, separately and collectively, had he been alive and ever so hard up? But then all this display: the high mass, the glori-ous wake, the beautiful coffin of oak sur-mounted by a shield of graven brass, and last, but not least, the pageant of priests attending the funeral. All this was as much in their own honor as his, for had they not by it shown their neighbors that none of their kith or kin should go to his last resting-place unhonored, as Irishmen honor their dead ?

HARRY A. BROWN.

Art and Book Notes.

A. H. H. Heming of Hamilton has returned winter scenes along that interesting stream, mostly of a sporting character.

The reports that The Californian Illustrated Magazine has been affected by the financial panic that has swept over the country, are without foundation. The July and August issues speak for themselves, and the publishers propose to increase the attractions of the magazine with every issue. The August issue will be especially rich in fiction. A Japanese story is illustrated by a Japanese artist. The Caverns of Ulo, by Craig of Denver, and an interesting story by Howard Prescott Spofford are given. Among the descriptive illustrated papers : Land of the White Elephant; A Modern Hesperides (the Orange); Spirit Photographs; The Making of a Navajo Blanket; Climbing Shasta, by Mark Sibley Severance; Trout Fishing Among the Wild Grasses; Delightful Summer Articles; Artemus Ward, etc. A feature of the issue will be a discussion between Hon. Morris M. Estee of San Francisco and Hon. Abbot Kinney of Los Angeles on the question of State Division.

W. H. Howard, who did the splendid work in designing and executing the civic address presented to Lord Derby, has received through the secretary an acknowledgment which states that it is the finest work of the kind that has ever been received at Ottawa.

A peep in upon Miss Hemming at her Carrie News—Have you noticed the change that's come over Mr. Van Dudeil lately? Someon has been preying on his mind for the last two weeks.

May Cutting—It surely must be starved by this time, whatever it is.

rounded by her "canvassed" friends and wife is never responsible for her husband's patrons, makes a pleasant change for a busy man. A couple of portraits of Mr. C. H. Gooderham's youngest daughters deeply impressed me. The flesh tints are simply re narkable, though perhaps no more pleasing than the rest of the pictures. Col. Gugy of Montmorency, of 37 fame, is now being worked upon for a son in law, while opposite to him one of Montreal's most prominent grain mer-chants is being fashioned "as though in a I feel that Miss Hemming has a mirror." future before her in Toronto.

Mr. Arthur Lloyd, the well known English omedian, who makes his first American tour the coming season, besides being a clever dramatic author is also the composer of over one thousand songs, many of which have been at different times very popular in this country. Amongst them are: For Goodness Sake Don't Say I Told You, which was made very popular by the late Kate Castleton; I Couldn't, At It Again, You May Look But You Mustn't Touch, The Upper Ten and Lower Five (duett), Signor MacStinger, sung in the comic opera, Pearl of Pekin, Arthur and Martha, One More Polka, and many others. His wife, the late Mrs. Katle King, was a daughter of the famous English tragedian, T. C. King, of Drury Lane Theater, London. Mr. Lloyd will be supported by a strong com-Mr. Lloyd will be supported by a strong company, including his talented son and daughter, Harry and Annie King Lloyd, who are both very highly spoken of by the British press. The comedy, Our Party, in which Mr. Lloyd is to appear, is a bright, clean and exceedingly funny piece written by Mr. Lloyd, and has been performed by h'm over nine hundred times in the principal theaters of Great Britain very successfully. He will present it at the Academy of Music during the week of October 2.

The Grand will open on August 24.

Men and Women Before the Law

The laws of England are, in most cases, what might be called "men's laws," so unequal is the justice they deal to men and women respec tively.

For instance, a man is eligible for every office in the kingdom and is under no restrictions as to voting.

On the other hand, there are many offices a woman cannot fill, such as member of Parliament, county councillor, etc., although she may be Queen. She can vote in certain municipal and school elections, but for nothing higher. She cannot serve on a jury except in one special case.

All English temporal peers sit and vote in the House of Lords.

A woman may be a peeress in her own right, but she has no seat or vote. There is one recorded case of a female baronet. All professions are open to a man.

A woman may not be a clergyman, soldier, sailor, barrister, or solicitor. She may not even drive a cab or 'bus for hire in London. But women have been parish clerks and sextons. A woman was once High Sheriff.

The law relating to inheritance of land pre-fers males to females. In nearly every case an eldest son inherits to the exclusion of all other

When daughters inherit land, they share it equally. As regards personal property, a man is his wife's heir, but a widow is her husband's heiress only to a limited extent.

When a man survives a wife has now a portfolio filled with summer and land he will, in certain cases, own it all for his lifetime. In similar cases, when a wife survives a husband she will have a life interest in only one-third of his lands.

A man's domicile is not altered by his marriage. A woman has to adopt her husband's domicile for her own.

A husband is prima facie entitled to the custody of his children. A wife has no such right, nor will the courts readily grant it. A man has the right to select the religion of his children.

A man has full rights over his own property. A woman married before January 1, 1883, has only limited rights over property which was hers before that date.

All these points are decidedly favorable to the man. But he does not have it all his own way, as the following facts show :

Any adult man may be made bankrupt or imprisoned under the Debtors' Act. A married waman can be made bankrupt only if trading separately from her husband. She cannot be imprisoned under the act.

If a man orders goods in his wife's name, he must usually pay for them. A man must generaily pay for all necessary articles his wife orders. He is even responsible, to a certain extent, for debts she has incurred before mar-

A man is responsible if his wife commits libel or slander, or does any wrongful act for which damages could be claimed. He is responsible in this case also, to a certain extent, for such acts committed before marriage. A opened and an old woman dressed in black, with studio in the Confederation Life Building, sur- for such acts committed before marriage. A wrongful acts.

A man may be compelled to allow his wife sustenance money while she is carrying on a suit against him, or is forced to live separately from him.

In some cases married women may testify privately as to whether their signatures to documents were made without fear or favor. Equity will assist a wife if her husband has made some mistake in executing a power of appointment in her favor.

There seems to be some manifest injustice on both sides, but the wheels of legal reform move slowly, and probably a dozen Dickenses may write a hundred Bleak House arraignments of the powers that be before any changes will be made for the benefit of either party. -New York

Funny Incldent of a Great Earthquake.

The earthquake a few years ago in Charleston, S.C., destroyed much property and some lives. But amid the wild dismay, horror and confusion, there were many humorous incidents, of which the following is a fair specimen: One evening, when one of the first severe shocks took place, an engaged couple were sitting in the parlor of one of the houses on the Battery. The young gentleman, who was of a scientific turn of mind, at once thought of the possibility of a tidal wave. He stepped to the window, opened it, thrust out his hand and instantly knew that his worst fears were real ized, for his hand went into water just outside the window. He closed the window, returned to his fiancee and told her of the dreadful truth. As by one impulse they clasped their arms around each other and stood in the middle of the room calmly awaiting their doom. They stood long, expecting the rush of the enguising water, but it did not come. The delay was dis-appointing, for they had made up their minds to a little drama. At last the delay and suspense became intolerable; the gentleman again went to the window. A little less hurried examination of the condition of things showed him that he had put his hand into an aquarium which stood just outside. - Harper's Bazar.

The Red Man and the Live Wire.

Since the weather has grown warmer the town has been overrun with hatless and shoeless Papago bucks, who seem to delight in loafing in the most frequented places and take a languid interest in whatever is going on.

A couple of them were recently indolently watching the stringing of the electric light wires in the vicinity of the postoffice, when one of the ropes by which they are hauled taut broke; the end of the wire flying back and crossing other wires, received quite a current of electricity.

One of the bucks started across the street and, reaching the innocent rope of bright copper, happened to place one bare foot upon it.

He gave a quick hop without uttering any ound and carefully examined his tole. He then cautiously approached the wire, daintily touched it with his toe, and immediately gave another jump.

By this time his companion had joined him, and upon invitation put his foot squarely upon it, and was in turn intensely mystified. Both then suddenly recollected themselves. Gazing around at a number of spectators, and seeing their proceeding had been observed and evidently enjoyed, they quickly walked off to talk the mystery over in the neighboring corral.

Lacking.

Timid Youth—Miss Gracie, perhaps my com-ing here so often may seem—may seem to—to smack of undue persistency. Demure Maiden—George, your coming here has—has never smacked of anything yet.

Hit Him There.

Tommy-Do you know when a nail cannot be formny-po you know when a name cannot be driven?

Mr. Figg-No. When?
Trommy-Wy, I don't suppose a nail could be driven if it was lead.

What They Indicate.

Bunting-The large sleeves worn now indi-cate an enlarged sense of humor in American women.

Larkin—Is that so?
Bunting—Yes; they are accustomed to laughing in their sleeve and they want more room.

He Knew.

"Now, Johnny, do you understand theroughly why I am going to whip you?"
"Yes'm. You're in bad humor this mornin' an' you've got teh lick someone before you'll feel satisfied."

He Found Out.

That Clock.

It was a rarely pretty thing, formed of bronze, with a couple of Cupids in attitudes of charming abandon, the neatest of carved flowers and various other decorations, all calculated to attract attention and please the eye.

It stood under a glass globe in a conspicuous position in the show window of a well known Broadway jeweler, and as pretty Mrs. Mayblossom, the wife of a month, passing by with her young husband, caught sight of it, she abruptly paused and gushingly exclaimed:
"Oh, George, what a lovely clock!"

"Yes, Annie, dear," replied he, "it is really

"How I wish," said she wistfully, "that you could affird to buy it. It would make such a splendid ornament for the parlor mantelpiece."
"I would be only too happy to do so, but you know, Annie, I'm a young merchant, and whatever resources I have must be strictly devoted

She gave a little sigh of regret, but urged the purchase no further, and the newly married couple shortly afterward arriving at Mr. May couple shortly afterward arriving at Mr. May-blossom's place of business he, after a tender parting from his wife, entered his store, while she continued on her way to buy some few necessary things for their newly established

In spite of his economic resolutions the young husband telt strongly inclined to gratify his pretty wife's wi h, and when therefore he found lying an his desk a letter containing a sum of money and was informed by the writer that it was the repayment of a loan which Mr. Mayblossom had made to a friend in his bachelor days and long looked upon as hopeless, he deter-mined to invest the money, which was as good as found, to the purchase of that clock.

It did not take him long to return to the Jeweler's to strike a bargain, the money he had so opportunely received being just a little more than the price asked, and the clock and globe were carefully done up in a parcel. "To what address shall I send it?" asked the polite storekeeper.

"There is my card," replied Mr. Mayblosson taking the bit of pasteboard out of his cardcase "I wish you would send it at once, as my wife is out, and I desire to surprise her by having her see the clock on her return home."
"I am sorry that it is impossible for me to do so. My delivery c'erk is absent and will not re-turn for an hour or so."

"No matter, then. Give me the parcel."

He took the clock, and having reached the sidewalk halled a commissionaire, who hap pened to pass by.

"You will take this clock to this address," he said, handing him the parcel and a card from his cardcase, which he still held in his hand, "and here's the money for your service. Now be off and see that you execute your errand promptly and don't you dare to demand any pay from the lady.

"All right, sir." said the commissionaire, "I'll do the job in a jiffg."

Mr. Mayblossom returned to his store in a very blissful state of mind, while the man ed at the card for the direction.

"Hello, what's this?" exclaimed he in some "Hello, what's this? exclaimed he in some surprise, reading the address," Miss Priscilla Dusenbury, dressmaker, 340 — street." Well, now, who'd think that such a fine gentleman would be sending clocks to dressmakers? No matter; that's none of my business. I've got my pay in advance, and I'll take her the clock.'

Now. Miss Priscilla was a charming, red cheeked, blue-eyed damsel of eighteen or nineteen years of age, possessed of a fair patronage, good health and a beau who gloried in the name of Augustus Tomkins, and was indeed a clerk in the identical jewelry store where the clock had been bought.

She was sitting stitching a robe, humming a song, and with her thoughts centered on her devoted Augustus, speculating whether he would make his customary noonday visit, when a knock sounded on the door, and op ming it she saw the commissionaire with his parcel.

"A present for you, miss," said he, placing the clock on the table before the astonished girl. "And such a fine gentleman, too. He's paid me already. I congratulate you, miss.

Good morning."

And before she could even say "Thank you he was gone.

In great surprise Priscilla untied the parcel, and an exclamation of joy escaped her lips when she beheld its contents.

"The very clock I was speaking to Augustus about. The dear, delightful fellow has bought it from his employer and sent it to me. Oh, don't I wish he'd come to-day, so that I could tell him how much obliged I am to him for his

She arranged the clock on her tiny mantel-piece and had hardly finished doing so when there was a second knock on the door, and in answer to the "Come in," in stalked Mrs. May-

She was one of Priscilla's customers and had come to see about a dress upon which the latter was just then engaged.

Her first giance naturally took in the clock.
"O'r, Mrs. Mayblossom," exclaimed Priscilla, noting the direction of her eyes, "isn't it lovely! And it was just sent to me as a present by a gentleman who loves me aver so

'Oh, he loves you, does he?" said the young wife in tones so cold and metallic that Priscilla looked at her in surprise.

"Of course he does," said she, "and I'm devoted to him. Why do you ask?"
"O's, no matter," rep'ted Mrs. Mayblossom, too proud to reveal to her dressmaker the doubts and suspicions which had entered her mind from the moment she beheld the clock: "but you will please return my dress in its un-fluished state. I shall require your services no

With which words she flounced out of the little room, leaving Priscilla more than ever astonished and mystified.

"What can have been the matter with her?" thought the dressmaker. "Can she know my Augustus, and could he have been paying her any addresses? I must ask him when he ure before the fascinating Augustus put in an

He, too, caught sight of the clock, and his manner, which had been ardent and loving at his entrance, suddenly changed to one of fierce rage and wild jealousy.

"False, fickle woman!" cried he in a melodramatic air. "It is thus you betray the fond faith which my too trusting heart has reposed in you?"

"Augustus," exclaimed she, terrified at his excited manner and tragic tones, "what do you mean?"
"That clock," cried he, pointing to the inno cent cause of all these complications.

"Why—why," stammered she, "did you not send me that?"

"I send you a hundred-dollar clock!" ex-claimed he in tones of bitter scorn. "I, with a salary of fifteen dollars a week! You cannot deceive me. You know that Mr. Mayblossom bought that clock at our store this morning. You know that he sent it to you and you received it. You took this costly present from a married man. O, Priscilla, I thought more of you, but now all is over with us. My love is dead, and I live but for revenge."

He clapped his hat over his eyes and rushed out of the room, leaving Priscilla nearly frantic with fear and grief. Meanwhile Mr. Mayblossom had quietly spent the morning attending to his business. and now, during the noonday recess, was slowly wending his way home, full of blissful anticipations of a loving welcome from his wife and utterly unconscious of the storm that was gathering on his domestic horizm.

He reached home and was greatly astonished to learn from the cook that, though dinner was ready, there was no wife in the house to share it with him. She had com home in a terrible rage, had gone directly to her room, remained there a few minutes and then left the house.

What could it mean? He went to his wife's room. It was empty. There was no clock on the mantel-piece. Ab, what was that? A letter addressed to him and in his wife's hand writing. He hastily opened it and read :

"Forever farewell. By the time you read this letter I shall have returned to my parents. Your deceit is discovered. I have learned all. First, I went to the dressmaker's and saw the clock there, and then I went to the feweler's and made sure that you bought it and sent it to her. Do not seek me, for I am torever lost to you. Your heart-broken ANNIE" Sensible, good-natured George burst into a fit of merry laughter as he read this epistle. "Here's a fine mix-up," muttered he, "and all because my wife happened to place her dressmaker's card among mine when she was arranging my car case yesterday. Well, I suppose I'll have to go after her and explain." He went into the library below preparatory to leaving the house and discovered lying on the table another letter addressed to him. "Hello!" explaimed he as he opened and glanced at the epistle. "More complications, and all on account of that clock. Let me see:

"'MR. GEORGE MAYBLOSSOM,-I need only state that Miss Priscilla Dusenbury is, or rather was, my affianced wife to prove my right to call you to account for your infamous conduct of to day. No man, and a married man at that, shall give p events to one I love, or rather have loved, and deny me the satisfaction due to a gentleman. By designating a gentleman to confer with Mr. Clark, a friend of mine, in regard to the necessary arrangements, you will confer a favor on yours, etc.,
'Augustus Tomkins.'"

"Holty, toity," cried Mr. Mayblossom, fairly convulsed with laughter. "A duel, as I live! Hang that clock anyway! I wonder what will turn up next?"

I will," exclaimed a voice melodramatically. He looked up from the challenge he was reading and beheld Priscilla standing before him, wrathful as a Nemesis and holding the unlucky clock in a threatening attitude,

"Mr. Mayblossom," said she, "I have come here to tell you that I want none of your presents. If I had known that you sent me that clock, I wouldn't have received it. It has already robbed me of my lover, and you can take your infamous gift back again."

With that she hurled the poor clock to the floor, and the glass globe was shattered into a thousand fragments, the pretty Cupids lost their arms and heads, the carved flowers were broken, and nothing remained of the beautiful but unlucky timepiece save a mass of ru'ns.

"You giddy, headstrong girl!" exclaimed he ngrily. "Now you've done the damage without listening to a word of explanation."

"I want no explanations from you, sir."

retorted she haughtily, leaving the room. As she descended the staircase she encountered Mrs. Mayblossom with her mother, a sensible, practical woman, who had induced tion of the apparently suspicious circumstances from Mr. Mayblossom.

A fistic encounter between the wife and the dressmaker seemed imminent, when the front door opened and Augustus entered.

The young man had tracked his sweetheart to the very house and had come to drag her away by force if necessary. Fortunately at this moment Mr. Mayblossom descended from the room above, and after some difficulty managed to give the necessary explanation. The result of all was a repentant wife, two contrite and crestfallen lovers and—a ruined clock.—London Tit Bits.

The Adventures of Jones.

VIL. - THE RISE AND FALL OF JONES CITY.

"That was a good story," briefly observed

"Thank you." returned Jones. "As I have remarked so many times before, I simply re-lated the facts. Of course Jackson will pretend that he does not believe it. Instead of treasuring up such things for use in the future he rejects them, and thus misses golden oppor tunities to improve his young mind. He will see his mistake when it is too late.

"How long did you stay with the circust" asked Smith.

"Two years," answered Jones

"But what I'd like to enquire," broke in Jackson Poters, with some earnestness, "is if elephant and teach him to swing on a trapeze by his tail, like a monkey?"

floor, and at that moment the little boy lyelled "Rats!"

"I don't know why I couldn't, Jackson," re-plied Jones. "I taught that one, and he was just a plain Asiatic elephant. The swinging was comparatively easy—the hardest part was to teach him to twist his tail about the bar and raise himself up. He would have been per-forming yet if that rival showman hadn't greased the second trapezs bar, so that his tall slipped and unwound in making his $10,000 challenge leap. After that I went out to Dakota and began in the real estate business by founding Jones City and making it the capital of Tumble Weed County."

Jackson Peters did not seem to be wholly satisfied. "Perhaps the bears out there swung from branch to branch by their tails," he suggested, in a tone of fine sarcasm.

"Impossible," answered Jones. "It was a prairie country, so there were no trees, and consequently no bears. Besides, bears have no tails. You show a lamentable ignorance of both geography and natural history. It was while at Jones City that I patented my Dakota pumpkin anchor. Before that it was impos-sible, as you doubtless know, to raise this nutritious vegetable in the Territory."
"No, I didn't know it," returned Jackson

Peters. "Why was it impossible?"

"The vines grew so fast that they were the pumpkins all out dragging them along the ground. I sold my patent for $5,000, and used the money in booming Jones City. I built two churches and a theater, and started a daily newspaper-the Jones City Volcanic Eruption But it was a severe blow to the town when it lost the county-seat. At that time—!t was ten years ago-the Dakota court-houses were kept on wheels, I may almost say. One afternoon a party of men from Jumpersburg crept up, hitched six mules on my court house, and trot ted away with it to their own town.

"But I was not discouraged, and determined on the boldest stroke ever attempted in the Territory. It was nothing more nor less than to bring the Capitol building down from Bismarck and put it in the place of my court ouse, thus making Jones City the capital o the Territory. Fearing that the old territorial officers might not come, I hired a new set of officials, including a governor, auditor, judges, attorney general, and so forth, choosing them mostly from my old county officers, who had been left behind. Borrowing the court house wheels from J y Bird county, I took my terri-torial officers, fifty leading citizens and ten spans of mules, and proceeded to Bismarck, Under cover of darkness we adjusted the wheels and hitched on the mules. Most of my officials took their places in the several rooms, and as the level rays of the rising sun shot athwart the great broad plain, carpeting it with cloth of gold and waking the song-birds to melody and the wild flowers to prodigality of fragrance, I touched up the wheel mules from the front portico, and we rolled away out of town, with my governor on the roof blowing a tin horn and my superintendent of schools, a very conservative man, on top of the chimney firing his revolver into the air and singing Hail Columbia. 1t was a noble scene, and one which lives in my memory, but the effort was a failure. Gentlemen, I left D kota without a cent in the world."

Jones rested his cheek in his hand and looked

"But tell me what was the difficulty," said

Yes, it is no more than right that you should know. When we were about ten miles out my attorney-general came to me and raised a point of law. It was this: That Jones City would not become the legal capital of the Territory unless we had the cellar which belonged under the Capitol building. I gave the reins to my territorial secretary, and directed the attorney-general instantly to bring a test case before the district court, then sitting in its chambers on the first floor. It decided that he was right. Then, as we rattled along across the prairie, I appealed the case to the supreme court, on the second floor. It confirmed the decision of the lower court. I instantly stopped, unhitched the mules, and went back after the cellar. We were all arrested at Bismarck, with the aid of troops from Fort A. Lincoln, for abduction. It appeared that the beggarly janitor of the Capitol was hidden in his room in the attic, and that we had kidnapped the scoundrel without knowing it. We got off at the trial, but it cost me every cent I had. To-day the antiquarian who searches for Jones City fluds only the spreading, trackless plain, with the June roses looking up saucily for the warm kisses of the sun, and a san of prairie-lilies billowing itself in long rolling waves under the bold caresses of the ardent

No one spoke when Jones stopped, but all looked at Jackson Peters. His eyes ware closed as if in sleep, but there was a nervous half painful expression on his face, and even the waiter, when he came in, knew that he was not asleep .- Harper's Weekly.

A Horrid Toad Dawn Her Neck.

It was a cold, bold, horrid little squat toad. not much bigger than a piece of chalk, but it captured a street car in Grand street last Friday night, and stood up the passengers, too, in a manner that would have commanded the respect of an experienced stage robber.

The car was going east, and was filled with shop girls and shopping women. Its windows were open, and that fact inspired a little boy, the owner of the toad, with evil thoughts. The little boy held the toad in his hand. He looked thoughtful, as if he were considering looked toougustus, as the same to which a toad the various profitable purposes to which a toad could be applied. Tying it to the stick of a rocket leaves most of the fun to the imagination, and slipping it into daddy's trow-ers porkets may bring about unpleasant conse

The Grand street car came along and interrupted the little boy's meditations. At an open vindow space the bare neck of a girl offered a shining mark. The little boy crept up beside the car, reached cautiously in through the win-dow and carefully dropped the tuad down the selected neck. The girl screamed, screwed her hand down the back of her neck, and acreamed again, this time louder than before. She drew It was already near noon, and but a short like one capsed tar Mrs. Maybloseom's depart- you pretend to tell us that you could take an out something, threw it in horror on the car

Every woman in the car stood on the seate and shricked, the driver put on the brakes, the conductor rubbed his eyes nervously, ap proached the small hopping thing, looked re lieved, and ejected the intruder. The little boy sat on the curb, and looked up at the sky and smiled .- Neu York Sun.

Another Nationality. "Your new maid is a brunette, is she not, Mrs. Partington?"
"Oh, no. She's French.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Man Cures others, will cure you

STOP C and H B examine I A for B L yourself D Walker's R E Photos E are the best YONGE ST

THE RECOGNIZED STANDARD BRANDS

CIGARS MUNGO -CABLE -EL PADRE MADRE E HIJO 10 & 15c.

The Best Value The Safest Smoke The Most Reliable

THE PUREST OF THE PURE NO CHEMICALS ARTIFICIAL FLAVORING THE BEST VALUE

ATKINSON'S Parisian Tooth Paste The Most Agreeable Dentifrice in Use

The Canada Sugar Refining Co.

(Limited) MONTREAL

LUMP SUGAR "CROWN" Granulated EXTRA GRANULATED CREAM SUGARS YELLOW SUGARS SYRUPS

SOLE MAKERS

The Standard Fuel Co., Ltd.

General Offices, 58 King St. East 'Phones 863 and 1836

We handle only choice grades of

Anthracite and Bituminous Coal ALL RAIL DELIVERY.

Our Stock of Wood is the Best and Largest in the City

Summer Wood and Kindling a Specialty Your order is respectfully solicited.

NOEL MARSHALL, Vice-Pres. and Gen. Mgr.
McKENZIE,
President.
A. J. SINCLAIR,
Soc. and Tress

Successors to J. Eveleigh & Co.

39 King Street West

FINE TRUNKS

TRAVELLING BAGS All Kinds of Travaller's Requisites.

Pocket Books Shopping Bags

Dog Collars Repairing in all Branches

SPECIAL NOTICE

CONSUMERS

FOR A LIMITED TIME

We will, on receipt of

50 OF OUR TRADE MARKS

CAIPS

In any form, forward prepaid, one of our elegant

Chromo Photographs

Art Studies

RITCHIE & Montreal, Canada, and London, Eng.

The DERBY CAPS will be found on all our goods-PLUG, CUT PLUG TOBACCO and CIGARETTES

FINEST STOCK IN CANADA 50c. TO $1 PER DOZEN

Carnations, Sweet Peas, Smilax and other Out Flowers. Floral designs and wedding orders filled on shortest notice

H. DALE 238 Yonge Street Telephone 783

MARTIN McMILLAN

GROCER 481 Yonge St. NEW SEASON'S

JAPAN TEAS FINE NEW BLACK TEAS INDIAN AND

CEYLON TEAS MARTIN McMILLAN, 431 Yonge St.

wicke WAS DO when extrao for 21, year a off wit great u to the someth and W thèse t did not He wa to deliv his arm head. value to It was one at fifth .

swerable looked a ter's cou would h Rosedale to 58, wo going do Webster 109, when ner carrie well play in the m very good Toronto on Sature Dean, Comen who with slov takes with the wick bowlers w maidens 10 overs, Goldingha during his gan to hit did Wadsv indeed, ow be a week! The three Leigh, Fav overs, of w runs. On the ance to th lower en changed results.

contributor 33 out of 4 whom got The Parl Saturday, a through the made 24, be more than sented still Chambers, bats in the

while the re

more than defeated N

posing of the McMaster 3

made 1 run. the 6 duck e East Toron Junction an bitter cup" a piled 144 rup Edwards Edwards 15. while five of figures, Ha Edwards bro match, as th and were at Rosedale me playing. Mr. Gale, nessed the F day and was throwing in. Parkdale's timproving th In next we page with as dale Cricket the games placed an outin the tourists article. Tuesday wr being 45 year class matche runs, and his 393

Ltd.

East

Coal

Largest

ecialty

IR, d Trees.

Vest

KS

AGS

ollars

ches

GE

RS

ME

ARKS

id, one

ns

S

GO.

DBACCO

E.

NADA

t Flowers.

one 783

LAN

nge St.

TEAS

TEAS

TEAS onge St.

Eng.

Cricket Notes.

HE Aurora and Toronto match was another instance of "wilting" which appears to affect the opponents of the T. C. C. The average value of each wicket was a little over 2 runs, and at one stage of the Aurora innings it rose to 3, the fifth wicket falling for 15 runs; the last five wickets added 6 runs, while the longest stand was made after the fall of the fourth wicket, when 3 runs were added. Toronto did nothing extraordinary until the third wicket had fallen for 21, and then Laing and Wadsworth put on 65 runs. Wadsworth is showing fine form this year as an all-round man, and generally comes off with either the bat or the ball. He is a very free bat and a very tricky bowler, making great use of his head. Laing, on his form up to the present, is the best all-round man here, it being the exception when he does not do something in either one of the departments. In the match alluded to his bowling analysis read 8 overs, 3 maidens, 11 runs, 4 wickets, and Wadsworth's 8 overs, 4 maidens, 10 runs, 5 wickets. Out of Toronto's total of 155 runs these two men made 119. Aurora's bowlers did not come off at all, although Webster's queer delivery was enough to puzzle any man. He walks up to the wicket with an action that gives the impression that he is going to deliver an underhand ball and then slings his arm right over, his hand going above his head. Forrester and Bowbanks were of great value to Aurora, the former taking 4 wickets for 16 runs, while the latter caught two men. It was stated that he was also morally answerable for the dismissal of McMaster, for he looked so fiercely at the umpire that the latter's courage failed at the thought of what would happen if he gave an adverse decision, and McMaster had to retire, run out. The two Rosedale men put up a great game in Aurora's second innings, bringing up the score from 15 to 58, when they both retired one after the other. Then there was a great downfall for which Hoskin was answerable, four wickets going down for two runs, the bowler doing the hat trick. Then came a big stand by Reed and Webster, who brought the score from 62 up to 109, when Webster was caught, while his part-ner carried his bat through for an extremely well played 45, in which he did not get a single boundary. Want of practice was discernible in the manner he let a number of off balls escape punishment, but his forward play was very good. Toronto checked Parkdale's victorious career

Toronto checked Parkdale's victorious career on Saturday, when the Western Club was defeated by 20 runs and 7 wickets. Leigh and Dean, Clark and Hall were the only men who offered any very serious resistance to the bowling, which was changed at the lower end frequently, Laing bowling unchanged from the exhibition end with good results. Dean's 21 was made by strong, useful cricket, but he does not appear to be at home with slow bowling, as he made several mis-takes with Laing's towards the end of his innings. He is also a promising man behind the wickets. The analysis of the Toronto bowlers was: Laing 22 overs, 10 maidens, 25 runs and 4 wickets; at one stage he sent down 7 maidens in succession. Wadsworth 8 overs, 2 maidens, 15 runs, 3 wickets, and Goldingham 10 overs, 3 maidens, 20 runs and 3 wickets. Goldingham showed some very nice cricket during his 28; Laing, after playing steadily, began to hit and lifted several in great style, as did Wadsworth. The ground was very slow indeed, owing to the storm, which appears to be a weekly institution like the half holiday. The three wickets which fell were credited to Leigh, Fawke and S. Black, costing 34, 27 and 3 runs respectively. Clark sent down 13 overs, of which 4 were maidens, at a cost of 30

On the 'Varsity lawn Toronto's other eleven defeated Norway handily, closing their innings when the 6th wicket fell for 101, and then disposing of the Norwegians for 49. Waldle 13, McMaster 29 and Brough 35 were the highest contributors to the score, while Oldfied made 33 out of 49 for Norway, leaving 16 runs to the credit of the remaining 10 players, five of whom got duck eggs.

The Parkdale colts met with a reverse on Saturday, which appears to have been a black day for the Occidents, being defeated by East Toronto 71 to 27. C. Maddocks carried his bat through the innings for 25 and D. L. Thomson made 24, but none of the others could make more than five runs. Parkdale's score pre-sented still more peculiar features. Artic Chambers, who is one of the most promising bats in the West End and who has distin-guished himself on several occasions, made 20, while the remaining seven men gave very little more than their moral support. Matthews made 1 run, there wers 6 extras, which, plus East Toronto's other team journeyed to the Junction and whipped the C.P.R. men, while the Junction Town Club were tasting "defeat's bitter cup" at the hands of Rosedale, who comoliter cup at the hands of Rosedale, who com-piled 144 runs, their opponents having made 94. J. Edwards 23, W. H. Garrett 22, and C. Edwards 15, not out, were the highest scores, while five of the Rosedale men reached double figures, Hardy 22, Howard 14, Petman 32, Clement 23, A. N. Garrett 16, not out. The Edwards brothers did some good work in this match, as they made 45 runs between them and were answerable for the dismissal of five Rosedale men. There were only four of them playing.

Mr. Gale, Old Buffer, of cricket fame, witnessed the Parkdale Toronto match on Saturday and was greatly struck by the fielding and throwing in, which he said was first-class. Parkdale's tour has had the effect of greatly improving the work of the club in this depart-

In next week's issue MACK will occupy this cricketer has ever compiled half that total. To bridge thirty years with an average of 41 runs is a performance that will probably never be repeated in the history of cricket.

A queer incident happened during the course of the same game. Mr. Wright, who was umpire, called a wide, whereupon Laing promptly reached and cut the ball hot and hard to point. Now it is one of the hard and feat rules of the game that the umpire, decifast rules of the game that the umpire's decision must be respected, and not disputed or contradicted, yet it would puzzle the Maryle-bone Club to provide for a case like that.

The batting averages and bowling analysis of the Upper Canada College eleven read as

			Not lute.	High		Rune
F. Waldle	1	11	1	44		164	16.4
Counsell	1	2	0	24		127	10.5
Eby		8	3	16	not out	50	10
Moss	1	2	0	34		105	87
T. McMaster	1	1	0	50		95	8 6
Ellio	1	0	1	41		84	84
Boultbee	10	D-	2	76	not : ut	68	6.8
Heakir	1	1	1	21		67	6 9
Street	1	5	0	11		24	4.8
R. Waldie		6	2	9	not out	24	4.
Wright	1	0	0.	8		28	28
E McMaster		7	0	6.		7	1.
(	vere.	Maid	ens.	Runs.	Wicks	60. A	verage
F. Waldie	140	42		271	30		9 03
T McMaster	141	41		205	32		9 25
Ettis	35	12		.87	9		9 67
Hoekin	1:0	44		239	23		10 39
Boulthee	103	29	10	227	21		11 33
1		-

Correspondence Coupon

The above Coupon MUST accompany every graphological tudy seni in. The Editor requests correspondents to ob-erce the following Rules: 1. Graphological studies must omist of at least six likes of regional matter, including eneral capital letters. 2 Letters will be answered in their several capital letters. If necessarily an american state and accountances. Correspondents need not take up their own and the Editor's time by writing reminders and requests for haste. 3. Quotations, scraps or postal cards are not studied. 4. Please address Correspondence Column. Enclosures unless accompanied by coupons are not studied.

THMPRST -You omitted coupon.

LITTLE GIRL.-See answer No. 1 to F. M. B., also to LAVINIA.—Your second letter, enclosing coupon, received.

Your writing will be attended to in its turn.

F. M. B.—1. Your other letter was answered in turn. I cannot give you a second delineation. 2. Your writing is excellent.

DEAN.—Don't you bother your noddle about how much stention we pay to Toronto and outside cities. Just fix rour mind on the fact that a coupon must be sent before rour excellent writing is studied.

Mack.—Painetaking, orderly, ac xious for eucoses and a little lacking in suap and decision, some imagination, rever-sore, and a capacity of self-desial. Writing will change; at present delineation is not worth much.

QUERNIS B.—You are very correct in judgment, a little reserved in affection, frank in speech, and somewhat roman-tic; temper is good, opinions conservative and love of beauty, aventathy, tase and ideality are very evident.

Volum—I don't see anything in the way of your success. You have very good qualities, but writing is immature; undue impulse and impatience mar it a little, but you will eventually "get there," I am quite sure. You should be successful in music. I cannot say about stenography.

Sinapow. 1. Considering the matter of your study, you chose a fine nom de plume. 2. You are communicative, self-willed, a little tempersome, somewhat humorous, generous, but rather too f. and of detail, very impulsive but not markedly vivacious, undoubtedly clever and somewhat of a thinker. You have some imagination, energy and snap, lack task and perception, and are given to conceal your real feelings.

real feelings.

Hoffpur A.—1. I choerely trust the turning point was up. 2. Your writing shows individuality, light but firm will, percishent effort, some carelessees of detail, a very grean need of congenial companionship and rather a tendency to be over frank in speech. You are impulsive, fond of planning, alive to beauty in every form, and slightly weak in self-control. Your judgment ten't always to be taken as final.

taken as mas.

May Bloosom.—1. You can always re-brot as your lamp and maks is look as nice as new. 2. Wash the slik hand-kerchie is in pearline and warm water, putting a little blue in the water, sines in blue water and hang out over twenty-four hours to whiten. When they once get yellow it is hard to get them white again. Thanks for your kind wishee; I really cannot give you a econd delineation. See how far I am behind.

how far I am behind.

BLONDIR.—Your writing gives a very fair study. You are hopeful, bright and fond of society, rather open in speech and decidedly sweet in temper. Your nature is kind and your sympathy quick; sense of beauty is also et ong. I cannot imagine any immaturity in this strong and prestly study. Your affert is light but constant, and you have powers of endurance, some originality and a habit of consentment are yours. Eave you read Hardy's novels, or Besant's, ar Rudyard Kipling's? and I am sure you would like Sir Edwin Arnold's poetry.

RIO GRANDR.—I. You and your cousin deserve my best you would like Sir Edwin Arnold's poetry.

Rio Gaanda.—I. You and your cousin deserve my best thanks—one interested me and the other made me laugh. We get so tired of tone person whom you would have us send out to be done away with by the "Apaches Kid" ("whoever he may be!) that we looked him up. He is near the Don with Governor Greene. 2 Your writing shows independence, warm but not selfish afficiation, prudence, love of society, perseverance and a little tendency to despond. You are somewhat tenacious, oourageous, and I should not sejoy a quarrel with you. Am afraid I should get the worst of it.

CLEMENTINE.—Thanks for your pleasant letter. We are glad you erjoy SATURDAY NIGHT in your distant home. I glad you enjoy SATURDAY Night in your distant home. I don't think you read the Sarnia paragraph quite right. The persun mentioned did not go. I am too busy to kill files. I let 'am commit suicide on the shicky paper. I cannot quite assure you on the Sunday rar question, but agree with you in your hopes for the future. Toronto is very pleasant in the summer after all, and I am glad you can appreciate it and want to come back. I've been comen in your present home, and made some very kind friends there. Write again when you have time.

Axioo.—It is quite interesting to get letters like yours, and you would be surpy-leed if you knew how many I get. All over America are "xile Canadians who have followed their families or been taken by their husbands to far-off curners of the continues. They all years for their own country and say again ann sgales, "I am a loyal Canadian," was when, like you, they have been living : say seas in the Sisates. I shall always be gird to hear from you if you have time to write. 2 Your study shows strong and decidate feelings, warm affortions, generosity, impulse and have time to write. I four study shows strong and decidate feelings, warm affections, generosity, inpulse and great perseverance, careful method and rather a taste for fun and optimistic views generally. You are conservative and decidately original, with a forceful and independent character and a wholesome amount of ambition.

In next week's issue Mack will occupy this page with an account of the tour of the Park-dale Cricket Club, dealing not se much with the games played as with the fun incidental to such an outing. If possible, a group picture of the tourists will be secured to accompany the article.

Tuesday was the birthday of Dr. G. Grace, he being 45 years of age. His average in first-class matches for the past thirty years is 41 tuns, and his total score in that time in good games is 40,060 runs. It is said that no other potato balls or haked potatoes are sometimes eserved. They are not exactly elegant but testy. Don't have much cake. Sally Luns, hot biscuit and we files or mu files are also after the mean course is over. A slight home made sponge or pound take would be st fill clent. Unless salad is excellent don't attempt it. Make cient. Unless sailed is excellent don't attempt it. Makes the dreesing rich, thick and abundant; put plenty of measoning and oream. I should think pouring tea and or flas for sixteen people would be too much for you. Why not have lots of little sugar and oream bowls about and let the servant pour tea at a side table and another pass it on a salver to each guest? She might have a oup of its and one of coffee or the salver and side table in the servant pour tea at a side table and another pass it on a salver to each guest? She might have a oup of its and one of coffee or the salver and side rules which the guest would prefer. Light wine is nice in summer with the ment course, or lemonade. The large dinner naphins are always used when meant is served. Servictive are not at all corused when meat is served. Servicties are not at all our rect. Men hate them at any time.

The Man Who Was Techy.

About half a mile beyond the cross-roads I came to a cabin around which a dozen or more people were clustered, and when I stopped and asked what had happened one of the men re plied:

"We reckon ole Mose Bingham hees dun died this time fur shore!"

"Who was Mose Bingham?" "Old man-powerful techy-lived on this yere equat of land. That's his ole woman."

The woman was about ffry years of age, and was smoking a corn-cob pipe, and was taking matters very calmly. She approached me and

Stranger, kin ye preach a funeral sermon ? "I never have."

"Needn't be much of a sermon," she continued. "It's fur my ole man, inside. I reckon he's dun gone at last. If yo' ar' gwine to stop around yere to night I'd like to hev yo'do the preachin' to morrow. Mebbe, however, he hain't dead, and you only lose time."

"What was the matter with him, ma'am?"
"Nothin' but techiness. He was the techiest man in this hull state. That is the fifth time he's died on me in two years."

"How died?" "Why, flopped right down on his back, shet his eyes, an' dun died. He ginerally comes to life arter I've coaxed him fur a couple of hours. but this time he 'pears to hev died fur good, it's bin nigh fifteen hours since he flopped down. "Yes, I reckon he won't prance 'round on this yere airth no mo'," added one of the men in the group. I had a little talk with the wife and four or five others, and then we all entered the cabin The old man lay on the bed, and at first glacce he seemed to be a corpse. After watching him a couple of minutes, however, I made up my mind that he wasn't and, standing beside him, I said to the woman :

"Yes, madam, your husband has passed away, and as you want to know what he died of I will begin operations. I think I will take out his heart first. Two of you bring in a tub of water.

Both of the dead man's eyes flew open and he sat up and looked around. We returned his stare and nothing was said for a minute. Then he whirled his legs off the bed and said & Yo' all think yo'r powerful peart, I reckon but thar's no peartness about it! I jest com back to life to tell the ole woman not to feed that yere mewl over two ears of co'n at a feed in', but bein' yo' allar' feeling so powerful peart I won't die no mo'! I'll jest live to hurt yo'r feelin's an' spite the ole woman!"—Detroit

SUMMER RESORTS.

The Iroquois House BELŒIL MOUNTAINS

ST. HILAIRE, P. Q.

Canada's Lovely Summer Resort OPEN JUNE 1ST

New Management, New Rates, New Buildings

For rooms apply to—
OLIVER MERCHANT, Manager,
St. Hilaire, Que.
Or 155 St. James St., Montreal.

STANLEY HOUSE LAKE JOSEPH

The Muskoka Summer Resort is Now Open

W. B. MACLEAN, Proprietor. HOTEL LOUISE, LORNE PARK

NOW OPEN
G. O. H. Orehestra Wednesday & Saturday REDUCED RATES FOR JUNE
For rates apply—

E. PATTERSON,
Lorue Park, Ont.

BELVIDERE HOTEL

PARRY SOUND

NOW OPEN TO RECEIVE GUESTS

ner resort is

The seemery is unusually picture que and the air pure. Excesions opportunities for Scating, Sathing, Fishing, we. Terms moderate. The trip by Steamer Manilau from enclanguishene and Midland is mus of the most beautiful PARRY SOUND HOTEL CO.

STEPHENSON HOUSE Saline Mineral Springs and Baths

Under the management of Mr C. V. WARD. ST. CATHARINES - - - CANADA Send for illustrated descriptive pamphlet.

JOHN LABATT'S ALE AND STOUT

Visitors to the World's Fair

Will find these reliable ALE AND STOUT on sale at all the leading hotels, restaurants, clubs and refreshment rooms in CHICAGO. Families supplied by C. JEVNE & CO, 110-112 Madison Street, Chicago.

ASK FOR THEM

Brewery at London, Ont., Canada

Queen's Royal Hotel NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE.

HOPS EVERY SATURDAY EVENING

KUHN'S FAMOUS BUFFALO ORCHESTRA Delightful beach bathing, pleasant boating, beautiful rides and drives.

rides and drives.

The BLACK BASS FISHING is the firest in America.

Tennis lawns and bowling greens in good condition.

Special Faturday to Monday rate, $6.50, including return fare on Niagara Navigation Company's splendid steamers.

H. WINNETT, Niagara-on-the-Lake.

BEAUMARIS HOTEL TONDERN ISLAND

MUSKOKA LAKE

EDWARD PRCWSE, Proprietor

THE PENETANGUISHENE
Carada's Great Summer Braari
The 30,000 islands of the Georgian Bay, Lake Huron, 877 fest above sea level, 15 acres of Waterside Park.
Four hours from Toronto. Through Pulman car 8,30 a.m. For terms, &c., address THE SECRETARY, "The Penetanguishene," Penetanguishene, Ont., Canada.

FIFE HOUSE WINDERMERE - MUSKOKA

This favorite summer resort is delightfully situated on the shores of Lake Rorseau, and is now open for the reception of guests. The table is plenifically supplied with all the reason's delicacies, and the dining-room is famed for its sphendid view of the lake. Nice sandy beach for hathing and daily mail, express and selegraph from all points. All it quiries receive prompt assention.

DAVID FIFE, Js., Proprietor.

Maplehurst Hotel MUSKOKA

ass in all its appointments. Now open, ready for J. P. BROWN, Proprietor.

PROSPECT HOUSE Port Sandfield, Muskoka

This popular and well known first-class hotel is now open for the reception (f guesta. Bituaked as the junction of lakes Rosseau and Joseph, and being sim feel above Lake Outsire, the location is the most delightful in Muscha region. Still under the personal management of ENOCH COX, Proprietor.

Rates on application.

The Monteith House MUSKOKA

THE FAMCUS SHADOW RIVER Has the most modern sanitary arrangements of any hotel in this region and has daily mall and express. Telegraph office in the building.

Raise cheerfully quoted on application to—

JOHN MONTEITH, Proprietor.

The ST. LEON SPRINGS HOTEL

(THE SARATOGA OF CANADA)

Under the management of Mr. M. A. THOMAS, of Toronto,

OPEN FOR GUESTS JUNE 15

An illustrated backlet showing views of surrounding scenary sent free on application.

STRATTON HOUSE

Port Carling, Muskoka Lakes Is now open for the season. Terms on application. JOHN FRASER, Proprietor.

MUSKOKA SUMMER RESORT INTERLAKEN HOTEL PORT CARLING

The most central house on the Muskoka Lakes. Terms 20 per week. Special rester to a party of four gentlemen me four ladies. Cottage to let, with or without board. R. A. ARKSEY, Propeletor.

Peninsular Park Hotel

BARRIE

Situated on Lake Simose, only 60 miles ride by G. T. R. Beats meet every train. Under the Management of MR. S. BARNETT Toronto liner of Trade.

It is appointed with every modern convenience and improvement. Electric lighting. Electric bell attached to every room. Perfect arrangements for comfort of guests. Superior Board-Moderate Charges Private Bathing Houses for Ladies

Forty Acres of Ground Fishing - Boating - Tennis
Bowling Alley - Ball Room

The management are determined to spare ocities ex-pense or pains to make this recort

THE FROPLET FAVORITE

Open for recognion of guests June 29.
For terms apply to—

E. BARNETT,
Froprisor Board of Trade Cafe, Torot to.

SICK
SICK
OLDER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLA
MANAGEMENT LITTLE LIVER PILLA

HEAD

ACHE

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

Medium Waist Short Waist

AND MADE IN 20 DIFFERENT STYLES

WORD TO THE WISE

ALL LADIES

Fur Garments Repaired or Remodeled

into fashionable styles will save much unnecessary delay by leaving them NOW with J. & J. LUGSDIN

101 Yonge Street - - Toronto Telephone 2575

Dry Kindling Wood

HARVIE & CO., 20 Sheppard Street Telephone 1870 or send Post Card.

FOR FIFTY YEARS! MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used by Millions of Mothers for their children while Teething for over Fifty Years. It southes the child, softens the guess, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the bast remedy for diarrhes.

Twenty-five Cents a Bottle,

DUNN'S

THE COOK'S BEST FRIEND

For a Winnipeg Church. A good salary to a capable man, and if necessary a suitable situation obtained. None but good readers need apply. Address, with references— TENOR, Drawer 1347, Winnipeg.

Music.

HE following caustic but play ful letter from a German student will be read with interest. It would seem from the reserve force it indicates that the contract of extinguishing local German music students still lacks several points from being completed. It is a matter of deep regret, how-ever, that the existence of this Teutonic musical element should prove such a nightmare to some of their fellow musicians. Surely brotherly love should rule among members of a profession who base the development of their art upon principles of harmony. Would it not be wise and consistent for those who so loudly profess to be working for the "art's so loudly profess to be working to the acts sake" to extend a fraternal welcome to brother musicians who desire a hand in the glorious mission of the musical evangelization of their native country even though they may have been guilty of equipping themselves for their work in the land of Beethoven and Schumann work in the land of Beethoven and Schumann's Musical Editor Saturday Night:

The climax of an absurd and childish feeling against students from Germany seems to have been reached in the jealous drivel of Analysis, the newly constituted man Friday, of a much concerned and disgruntled circle of local agitators. I have recently returned from the land which is so much reviled and little understood by some of our local musicians, whose dog days reminiscences of European travel have furnished so much amusement to the profession during the past two or three years. I have noticed, however, in spite of their twaddle that some of the most important positions in this city and province are intrusted to, and capably filled by, those who have specially qualified themselves in Germany. And what is more to the point, I think I may safely say that the work done by them will at least bear v-ry favorable comparison with the best accomplished by musicians who have been educated elsewhere. Now on behalf of my fellow-students from Germany, I would say that a more amiable and forgiving circle three does not exist in Toronto, provided we are allowed to mind our own business. When the attempt is made, however, as it frequently is, to do this for us, the noble spirit of anti-Philistinism brought with us from Germany will no doubt assert itself. No country (us could readily be shown) is more liberal in its musical sentiment regarding deserving work from foreign cuntries than Germany, Tais sam liberal feeling has been acquired by students who have studied there, but with it also the ability to estimate at its proper value the humbug and pretense which is the chief stock-in-trade of some of our slanderers; and hence their tears. I have yet to h-ar one unjust word regarding Eogland from any German student, and am pleased that the wild statements of Analysis on this point were reproduced by you without comment. Rubinstein (a Russian), however, has asserted that the proportion of critically competent Germans, French and English, is as fifty,

The question of nationalism in music has recently been receiving considerable attention at the hands of some of the greatest of living musicians, the opinions pro and con being interesting as illustrating the difference of opin-ion existing on this point. D. Dvorak's belief that a new school of music might be founded u on the negro melodies of America does not seem to be shared by most of the greatest authorities to whom the matter has been referred. These seem to feel that the foundation of all music of a permanent character must be built on the models of great works of a more serious nature than the doggerel tunes of the A merican negro, the majority of which by the way are the creations of third-rate white composers. All the points so far advanced in this discussion were brought out at the last mest-ing of the Canadian Society of Musicians, when question of a new school of music for Canada, based upon French Canadian melodies was considered.

There are in Germany sixty-nine cities and towns which support permanent grand opera establishments, with all that implies as regards vocal and orchestral resources. During the past season these produced eight hundred and fifty performances of Wagner's works alone, including two hundred and nineteen of Lohengrin. one hundred and eighty-seven of Tannhauser, of the Flying Dutchman and Die Walkuere ninety-nine each, and Die Meistersinger seventy-flye. The modern Italian school was also unusually generously represented and Berlioz's operatic works, so seldom heard, seem to have grown in favor. A cycle of this great composer's works has been undertaken at the Carlsruhe Opera under the direction of Falix Mottl, the premier conductor of that enterprising establishment.

Mr. Isaac Suckling, whose success as an impressario has marked him as one of the clever est providers of high-class entertainments in the Dominion, has been appointed acting Secretary of the Massey Music Hall opening Musical Festival in May next and business manager of the projected performances of Mendelssohn's Antigone in the Grand Opera House in February, under the auspices of the University of Toronto. I have not as yet heard who is to have the permanent management of the Massey Hall, but if I may be allowed to offer a sugges-tion I doubt whether a better appointment than Mr. Suckling could be made.

Mr. W. O. Forsyth and family are spending the summer at Niagara Falls.

The genial organist of the Bloor street Metho dist church, Mr. T. C. Jeffers, and wife, are summering at Lorne Park.

Miss Denzil, of the Conservatory of Music staff, is spending the vacation at Rochester,

Mr. F. H. Torrington purposes visiting Chicago, Boston and Peak's Island during

During Signor Guiseppe Dinelli's absence in England, Mr. W. H. Bowes is fulfilling his number of forty-five sat down to a sumptuous duries at the church of the Messiab. Mr. Bowes has lately some to Toronto from Winddecorated by wreaths and festoons of pure sor, England, where he was organist at St.

Rumor has it that Mr. Paul Morgan, the well known 'cellist, has accepted an appoint-ment with the Damrosch orchestra for next MODERATO.

Niagara-on-the-Lake.

There were very few of the inhabitants of this pretty little village and very few of its summer visitors absent from S', Mark's church on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when Miss Louise Thompson, only daughter of the late Colonel Thompson, was married to Capt. George Thairs of Ridley College, St. Cathar-Nothing could have been more beautiful than the decorations of the church. Great masses of white water lilies, roses and daisies filled the font, while the communion table and the base of the chancel window were literally banked with most exquisite flowers. The four front rows of seats on either side of the aisle were reserved for the guests, and to signify that fact to those who escaped the watchful eyes of the ushers immense bunches of white daisles were tied with streamers of white ribbon to the end of each bench. The bride wore a very becoming gown of heliotrope, with wide hat to match, and was given away by her brother, Mr. S. Thompson, of the Queen's Royal. Some of those present at last Saturday's hop were : Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt, Miss Moffatt, Major and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. L. Mc Murray, Mr. and the Misses Meredith, Miss Howe, Mr. and Miss Bernard, Mr. P. and Mr. E. Ball, Miss Burnhaw, Mrs. H. Hewgill, Mr. and Mrs. J. Scott, Miss Handerson, Mr. Matheson, Mr. Grahame, Mrs. H. Garrett, Mr. F. Geddes, the Misses Heward, Mr. J. Russell, Mr. S. Houston, Mrs. Ball, Mr. Watt, Miss Milloy, the Misses Kingsmill, Mr. Geale, Mr. and the Misses Bulton, Mr. W. Ferguson, Mr. E. Brown, Mr. G. Parker, Mc. Tilley and Mr. Beck.

Mrs. Taylor is the quest of Mrs. Charles Ball. Miss F. Dickson returned to Galt on Friday of last week. Mrs. J. O. Heward and family are among the latest arriva's. They will occupy Miss Dickson's cottage, near the Queen's, this summer.

Miss Rye gave a very pleasant garden party on Thursday afternoon of last week. Mrs. R. G. Dickson has been spending the past week with friends in Toronto.

Mr. F. Geddes of Dandas spent last Saturday and Sunday with his parents. Miss Allen and Miss Langmuir were among the visitors in town last week.

Mr. M. Boyd is the guest of Mr. A. C. Howe. Miss M. Hewgill returned from Toronto this

Mrs. Moffatt gave a very jolly little supper after the hop last Saturday, at which two of the belles of the ball-room were present.

The following were at the Queen's Royal last Saturday : Miss Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beatty, Miss Maud Beatty, Miss Louise Worts, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parker, Mr. G. Parker, Mr. L. A. Tilley, Mr. F. Smith, Mr. E. R. Brown, Mr. J. H. Beck, Mrs. and Miss Hunt, Mr. H. D. Campbell, Mrs. Campbell, Mr. Thos. Coulter, Mr. and Mrs. Bunting, Mr. R. W. Mathews, Mr. Homer Dxm, Mr. H. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riordan, Mr. and Mrs. J.

Scott, and Mr. and Mrs. Bristol. Miss Dennistoun and Miss McDonald, who have been stopping with Mrs. J. Gibb, returned home last week. GALATEA.

Dresden.

Mr. Russel Huston has returned from To-Dr. Bullis is on a trip to New York and the

Dr. W. Webster has returned to Annawan.

Mich.

Mr. James King is home again after a short visit in New York. The Misses Tye of Windsor, Miss Madge Stringer of London, and Miss Jean Bingham of Aylmer are guests of Mrs. (Dr.) Galbraith. Miss Mabel Leonard has returned from Toonto, where she has been attending the Jarvis treet Collegiate Institute.

Messrs, Frank Sharpe, James Sharpe, Morley Carscallen and Frank Wells rode over to the W. A. meet in Sarnia last week.
Mr. George Weir has returned from a visit in London and Port Stanley.

Mr. Robert Elliot of London was in town last week.

The latest event in society here was the garden party given last Tuesday evening by Mrs. Galbraith in honor of her guests, the Misses Tye, Miss Stringer and Miss Bingham. The evening was delightful and Mrs. Galbraith. assisted by her daughter Marie, left nothing undone to add to her guests' enjoyment. The spacious fawn was beautifully decorated with cosy nooks, and here and there might be found a quiet, dimly lit corner where those who so wished might sit out. The "dancing on the green ' had its charms for the majority, though others occupied the veranda in merry conver sation, and the devotees of pedro gathered to gether in a room specially provided for them. Among those present were: the Misses Tye of Windsor, Miss Madge Stringer of London Miss Jean Bingham of Aylmer, Miss Susie Watson and the Misses Sharpe of Toronto, Miss Mabel Leonard, Miss Lizzie Shaw and Miss May Watson of Dresden, Messrs. Langford and Shaw of Kent Bridge, Len Tye of Toronto, Oullette and Hubert Croll of Chatham, Will Green, Morley and Stanley Carscallen, Sandy Wallen, Frank Sharpe and Walter Wilson of Dresden. Duke.

Stratford

At Hillwootoon, the residence of Mr. T. J. At Hillwootoon, the residence of Mr. T. J. Birch, an interesting eventoccurred at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, July 11, when Miss Winnifred Birch was married to Mr. George McLagan, by Rev. W. J. McKay. The bride was attired in cream brocaded silk, wore a veil and carried white roses. In the absence of her father, the bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. W. Buck of Bantifact. During the greeners the bride. Brantford. During the ceremony the bridal party stood beneath a bower of palms and flowers in the drawing-room. The guests to the white marguerites. The presents were numerous and beautiful. The happy couple left for Buffalo, Cleveland, Datroit and the World's Fair.

Another wedding, which has removed to th kingdom of benedicts two of Stratford's mos popular people, was celebrated on Thursday, July 13, the two who have become one being Miss Ethel Cook and Mr. J. Russell Stuart principal of the Stratford public schools. We wish the happy couple every joy and blessing The O angemen of Western Ontario flooded the city on the "Glorious Twelfth" with about ten thousand visitors, but in future the ma jority of Stratford's bester citizens would thank them to remain away or else leave their drums

Mrs. Fleming of Darham is visiting her son Mr. D. J. Fleming of the Albion.

Mr. George Kay of the Perth Mutual is en oying a yacht cruise on Georgian Bay. Rev. M. L. Leitch is off on a six weeks' holi

Mr. Peter Da la Franier of Buffalo, known as one of the best photographers in America, has opened a gallery here and is doing the work of the upper ten. QUILL DRIVER.

Listowel.

The Ladies' Aid of Knox church gave a very pleasant lawn social at Argyle Place, the residence of Mr. D. D. Campbell, on Tuesday even ing. The grounds were beautifully decorated, the variegated lanterns giving a pretty effect, and as the large audience present promenaded and indulged in strawberries and other deli cacies of the season, the town band discourse weet strains of music.

Miss E. Bricker, daughter of Mr. D. O. Bricker of Winnipeg, is a guest of Mrs. S Bricker, Main street.

Messrs. Nelson Hay and Wm. Climle started on Thursday last on a visit to the World's

Mrs. Ralph Donaldson of Stratford paid a short visit to her son, Mr. G. Y. Donaldson las' week. The boarders of the Arling on Hotel were entertained by Mc. and Mrs. R. R. Hay by an At Home on Wednesday evening.

Mr. J. A. Halstead of Mount Forest was the guest of Mr. J. W. Scott on Dominion Day. Mrs. F. R. Green of Ontario, California, is visiting her brother, Mr. A. St. George

Hawkins. Miss A. Barber of Listowel is visiting her sister, Mrs. Kilbert, at Hamilton.

His Little Scheme.

Friend—Why do you write "dictated" at the top of each of your letters? You have no amanuensis type-writer. Business Man—No; but I'm a mighty poor speller, and if there are any mistakes in my letters the recipient will lay the blame on the stenographer!

Not Complete.

Madam—Well, Mary, what did you think of the pictures at the Academy? Mary—Oh, mum, there was a picture called Two Dogs, after Landseer, but I looked at it for nearly half an hour and I couldn't see no Landseer.

Hardened.

Briggs—Des Hubb! I swear as much as ever nee he married? Ephson—O'a, yes. His wife don't mind it. he used to be a telephone girl.

As She is Spoke.

"Dennis, you're a gentleman and a scholar; is this where you ruminate?" "Begorra, and you guessed it the first tolme; this is jist where I room an' ate."

INCORPORATED TORONTO HON. G. W. ALLAN

Artists and Teachers' Graduating tourses University Aft latten for Degrees in Music cholarships, Diplomas, Certifica'es, Medals, &c SUMMER NORMAL TERM
Opens July 3. Closes August 27

SCHOOL OF ELOCUTION H. N. Shaw, B.A., Principal

Efficient staff. Complete equipment. Best methods horough course. Delmaris and Swedish Gymnastics. VOICE CULTURE, LITERATURE, &c.

Send for Calendars,

EDWARD FISHER, Musical Director
Corner Youge Street and Wilton Avenue.

CLARENCE LUCAS, Mus Bac.
Of this Conservatoire of Paris, France COMPOSER AND TEACHER

ARA ASHER-LUCAS

Board per year, $250. 19 Portland Terrace, Begent's Park, N. W. LONDON, ENGLAND

TORONTO COLLEGE OF MUSIC

12 & 14 PEMBROKE STREET F. H. TORRINGTON, Musical Director.
A SPECIAL SUMMER TERM begins July 2 and end
August 5. All the departments open during shis term Calendars, giving full particulars, cent on application.

STAMMERING CHURCH'S SCHOOL, Torente, Canada. No sdvance fee or de posit. Grade perfected. Cure guaranteed.

W. O. FORSYTH

Lessons in Piano Playing and Theory died in Leipzig and Vienna under Dr. S. Jada n Krauss and Prof Julius Epstein iern methods. Address— 113 College Street, Toronto

NEWCOMBE -:-

PIANOS

THE FINEST MADE IN CANADA

OCTAVIUS NEWCOMBE & CO. MANUFACTURERS

MONTREAL OTTAWA

Head Office-107-9 Church St.

son and competition invited.

WHALEY, ROYCE & CO., 158 Younge St., Toronto

ONTARIO COLLEGE OF MUSIC 56 HOMEWOOD AVE.

Established 1884 by C. Farringer

Ws guarantee thorough work from the lowest to the highest grades of music, as the instruction is given by ex-perienced teachers only.

Our advanced pupils are not only excellent eight read-ers, but also show careful and thorough training in touch, technique and expression. Practical instruction in harmony in connection with plane studies. CERTIFICATES AND DIPLOMAS

Telephone 3921 MR. J D. A. TRIPP

Concert Pianist and Teacher of Piano On y Canadina pupil of Moszkowski, Berim Serma: y, firmerly pupil of Eiward Faher. Open fo ingagements, Toronto Conservatory of Music and 23 Senton Street, Toronto

MISS McCARROLL, Teacher of Harmony TORONTO CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC (Formerly principal resident plane teacher at the Blahop Strachan School, Toronto.)
Will be prepared to receive pupils in Harmony and Plane
Playing on and after September 2, at her recidence 14 St. Joseph Street, Toronto.
Pupils of Ladies' Colleges taught at reduction in terms.

HELEN M. MOORE, Mus. Bac., Harmony. Counterpoint, Etc. Students prepared for the University examinations Muslo. Toronto College of Music and 608 Church Stre

KUCHENMEISTER VIOLIN SOLOIST AND TEACHER (Late a pupil of the Rafi Conservatory at Frankfort-onMain, and of Professors H. E. Kayser, Hago Heermann and C. Bergbeer, formerly a member of the Philharmonic Orchestra at Hamburg, Or. Hans von Bollow, conductor.)
Studio, Odd Fellows' Building, cor. Yonge and College
Studio, Odd Fellows' Building, cor. Yonge and College
Residence, Ocroer Gerrary and Victoria Sts. Telephone 980

HERBERT W. WEBSTER

CONCERT BARITONE Choirmaster St. Peter's Church, Late of Westminster Abbey, Eog., and Milan, Italy. Instruction in Voice Cut Sure, Opera Oratorio. Telephone 4227. 64 Winchester St. or College of Music. Urse TO CONCRAY BENJACKBUNN'S

MRS. H. W. WEBSTER Pupil of Signori Guiseppe and Gantiero, of Milan, Italy, will receive a few pupils for the MANDOLIN. Original Italian method. Apply 61 Wischester 81.

MR. W. E. FAIRCLOUGH Fellow of the College of Organic Organist and Choltmaster All Saints' Ch

Teacher of Organ, Piano and Theory Pupils prepared for musical examination. Harmon and counterpoint taught by correspondence.

Terente Cellege of Music

MR. A. S. VOGT Organist and Choirmaster Jarvis Street Baptist Church

Teacher of the Pianoforte and Organ Residence, 605 Church Street, Toronto

J organist and Choirmaster St. Simon's Church.

Musical Director of the Ontario Ladies' College, Whithy ORGAN AND PIANO 13 Dunbar Road, Rosedale

W. F. HARRISON

MR. F. WARRINGTON BARITONE

Choirmaster Sherbourne Street Methodist Church, Toronto, will receive pupils in Voice Culture and Expression in Singling at his residence, 214 Carlton Street, Toronto.

OPEN FOR CONCERT ENGAGEMENTS

M. R. HARRY M. FIELD, PIANO VIRTUOSO, HAB redurned from a two year's residence in Germany, where he has been studying with Professor Marking Rrause, the greatest and most famous tascher in Europe. Mr. Field aiss studied from '54 to '88 with Dr. Prof. Carl Reinocke in Leipzig and had the rare advantage of a course with Dr. Hans Von Bulow, in Frankfort in '87. Concret engagements and pupils accepted. For terms apply at Toronto College of Music and 105 Glonowster street.

MR. E. W. SCHUCH

otor Toronto Vocal Society.
Cholemaster St. James Cathadral.
Conductor University Glass Club.
Conductor Harmony Club.
Fuction in Voice Culture and Expression in Singing.
35 Grenville Street

MRS. E. M. FOX

Teacher of Guitar and Banjo. Studio at II Queen Street East.

LOYD N. WATKINS

303 CHURCH STREET

Thorough instruction on Banjo, Guitar, Mandelin and Zither.

MISS HEMMING, ARTIST.
Portraite in Oil and Water Color.
Studio, Room 70
Oenfederation Life Building.

W. L. FORSTER STUDIO BI KING ST. EAST ARTIST

DENTISTRY.

DR. McLAUGHLIN, Dentist Cor. College and Yonge Streets. Tel. 4301 pecial attention to the preservation of the natural teeth.

RIGGS' MODERN DENTISTRY We employ only the very latest and best approved methods and appliances in all our dental operations. Our work in gold filing, crowning, and bridging is distin-guished for its finish, beauty and great durability. DR. C. M. RIGGS, cor, King and Yonge Streets Over the new C. P. R. Offices.

MALCOLM W. SPARROW, L.D.S.

DENTIST

Central Dental Parlors, N. W. cor Spatina & Queen St.,

Special attention paid to painless operating.

Toronto.

N. PEARSON DR. C. H. BOSANKO

Rooms No. 45 King Street West OVER HOOPER'S DRUG STOPE

DRS. BALL & ZIEGLER
DENTINTS
Offices, Suits 23 "The Forum," Young and Gerrard Sta.
Hours, 9 to 6.

DR. CHAS. J. RODGERS, Dentist

DR. ALFRED F. WEBSTER. DENTIST
Has removed to 31 Bleor Street West. Tel. 3868

DR. HAROLD CLARK DENTIST

45 King Street Weet (Over Hopper's Drug Store), Toronto.

DR FRANK J. STOWE, Dentist Student of Dr. Parmly Brown, New York. Office, 4dll Spadica Ave., close to College St. Teeth filled evenings by use of Electric Mouth liluminator.

MEDICAL.

MASSAGE THOMAS COOK, 204 King Street West

Dr. Oronhyatekha

Special attention given to diseases of Throat, Lungs and Nervous System, Electricity and Iohalations. Consultation rooms, 29 and 30 Canada Life Building. Hours—10 a.m. till 4 p.m., and 7 to 8 p.m. A. M. ROSEBRUGH, M.D.

EYE AND EAR SURGEON
137 CHURCH STREET, TORONTO. DR. ANDERSON

Eye, Ear, Nose and Threat Specialist ephone 3072. No. 5 College Street, Toronto. JOHN B. HALL, M D., 326 and 328 Jarvis Street, HOME OPATHIST Specialties—Diseases of Children and Nervous Diseases of Women. Office hours—11 to 12 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.

DR. PALMER 40 College Street
Telephone 8190. Bril Door from Yonge Street.

EDUCATIONAL.

GALBRAITH ACADEMY

School of Painting, Modeling and Drawing

Young Women's Christian Guild Building
19 and 31 McLili Street, Teronto
The pupil advance from the study of the floest antiques
the living model.
207283038 — G. A. REID, R.C. A., J. W. L. FORSTER, R.C. A., HAMILTON MCGARTHY, R.C. A., L. R.
Cientars and tarms on amplication at the studies on by Circulars and terms on application at the studies, or by mail on addressing the Secretary.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE

(Fourded 1829) The Autumn Term Will Begin Sept. 5

Siaff consists of thisteen masters. The curriculum in-cludes a Classical, a Science, a Business and a Musical course. Twenty-five acress of playground for cricket, foot-land tennis. Covered hocksy rink, quarter-mile track, swimming best and large gymnasium.

THE PRINCIPAL, Upper Canada College, Deer Park, Toronto.

MONSARRAT HOUSE

I Classic Ave., Toronto. Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies MISS VENNOR, Principal

(Late Trebover House, London, Eng.) A thorough names of instruction will be given in Eng-lish, Mathematics and Modern Languages. Pupile pre-pared for University examinations. Classes in Swellish Carving will also be held twice a week. For terms and prospectics apply to Principal.

Attend the best==PAYS

Jusiness Pollege. Cor. Youge and Gerrard Cor. Market and Eric

Unquestionably the greatest in magni-tude, elegance of equipment, popularity and genuine merit. ONLY SUMODLE of this kind in Canada continually diversising "Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded." On risk nothing by attending our colleges. ONLY SCHOOLS of Canada where the students of one chool transact business with the pupils in another Canadactic Canada was continued to the continued of the continued to the continue sonou transar unature.

June 1 Toronto School occupies twenty recess. Students from a distance reside at the college.

Write for catalogues

Fall Term Begins Monday, Sept. 4 SHAW & ELLIOTT, Principals.

SHERMAN E. TOWNSEND Public Accountant and Auditor Traders' Bank Chambers, Toronto, 'Phone 1611

Most of to decide Company, that not trip with t pleasures the new screw, elected leave Mon excursion. the touris able at B ship agenc

July

Fatigay seen ye for profesh an Mulligan been clean

"She is a "Yes, he comebody e LAT JOHN

Barb Two Hunt

Fate 80 YC Pablishe

WILS Frida

GRAND

STERI Ga For the above data a Free Excursion A first-clase orchest musicians, w Tickets are about placed with all SOAP (ose and gaves to one admitted i W. J. Forrestal SOAP CO., many America.

TO

fel, 4903 tral tooth. TRY Streets

S.

en St., Toronto.

ANKO

West

ege Sts.

el. 3868

office, 468 enings by

West

tha

tinge and Building.

8 Jarvis

Diseases p.m.

EMY

rawing

ORSTER,

os, as by

GE

ept. 5

SE

Ladies

in Eng-ils pre-Swedish

IT PAYS

e.

nagni-ularity

Students

, 4 ipals, iding

A Change.

Most of us appreciate variety, and at this season of the year it is often a difficult question to decide where to go. The Beaver Steamship Company, having this in view, and knowing that not a few would favor a trans Atlantic trip with the benefits of the salt water and the pleasures of visiting Europe, have arranged for the new and magnificent 6,5000 ton, twin screw, electric lighted Steamship Mariposa to leave Montreal August 2 on a special outing excursion. Prices, which have been reduced to a minimum in order to advertise this boon to the tourist public, passages, etc., are obtainable at Barlow Cumberland's general steamship agency, 72 Yonge street, Toronto.

Resting.

Fatigay Broggs—Hello, Mulligan, haven't seen ye for a month. I heard ye had left the profesh and gone to work.

Mulligan (indignantly)—Work? Naw. I've been cleanin' the streets for Tom Brennan.

In That Particular.

"She is a perfect Judo."
"Yes, her husband is always crazy about mebody else."

LATEST NOVELS

JOHN P. McKENNA'S

Barbara Dering Two Loyal Lovers
Paper 800. By ELIZABETH WINTHROP JOHNSON

Hunting Girl

Fate of Fenella

80 YONGE STREET

NEAR COR. KING

Publisher, Bookseller and Newsdealer

Telephone 1717

GRAND FREE EXCURSION

WILSON PARK, N.Y.

Friday, July 28, 1893

STERLING SOAP CO.

Garden City

For the above date and will give to the Citizens of Toronto a Free Excursion to the beautiful Fark as Wilson, N.Y. A first-class crobestra, composed of fitteen of Toronto to the Composed of the Composed of

W. J. Forrestall, Rossin House, representing STERLING SOAP CO., manufacturers of the best Laundry Soap in

The Usual Result.

Thisties—Johnson is getting to be quite a farmer since he moved over to Jersey.

Figs—So?

Thisties—Yep; he made a garden and sold the truck for enough to pay for the seeds, all but fifteen dollars.

A Bottle of Good Coffee Essence is the Bache lor's Friend and the Housewife's Help.

THE LABEL OF

"SYMINGTON, EDINBURGH" On a Bettle of COFFEE ESSENCE is a guarantee that it is made from the best materials by the most improved pro-cesses, is always of one standard quality, and that it is warranted pure.

To be obtained through all grocery stores, and wholesale

Stanway & Bayley 42 Front Street East - - Toronto

NEW NOVEL BY A. CONAN DOYLE Cheap English Edition—Published Wednesday, July 12

THE REFUGEES A TALE OF TWO CONTINENTS.

By A. CONAN DOYLE Author of "Micah Clarke," &c. Price in Paper, 75c; in Cloth $1.00 A thrilling tale of the French rule in Canada; should be in every Canadian library, public or private.

JAMES BAIN & SON By MRS. E. KENNARD 53 King Street East - - Toronto

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra is, Have nothing to do with the case;
Tie the soft summer showers that spoil the fine gowns,
Then the ladies give Rigby first place.

RIGBY

POROUS WATERPROOF GARMENTS

FOR

DOUBLE PARMA. VIOLET, SWEET PEA ECYPTIAN BOUQUET. CORINNE BOUQUET, LILAC BLOSSOM, SPECIAL WHITE ROSE,

A Camera With You

ON YOUR HOLIDAY TRIP

and bring back permanent, delightful reminders of your outing

We sell all the latest Cameras and everything pertaining to Photography. Send for catalogue.

PHOTO SUPPLY CO.

54 Yonge St., Toronto.

C. F. MAY.

Queen's Royal Hotel NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE

A charming spot to avoid the heat of the dog days and enjoy the delights of a plearant watering place. Thermometer on the hotel lawn has not registered above 72 degrees this season.

SPECIAL HOPS EVERY SATURDAY

Special rats of $5.00 Saturday to Monday, including return fare on Niagara Navigation Company's epical steamers. Tickets at Queen's Hotel, Toronto.

Greatly reduced rates for two weeks or longer. Anglers' Conference Aug. 9. Tennis Tournament begins Aug. 29.

H. WINNETT, Queen's Royal Hotel, Niagara-on-the-Lake.

HOUSE FOR SALE That Maznificent New Residence, No. 170 Isa-bella Street, N. W. cor. Sherbourne

bella Street, N. W. cor. Sherbearne

The very less investment you can make in this world is to secure and provide a perfect home for yourself and family, even if same economy is made in other masters; this is a pretty bold statement, but will stand the test of coles the provide of the same economy is made in other masters;
the same of the same economy is the same economy, chesper, bester built, or more complete readence in this big and growing metropolis. Think of it carefully, examine and inspect it, and, if savorably impressed, there is a fair chance we can come to a mutually pleasant and satisfactory agreement. Apply to A. WILLIE.

JOHN KAY, SON & CO.

JUST RECEIVED

A LARGE SHIPMENT OF

Japanese & Chinese Mattings

New patterns, imported specially Samples and prices on application.

JOHN KAY, SON & CO. 34 KING STREET WEST

CREASED EVERY LADY IN TORONTO Will have a chance to buy a FOSTER & CO. OXFORD at

SOFT AS $4.00 FINEST IN THE WORLD

McPHERSON = 186 YONGE 186

It's like changing dollars we know, but we reckon the advertisement worth something.

PLAIN VAMPS

NEEDLE

TOES

FINE WATCHES AT HALF PRICE

KENT BROS.

168 Yonge Street Toronto

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS N.B.—Store closes at 1 p.m. Saturdays during July and August

GAS RANGES The latest production of the great Schneider & Trinkamp Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, the largest and most successful manufacturers in the world of Gas Stoves and Ranges.

See This Range Before Spend-ing Your Money

It is the only Perfect Water Heater known. Will heat water faster than a coal range. All burners are operated with steel needle valves, which produce sharp blue fiames.

The body is made of heavy cold rolled sheet steel, asbestos lined.

The front and top are beautifully carved heavy, smooth castings, with nickel plate medallion and tile panels.

panels.
Send for price list and get our record of Water Heater.

The Gurney Foundry Co. TORONTO

ENDORSED BY THE MUSICAL PROFESSION

Great Durability Latest Designs Moderate Prices

TONE

Old Pianos Exchanged

BELL PIANO WAREROOMS - - 107 YONGE STREET

In connection with Messrs. Suckling & Sons' Music Store. East side, below Adelaide Street.

In Muskoka At the Seaside By the Lakes

Wherever the "Iron Horse" penetrates the "Hygeia Best Beverages" will keep you company. A postal card will bring them. Packed in dozens. All flavors.

> Hygeia Orange Phosphate and Raspberry Phosphate are delicious fruit flavors. Ice them

J. J. McLAUGHLIN

MANUPACTURING CHEMIST 153 and 155 Sherbourne Street

To My Patrons and the Public generally:

Having just received a large consignment of light summer goods for the coming warm weather suitable for Tennis and Boating, would ask your inspection, as they are undoubtedly the finest assortment of these goods ever imported to this country. An early call will give you first choice.

Henry A. Taylor

SOME

SELF-EVIDENT

FOSTER & PENDER Toronto's New Carpet House

FACTS

We have never placed any special stress on the subject of prices in connection with our mention of the stylish character, the extensive variety and the high-grade quality of our vast stock of carpets and curtains, because that portion of the public for whose patronage we cater, naturally assumes that a new carpet house would not attempt to win trade with high prices. And people also reason on the line that a carpet house so much larger than any other in Toronto, buying and importing on a proportionately larger scale than any other, has the business incentive of including favorable prices among other advantages which it offers to patrons. Such deductions of our business are as natural, and they occur so readily to the mind that no elaboration on that point is needed from us.

While speaking of prices, we may be justified in mentioning the fact that some of the larger orders for the furnishings of private residences, churches and fine new passenger steamers which we secured this season, were obtained by us in competition with other first-class houses. But our advantage was not wholly in our prices. Our designs were more acceptable, and we were able to show that our house could fulfill these orders in a very superior manner.

Our aim is to lead with the style, quality and great variety of our carpets, curtains and other interior jurnishings, and it stands to reason that we could not succeed if our prices were high.

TORONTO'S NEW CARPET HOU'SE

14 and 16 King Street East

FOSTER & PENDER

Social and Personal.

Continued from Page Two

anniversary. Handsome presents of a very quaint and laughter-provoking kind adorned the table in the dining-room, while many very beautiful and valuable presents were also forwarded by their well-wishers.

Mrs. Lyman Jones, Miss Jones and Miss Goldsmith left on Wednesday for the World's

The Countess of Derby just before leaving Rideau Hall issued a circular letter to the women of Canada concerning her stewardship in the matter of the Princess May wedding present. The sleigh will be the finest obtainable and will be made in Montreal black bear robes have been selected, and a profusion of them will accompany the outfit packed in a brasstrimmed cedar box which will contain the names of the subscribers. The harness and bells are to be made in Montreal. The Earl and Countess of Derby were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dobell during their stay in Quebec, who gave a grand dinner party in their honor.

The Governor General and Countess of Aberdeen, their family and suite, will sail for Quebec on Sept. 7.

A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday in St. James' cathedral, when Mr. William Lount and Miss Belle Hornibrook were mar-ried by Rev. Septimus Jones. Miss Hornibrook wore her traveling dress, and Miss Emily F. Denison was the bridesmaid. Mr. Lindsay was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Lount left on the noon train for New York and the seaside.

The first concert and dance given on Saturday by the Island Amateur Aquatic Associa-tion attracted a number of smart people and proved a very successful and pleasant event. The evening was delightfully cool and the management spared no pains to ensure the comfort of their guests. The room was not overcrowded and the wallflowers were few, coming decorum, and altogether the visitors noticed a marked improvement in this always jolly and agreeable event. The regatta will be finished this afternoon, and the prizes awarded at the hop this evening. The hall would be a good place for an informal dance at any time, and can be had with use of piano for a trifling fee. Mr. Bruff Garrett, the secretary of the association, and an energetic committee are to be congratulated on their success this Seasch. Among those who attended last Saturday were: Mrs. Francis, whose piquant little brown-eyed daughter dances most grace-fully, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, Miss Watson, Percy Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. Rolph. Mesers. and Miss Rolph, Mr. Jack Dyas, Mrs. Sheard, Mrs. Stanton, Mrs. Charles Pegley of Chatham, who is visiting Mrs. Stanton, Mr. Ollie and Miss Stanton, Miss Eckart, the Misses Parsons, Chadwick, Boultbee, Hope, Hughes, Montgomery, and Messrs. Minty, Merrick, Nelles, J. Lee, Grayson, Smith, Wissier, Jarvis, Dr. Boultbee and a number of others in picturesque Island costumes or more formal afternoon gowns. Mrs. Fred Cox sang during the concert. Miss Anglin was charming in pink blouse and black skirt. Miss Rolph, who is a very bright little lady, wore a white physical culture frock, such as is in vogue at Hell-muth College, London, where Miss Rolph is at present a student. All styles of chapeaux, from the modish chip and white veil to the rakish little red Tam, are worn at these pleasant hops, and many a dear little sun-kissed nose and chin and pair of tanned little hands are exhibited, with their announcement of health, fresh air and outdoor fun. The boys are never so good-looking as in their cream white flannel suits, and a cer-tain brown-faced, black-eyed beau was a picture in a dashing blazer of scarlet and black and a saucer cap of the same becoming hues. The tail of the comet was admired from the balcony during the evening, and various other tales, both sentimental and practical, were recounted. The risky voyage of the Messrs. Rolph, who were essaying to cross to Niagara in their cance when the storm broke over the lake, made quite a thrilling narrative.

Mr. and Mrs. Quigley and a party of friends have returned from an enjoyable week in camp on the banks of the Humber. The party included: Misses Corney, Rowntree, Clark, and Mesers, Kleiser, Moore, Marlowe and Brown.

The Victoria Lawn Tennis Club's annual tournament took place on Tuesday and two fol-lowing days. Among the players who won much applause were: Mrs. Whitehead, Miss Osborne, Miss Hague, and Miss Swabey. Col. Pope's two tall sons also played well, but were beaten by Messrs. Boys and Choppin. The courts looked lovely and the weather was perfect. A number of ladies and gentlemen watched the matches among whom I remarked: Mrs. and Miss Gooderham, Mrs. Armstrong, Miss Mont-gomery, Mr. and Mrs. Denison, Mr. Winder Strathy, Miss Pope, Mr. Sproule, and Mr. Cook. The lady players in ladies singles on Wednesday were: Misses Maule, Boulton, Hague, Osborne, Serhaey, Lefroy, Scott, and Mrs. Whitehead. Mrs. Whitehead's play was much admired, her lissome figure and graceful motions making even hard work look easy. She wears a dark fine cloth skirt and light blouse and sailor hat. Miss Osborne pls.ys in white with a pretty white sailor Tam as headgear. Miss Hague plays a strong game and wears an easy-fitting white frock and cream straw sailor hat. On Thursday the four winners, Mrs. Whitehead, Miss Hague, Miss Osborne and Miss Lefroy played the semi-final singles.

Mr. Charles Smallpiece and Miss Smallpiece of Avenue road are visiting friends in Guelph.

Mrs. McL. Stevenson of Barrie has been visiting friends in the city.

Mr. J. Martin is away on a little holiday trip.

The following have registered at the Peninsular Park Hotel, Lake Simcoe, during the week: Mr. and Mrs. J. Fraser Macdonald, Mr. E. C. Rutherford, Miss Chattle and Miss Violet Langmuir, Mr. W. D. Muir, Mr. H. L. Watt, Mrs. A. H. and Miss Irene Sullivan, Mr. A. J.

The Golden Lion

The Golden Lion

JR custom has been for the past sixty years or more to clear out without thought for profit our entire lines of summer goods so as to have everything the freshest for a new season. This summer's trade has been the biggest in the history of the house This summer sale is intended to be the best bargain time the shopping public have ever had in Toronto. The sale is going Prices are reduced in all departments.

King St. East

Henderson, Mrs. Charles and Miss May Reid, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. and Miss McWilliams of Toronto, Mrs. (Dr.) Mack of St. Catharines, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Beaufort of New Orleans, Mr. and Miss Clements, and Mrs. James H. Pearce

Mr. King of Orangeville has been spending a week with relatives in Parkdale.

Rev. Charles and Mrs. Inglis and family left last Tuesday for Drummondville, where they intend spending two weeks,

The fifth annual international Dog Show will be held on September 11 and three following days. The premium lists are now ready and may be had on application to the secretary. Over three thousand dollars is offered in cash prizes, besides the special prizes.

Mrs. and the Misses Cowan of John street are spending a few weeks at the Island.

A well known and esteemed Toronto gentle man, Mr. Rowan Kertland of the Imperial Loap, was married last Saturday to Miss Bianche A. Willson, daughter of the late Dr. B. S. Willson of Belleville. The ceremony took place in St. Thomas' church in that city the officiating minister being one of the oldes clergymen of the diocese, Rev. Canon Burke Mrs. Kertland has already many friends in Toronto, and will no doubt be one of the coming season's most popular ladies,

The föllowing are registered at the Summit House, Port Cockburn, Muskoka: Mr. W. E. Gardiner of Chatham, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bodle. Mrs. M. Ransom, Mr. F. H. Ransom, Miss Ransom, Mr. F. H. Ransom, fr., of Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. Garland, Miss Garland, Mr. J. T. McKinley, Mr. D. Maedonald, Mr. W. C. Gurney, M. E. G. Staunton, Mr. E. S. Wellington, Mr. D. L. Lennox, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Checkley, Mr. A. Macdonald, Mr. W. J. Sharpe and family, Mr. W. Maclean, Jr., Miss Maclean, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Treble, Miss Treble, Mr. C. Treble of Toronto; Misses Maud and Mabel Manning of Brampton, Mr. and Mrs. Munroe of Morrisburg, Mr. and Mrs. Thorne of Detroit, and Mr. Arnold Ivey of Toronto.

Mr. R. Baker, a popular member of the French Club, was quietly married a short time since to Miss McClennan. The marriage ceremony was performed in the historic church of Niagara on the Lake by the assistant minister. Rev. Mr. Garratt. Mr. and Mrs. Baker will take up house in the northern part of the city.

The young people's dance given at the Pavilion, Center Island, on Friday of last week was a bright and enjoyable affair. Mrs. Earsman played for the daucers, and about one hundred were present. Some very stylish and natty costumes were worn by the ladies, and the dancing was remarkably graceful and enthusiastic. Several well known cyclists were specially distinguished for their perfect terpsichorean performance. The open pavilion, with its brilliant electric lights and graceful party of dancers, was watched by a number of admiring loiterers under the trees.

"Why, Jack, you i shuman brother! Of course he is! Did you ever see a plumper, rosier, better-natured baby in your life? We feed him on Nestle's Food, and he weighs

"What's Nest'e's Food?" "Why it's the best food in the world. We thought he was going to have Cholera Infantum this summer, and for four days he couldn't eat anything we gave him, till tried Nestle's Food, and since then he been as bright as the day is long. We think we know how to take care of a beby now." "Apparently. It makes me wish I had been brought up on Nestle's Food." "I wish you had. You would have been a prettier boy and a politer one, too."

(Our book "The Baby," will be sent to any one carequest. THOS, LEEMING & CO., Montreal.)

JUST PUT INTO STOCK

NEW DESIGNS IN Bedroom Suits, Dining-Room and Drawing-Room

FURNITURE

AT VERY LOW PRICES 97 Yongs St.

CARPET CLEANING

Done by the HYGIENIC Carpet-Cleaning Machine.

We also clean Carpets Without REMOV-ING from the floor if necessary.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

& J. L. O'MALLEY

FURNITURE WAREROOMS Telephone 1057 160 Queen St. West

Matchings

MR. IRVING leaves for England JULY 31 and will give his personal attention to all orders for matchings of Dinner Sets, Tea Sets Toilet Sets, Glassware, &c.

JUNOR & IRVING

100 King Street West - - Teronto

The Cradle, the Altar and the Tomb.

Births. WEBSTER—July 15, Mrs. Henry J. Webster—a sun.
PEPLER—Barrie, July 17, Mrs. F. E. Pepler—a son.
HARBOTTLE—On Troeday, July 18, 1898, at 165. Carlic street, the write of Sien. C. Harbottle—a daughter.
DENNISTOUN—July 17, Mrs. R. Meyllille—a daughter.
OIBBE—July 15, Mrs. J. Gordon Gibb—a daughter.
MELVILLE—July 18, Mrs. R. Meyllile—a daughter.
TAYLOR—July 16, Mss. Edward A. Taylor—a daughter.
HILL—July 18, Mrs. Rowland Hill—a son.
GALT—July 13, Mrs. John Galt—a daughter.
WILLIAMS—July 12, Miss. Weeley Willams—a son.
GRAY—July 14, Mrs. John Gray—a son.
FERGUISON July 12, Mrs. Ozie Ferguson—a daughter.

Marriages.

-HORNIBROOK-July 19, William Lount, Q C10 wright-forster-July 19, T. G. A. Wright to Annie Porster.

DOWD. IMMONS. June 58, William Dowd to Edith Lucy FIELD-AFFLECK-June 27, John H. Field to Agnee Affi ek
HUNTER-KAY-July 11, W. E. U. Hunter to Lizzle Kay.
HADDO W-CALD WELL-July 11, Rev. Robt. Haddon to E'eanor Caldwell. HAWKER-ROSSITER-June 28, W. T. Hawker to Lucy Rossiter.
ROBINSON—HASTINGS—July 5, J. F. Robinson to Maggie PRYCE-MITCHELL-July 12, Charles Price to Isatislia A. Mischell.
GEE_MISLAP-July 13, W. H. Gee to State Mislap.
LANDON-CRAWFORD-July 13, Charles W. Laudon to Maggie Crowford
KERTLAND-WILGON-July 15, A. H. Bowan Kertland to Blanch A. Wilson.
TIPPING-LEAPER-July 17, George A. Tipping to Alice
H. Lapser.

Deaths

Deaths.

O'CONNOR—July 12, Elien Louisa (Lillie) O'Connor.

MOWAT—July 13, Mary Mischell Mowas, aged 74.

MASON—July 13, Annie Mason
GRANGER—July 12, Annie L. Gress Granger.

ANDERSON—July 21, Mrs. Mary Anderson.

FINLAY—July 17, Jans Finisy, aged 77.

AGNIS—July 17, Alexina Agnew, sped 31.

AGNIS—July 17, Alexina Agnew, sped 30.

WATTS—July 17, Thomas Watts, aged 31.

JAMIESON—July 16, Barbars Jamieson, aged 19.

LOVEYS—July 16, Harries Loveys, aged 77.

STEPHENS—July 16, Elizabeth Beephane, aged 70.

SHANNESSY—July 16, Barbars Jamieson, aged 29.

DIXON—July 14, Miss Jane Dixon.

RICE—July 6. Ds. Peter J. Rice.

MONTGOMERY—July 17, Andrew Montgomery, aged 84.

NEFF—July 16, Menno L. Neff, aged 7.

STERLING SOAP.

Best and goes farthest.

Manufactured By

WM. LOGAN,

ST. JOHN, N. B.

ALLIGATOR BAGS

The most desirable pattern for Tourists to

THE WORLD'S FAIR MUSKOKA

CACOUNA BANFF. &c.

And the Continent of Europe. A large variety always in stock at

H. E. CLARKE & CO.'S, 105 King Street West

Our assortment of TRAVELLING RUGS is now complete, at prices ranging from

Silk has "great superiority as to strength and regularity" (see Report of the Judges of Awards at Philadelphia, 1876), and was the only American Silk for which a Prize Medal was awarded at the Paris Exposi-

The superiority of Corticelli has likewise been acknowledged by the award of

THIRTEEN GOLD MEDALS

during the last five years in competing exhibits with the world's manufactures. If you want the best, see that the end of the spool reads

S'ADA'S FAVORITE 117 KING STREET WEST TORONTO.

ANADIAN A

FREE

On Application to any Agent of the Com-

TORONTO TICKET OFFICE I KING ST. EAST. COR. YONGE STREET ALASKA -The St. Islander Islands Vancou-ern Pacific on July 27.